What's Happening

Tonight (Friday) we'll be at the Arena Playhouse for the opening of "The Night Is My Enemy" directed by Bob Russell. Everybody who attends in costume will be admitted at half - price and along with Curt Anderson, Don Brooks and Mary Clayburn we will be choosing the most original, terrifying and funniest costumes and awarding prizes.

An exhibit of oils acrylics and mixed media by Bill Banks is on display in the Arena Playhouse lobby thru Dec. 14. A special reception for him will be held Sunday, Nov. 9 from 2-5 p.m.

Mr. Banks, a native of Washington, D.C., received his bachelor of fine arts degree from Howard University in 1948 and has taken advanced courses in commercial, graphic and advertising art at the Latcher Art Center, Washington, D.C.; Newark Institute, Newark, N.J.; Modern Studio School, Washington, D.C. and Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N.Y.

While he was a student in New York, Mr. Banks freelanced for Orbach's, Bambergers, Modern Records, C. B. S. and other companies in the New York metropolitan area. He also traveled with a summer stock theatre group constructing sets and scenic designs and painted murals on all the walls of the Florida Inn and Christian Church in Newark.

Bill Banks has lived in Baltimore since 1956 and has accomplished many things. He designed and supervised the installation of special displays of Martin Marietta's missile program.

That dynamic duo Ashford and Simpson into Painters Mill this weekend singing hits from their new top album, "A Musical Affair," and their single "Love Don't Make It Right."

The Alliance for Success program of the Baltimore Public Schools has arranged for 100 students to meet the recording artists at Painters Mill today (Friday) from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

Arena Players featured in "The Night Is My Undoing" are from (L) Bill Bush and Gorham Scott sharing the role of doctor; Zerita Shates and Debbie Washington (seated), sharing the role of housekeeper; and standing, Sandra Wooden and Shanda Welbourne in the role of maid.

This is the first in a series of student workshops that will allow young people to observe rehearsals, hold dialogues, and learn what goes into reaching a successful point in life.

Lambda Kappa Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. is sponsoring an Afro - Caribbean Experience: An African Fashion and Dance Extravaganza on Nov. 2 at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County Theatre Building.

The featured performers will be the Nefertian Queens and Princesses. Art work will be displayed in the lobby and a reception follows the performance. Event benefits the United Negro College Fund and tickets are available at the UMBC Box Office and the Black Student Union, 455-2405.

Agnes of God, the East Coast premiere of an electrifying new play by John Pielmeier previews at Center Stage (tonight) Oct. 31, opens Nov. 4 and runs through Dec. Originally presented as a staged reading at the O'Neill National Playwrights Conference and subsequently chosen as the co - winner of the Great American Play Contest at the Festival of New Plays at the Actors Theatre of Louisville, plays is directed by Center Stage artistic director Stan Wojewodski, Jr.

"Agnes of God" concerns an explosive conflict of wills between two women — a protective Mother Superior and a determine dcourt appointed psychiatrist — both obsessed with the fate of a young nun accused of murdering her baby on the night of its birth. Through this conflict, playwright Pielmeier presents an excoriating examination of the collision between faith and scientific method.

On Sunday Nov. 2 at 2:00 p.m. The Cloisters Children's Museum will present Benett Partlow in a pantomime performance. She will perform various skits that she designed and choreographed. A student of dance for many years, Ms. Partlow has studied at Loyola College and has given many performances throughout Baltimore and at the Cloisters.

William T. Brown is teacher of Theatre Arts and Associate Professor of Theatre in Scene Design and Construction at UMBC.

'Strange Bedfellows' opens season at UMBC

By Ida Peters

The UMBC Theatre Department opens its fall season with "Strange Bedfellows" a comedy by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements directed by Dr. Alice Robinson with sets designed by William T. Brown.

The play will be presented on the UMBC campus, 5401 Wilkens Ave., Oct. 30, 31, Nov. 1, 6, 7. Set in San Francisco in 1896, the play tells the story of the woman's suffragette movement that is sweeping the country. The result is a hilarious battle between the sexes.

Dr. Alice Robinson, the director has been with the Theatre Department of UMBC for 14 years. She has a Ph. D. from Stanford University and graduate work from the University of Kansas. Her credits include productions of "The Man Who Came To Dinner" and "The Night Thoreau Spent In Jail."

William T. Brown has designed the sets for "Strange Bedfellows". A native of Washington, D.C. he graduated from Armstrong High School, Howard University and has a Masters from Western Reserve University in Cleveland. He is married to Alfie Brown of Critic's Place who is Artistic Dean of the High School for Performing Arts. The Browns moved to Baltimore in 1960.

He has been a teacher of Theatre Arts and Associate Professor of Theatre in Scene Design and Construction for 10 years at UMBC. He has taught at Howard University and before coming to Baltimore was Technical Director and Designer for Karamu Theatre in Cleveland.

In Cleveland he was responsible for two theatres at the same time when Ron O'Neal and Robert Guillaume were actors there. His plays included "Raisin In the Sun", "The King and I".

He gives a lot of time to community work and works with the summer Youth Entitlement Program at Dunbar Cultural Arts Program teaching technical aspects of theatre. This summer they did "Godspell" and "Days of Absence".

Senator Crowmwell in "Strange Bedfellows" is played by Gary Corbin. Clarissa Blynn is played by Carolyn Spedden; Michael O'Connell is the son, Matthew; Barbara Warfield, the Senator's wife.

Mrs. Tillie Sparker is played by Lisa D. Hastye, from Landover, Md. and a sophomore. Phadelma Muhammed, plays Mrs. Gimbel; Samuel Adams, Ling and Jeania Cray, Beulah.

109 YEARS OLD NOV. 2 — Mrs. Annabelle Wells McDonald, born in Sumpter (now Lee) County, S.C., Nov. 2, 1870, has been a resident of Baltimore since 1925. (Left panel) She resides with her son, Thomas Wells McDonald who is seated with her. (Center Panel) Quite lively as ever, the attractive widow loves to read her Bible and credits living a Christian life as the key to longevity. (Right Panel) Also, as she smiles cheerfully, Mrs. McDonald says the main key is loving thy neighbor as thyself. Members of her Unity Methodist Church at Edmondson and Stricker have planned a Sunday 4 p.m. celebration at the church and invitations have gone out to family, friends and many persons from South Carolina.
