Mt. Zion celebrates anniversary

By Pauline Gaskins Mitchell

Mt. Zion United Methodist Church in Georgetown observed the 164th anniversary of its founding on Sunday, Oct. 19.

This church, the oldest black Methodist Church in Washington, founded in 1816 and considered the oldest black congregation in the city, had as its guest speaker at the 11 a.m. worship service, the Rev. Joshua Hutchins Jr., the Washington Central District superintendent.

Basing his sermon on portions of Book of John 17, he chose as his subject "Covenants, Crosses, Crowns." In his sermon, he related the promise of Jesus, you will be my people (the covenants); the crosses of struggle, vicissitudes and disappointments, and the crowns, the work of the founders brought to fruition in the glorious history of the present church

Special music was sung by the church choir directed by Romaldo de Veau and the gospel choir directed by Gerald Elston. Mamie Bouman was the presiding officer; Rose Rutledge, the general chairman of the celebration, offered the pastoral prayer.

Highlighting the celebration were several gifts to the church. One was a framed Ceremonial Resolution drawn up by Councilwoman Hilda Mason and Councilwoman Polly Shackleton, the area's ward delegate.

At formal ceremonies, the previous Tuesday, Mrs. Mason had read the resolution to the entire City Council that voted on it unanimously. Rev. James K. McCants, Mt. Zion's pastor, received the resolution on behalf of the church. He and the two other Mt. Zioners present, Pauline Mitchell, the church historian, and Gladys Gaskins, the first woman trustees, expressed their gratitude.

Since the resolution had been prepared specifically for the 164th anniversary, Mrs. Mason came to the church on Founders' Day, re-read the resolution to the congregation and presented it to the chairperson of the board of trustees, Minnie Robinson. This document noted the architectural beauty of the church and its religious, educational, cultural and social contributions of the church to the community.

A 12 by 18-inch bronze plaque was given by the Gaskins sisters of Georgetown in memory of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Calib Hawkins, and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Gaskins, early residents of Georgetown. The sisters are Gladys Gaskins, the eldest, who presented the plaque; Helen Jackson, Pauline Mitchell and Luville Clark.

The plaque to be placed on the exterior of the church explains the church's historical significance and the fact it has been listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

Monetary gifts were made to church by Ada B. Bille representing the Zionette Circle, Dorothy Colson, the Golden Leaf Circle, and Bernice Wright, the Nurses' Unit.

Following the worship service, the congregation was invited to the lower auditorium to view an historical exhibit of about 200 pictures and historical - memorabilia, some dating back to the 1860s.

Among the pictures were those of the Pope family. Alfred Pope, a black businessman of Georgetown sold Mt. Zion the land where the present church is located. Descendants of this early officer of the church attended the worship service and were photographed for the archives.

They included Hannah Nash Williams, his grandmother; her two daughters, Judith Hayes and Jean Beaslez and the former's children Kristen and Leah Hayes. This group donated the family pictures and old photographs of Ole Georgetown for the exhibit.

Open House at Seton Manor

Mrs. Lorraine Raffel is president and will discuss current developments affecting the future of Seton Hill Manor.

Men's Day at Fountain

Men's Day will be observed Sunday, Oct. 26 at Fountain Baptist Church, Monument and Gay Street. The Rev. Thomas Teal of Timothy Baptist Church is the 7:30 a.m. speaker and the Rev. Douglas Miles, pastor of Brown Memorial Baptist is the 11 a.m. speaker.

WILLIAM LEONARD GLENN of Severna Park was honored recently at a banquet held at the Empire Towers, Glen Burnie. The affair was sponsored by the Thomas Gospel Choir of Asbury Towneck United Methodist Church.

Rev. Chavis speaks at Jones

"Keep the faith of your forefathers and foremothers" was the challenge given by Rev. Benjamin Chavis of the Wilmington Ten, speaker at the 117th Anniversary Banquet on Friday evening, Oct. 10, at Jones Memorial United Methodist Church.

A further challenge was given to the more than two hundred persons that faith must leave the lips and enter the lives to get the right results. Rev. Chavis developed his message from the theme: "Praise the Priesthood of Christ: The King! The Servant! The Man!" and stated his subject as "1980: The Dilemma and the Hope."

While the speaker pointed out the evil that can evolve from the dilemma, which he equally undesirable alternatives, he stressed that evil can be challenged! He emphasized that internal problems must be rectified as these have been caused by the wandering away from God, and by aiding and abetting our own oppressiveness. "We need to move toward Christian perfection! he voiced as his scripture reference to the eighth verse of the six chapter of Micah gave the answer to the question of what the Lord required of us: "To be fair and just and merciful and to walk humbly with God!"

Rev. Chavis expressed hope as the realization of complete liberation through faith and works. The need during the eighties is for a strategy not a hundred, just one good strategy to solve our internal problems was another challenge given. He concluded with this orientation: This will mean we must renew, revitalize and revive our thrust to overcome if it takes another 117 years.

The dynamic speaker lifted the spirits of the crowd. Soon after his last word was heard the softly sung words of "AMEN" led by the Reverend Joshua Hutchins Jr., district superintendent of the Washington Central District, Baltimore Annual Conference, Rev. Hutchins then made a few comments on the meaning of the Chavis message and concluded with a challenge: "Be a transformer rather than a conformer!"

A period of quiet to think about what God has done for each of us was observed at the request of Dr. Woodie W. White, executive director of the General Commission on Religion and Race, the United Methodist Church. He also asked that the congregation think of what they had done to help someone outside of their own family, causes, and black schools. This introspection was continued with "Ask yourselves to help each of us to do better." "Review with Brother Ben," he stated. "Demonstrate with your money, your time and your lives!"

The occasion of the 117th Anniversary was pinpointed as an appreciation celebration to and for all members, past and present, of Jones Memorial. Additionally the statement emphasized the value of goals for the present and future life of the Continuing Development Center that has survived a century - plus.

Minority office sets co-op conference

The state's Office for Minority Affairs will sponsor a conference on cooperatives and how they are structured Nov. 14 and 15 at the Calvert Education Center.

The conference will explore how to structure and successfully operate cooperatives in such areas as food, fuel and other supplies. Co-op sytstems are based on buying in large volume by community groups and selling the items for less than regular consumer rates.

Several churches in the city have successfully operated food co-ops including Bethel AME and New Shiloh Baptist Church.

Among those expected to participate in the conference is Cornbread Givens of the Poor Peoples Development Foundation in Washington, D.C. who will give a history of the cooperative movement and how to structure a co-op.

Stanley Straughter, acting director of Title II of the National Consumer Cooperative Bank will discuss financing for cooperatives.

Other participants include representatives from the federal and state Department of Agriculture, Housing and Urban DEvelopment, Community Development Agency and the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Program.

John Pettit, state office for minority affairs reports that all black churches in Baltimore will be encouraged to participate as well as all NAACP chapters in the state, community action groups and ministerial alliances.

The conference will begin Friday, Nov. 14 at 6 p.m. with an overview by Douglas Sands, director of the minority affairs office.

Sands stated that in addition to working with cooperatives, he is involved in devloping the first black chamber of commerce initiated during the Black Business Conference which was sponsored by his office last June.

CONFERENCE SPEAKER — Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-NY, was the keynote speaker for the Third Annual Conference for Women in State Service held in Baltimore this week and is pictured with the conference coordinators, Margaret Taylor-Mann and Delores Snell.

Women's confab draws 1,500

"Women of the '80s - If not now - When?" was the theme of the Third Annual Conference for Women in State Service held in Baltimore this week featuring Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-NY as the guest speaker, with mmore than 1,500 persons attending.

Mrs. Chisholm, longtime advocate for the women's movement, chose the topic "Women in the World of Work" for her address.

She said, "There is a need for women to move much more into the corporate world where the decisions affecting the economic patterns of this country are made.

"We need more women in the board rooms of corporations. While women are moving steadily in the world of business and education there is not yet enough women in the corporate world."

The purpose of the conference, which included day-long workshops, was to increase the job skills of women in all levels of state employment, identify systemic barriers to career mobility, and to identify resources for the improvement of the employment status of the woman employee.

Workshop topics included "Barriers to Upward Mobility," "Legal Rights for Women State Employees, " Employees," "Challenging the System," "The Handicapped Worker," "Black Women in the State Work Force," and "Managerial Stress."

Venus Vaughn with the State Department of Economic and Community Development was presented the "Woman Manager of the Year" award. The other finalists included Geraldine Aronin, Department of Human Resources; Pauline Covino, Department of Transportation; Dr. Evelyn DiTosto, Department of Education; Felicity Evans, Department of Natural Resources, Dr. Martha Schipper, Department o Health and Mental Hygiene and Dr. Velma Speight, Department of Education.

Loyola to hold business seminar

A variety of business topics will be covered in four seminars offered this November by the Loyola College Management Institute.

"Management Skills for the New Office Manager" to take place Nov. 12 and 13, will acquaint new office managers with techniques for effectively fulfilling their position.

Worksheets, exercises, group discussions, and lectures will aid participants in developing practical skills for enhancing management effectiveness.

Designed to give the new supervisor an overview of his position within the organization, the Nov. 17 program on "Fundamental Skills for the New Supervisor," will aid participants in better understanding their role in dealing with both supervisors and subordinates.

"Using statistics Effectively," to take place Nov. 18 to 20, will give participants the opportunity to develop skills needed in evaluating statistical data.

Discussion will include the interpretation of statistical reports such as various types of computer - generated results.

As the electronic age becomes more and more a part of today's business world, managers need to become familiar with the potential uses and abuses of computers. "Computer Concepts for Managers," to take place Nov. 24 and 25, will focus on utilizing computer application, and making financial and policy decisions concerning computers and personnel.

All programs will be held at the Loyola College North Charles street campus from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day. For more information or to register call the Management Institute coordinator at (301) 730-8200 (Baltimore).

Banks to offer interest for checking accounts

For the first time, city checking account customers will soon be able to earn as much as 5.25 percent interest on their money, bankers say.

The new accounts, called negotiable order of withdrawal of NOW are interest bearing checking accounts, available to both commercial bank and savings and loan customers.

Last year, Congress approved legislation setting up the new banking system, which takes effect Jan. 1, 1981. Maryland savings and loans will also be able to offer checking accounts and credit cards to customers.

John Brown, staff attorney for consumer advocate Ralph Nader's public interest research group, said the new legislation will sharply reduce the differences between commercial banks and savings and loans.

"It makes for a more directly competitive banking environment that is bound to benefit the consumer. Commercial banks and savings and loans must now compete for business by advertising a farier return to their customers," he said.

At present, only two Baltimore - area financial institutions, Equitable Trust Bank and Baltimore County Savings and Loan, have released details of their plans for NOW accounts.

Liz Pettengill, spokeswoman for Equitable, said customers would have to keep $1,200 in their accounts to get interest with an undertermined service charge if that balance is not maintained.

The $1,200 amount is a tentative one subject to change before the NOW accounts are offered, probably early in 1981, she said.

Baltimore County Savings and Loan reports customers will need to keep only $100 in their NOW accounts to avoid a monthly $3 service charge.

Ms. Pettengill said the gap in the requirement is due to "banks laboring under several disadvantages with NOW. Because savings and loans will offer many of the same services as banks, they will likely attract new customers and those customers will likely be taken away from banks."

She said competition will narrow the gap, but initially, banks will have higher minimum balances because savings and loans will be opening new checking accounts that will bring in new revenue.

Local financial experts say they expect savings and loans to promote NOW and banks to downplay it, but most banks will make NOW accounts available to avoid losing customers.

Jobs decline in area, but rise in state

The total number of jobs in the metropolitan area fell 8,000 during the second quarter of this year, while the state job total rose 2,000 figures released recently by the U.S. Labor Department show.

The loss in metropolitan area jobs followed a slight increase posted during the first quarter and left the area with a loss of 1,000 jobs at the end of the second quarter, the three months ending in June.

Across Maryland, the total number of jobs is up about 3,300 following the first two quarters, compared with last year.

The Labor Department figures are adjusted to allow for seasonal fluctuations.

The second quarter loss in metropolitan area jobs reflects drops in manufacturing and construction jobs, while the increase in state jobs is largely due to increases in the number of government and financial sector jobs, said Alvin I. Murgulis, the department's regional commissioner.

Maryland's unemployment rate fell from 6.8 percent in July to 6.2 percent during August, the most recent month for which figures are available.

Unemployment in the metropolitan area fell during August from 8.1 percent in July to 7.4 percent in August, according to numbers released earlier this month by the State Department of Human Resources.

Firms charged with SBA fraud

Russell T. Baker Jr., United States attorney for the District of Maryland, announced the indictment of Richard L. Bennett and two Washington, D.C., construction firms on charges of mail fraud and the making of false statements to the United States.

The charges allegate to the Small Business Set - Aside Program operated by the Small Business Administration.

Bennett currently resides at 3930 Enterprise Road, Mitchellville, Maryland.

The two construction firms named as defendants are Suburban Paving Company, Inc., and Asphalt Construction, Inc. Bennett was the chief operating officer of each corporation during the period covered by the indictment.

The first eight counts of the indictment charge that Bennett and Suburban Paving devised a scheme to defraud the United States and legitimate small business concerns by submitting bids on federal contracts that had been reserved for small businesses under the Small Business Set - Aside Program.

The indictment alleges that the bids submitted by Bennett and Suburban Paving fraudulently misrepresented that suburban Paving was a qualifying small business when in fact Bennett knew that Suburban Paving did not satisfy the criteria established by the Small Business Administration.

Counts nine through 20 and counts 22 through 27 charge that Bennett and Suburban Paving submitted false statements to agencies of the United States in connection with bids on various federal contracts.

These statements falsely represented that Suburban Paving was a small business concern and that it was not owned by a parent company.

In fact, 67½ percent of the stock of both Suburban Paving and Asphalt Construction was owned by I.C. E., Inc., a corporation that also owned 100 percent of the stock of Bennett and Suburban Paving, Inc. Count 21 makes the same allegation with regard to Bennett and Asphalt Construction, Inc.

Each mail fraud count carries a maximum penalty of a $1,000 fine and five years imprisonment. Each false statement count carries a maximum penalty of $10,000 and ten years imprisonment.

Baker said that the indictment resulted from an investigation conducted by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The indictment was presented to the grand jury by Assistant United States Attorneys Michael J. Travieso and Stephen J. Immelt.

Army Corps seeks small business bids

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' Baltimore District is seeking bids from small businesses for improvements to the harbor at Rock Hall Harbor, Md.

The improvements include raising the existing breakwaters from 4 feet above mean low water (mlw) to 7 feet mlw, adding a 205 - foot - long extension to the north breakwater, relocating the entrance channel and constructing two additional channels and an anchorage basin within the harbor. The channel will be dredged to a depth of 6 feet below mlw.

Estimated value of work will be between $1 million to $5 million and bids are scheduled to be open on Nov. 20.

Only bids from small businesses will be accepted by the Corps of Engineers for this project.

A small business is one that is independently owned and operated, does not dominate its field of business activity, and has had average annual earnings of less than $12 million for the past three years.

Real estate hearing scheduled

The Maryland Real Estate Commission will hold a public hearing to discuss existing regulations which ban certain types of real estate advertising in designated "Conservation Areas."

The hearing will be held on Nov. 6 at 7:00 p.m. in the auditorium of Loch Raven Senior High School, 1212 Cowpens Road, Towson, Maryland.

As the result of a law adopted in 1966 to prevent blockbusting, the Real Estate Commission designates conservation areas where advertising is restricted.

There are currently 17 neighborhoods in Baltimore City that have been designated as "Real Estate Conservation Areas."

Under the provisions of the law, this designation covers a period of two years.

The purpose of the hearing will be to receive public comments to determine whether a renewal, modification, or removal of existing advertising restrictions would be warranted.
