The 20 Grand Club, Bowleys Lane, was the scene on Saturday, March 7 for the Baltimore Rams' First Annual Disco-Fashion Extravaganza.

350 people gathered there to enjoy cocktails (open bar), munchies and dancing to the tunes of the 'Pockets' Band.

Highlight of the affair, which lasted from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. was the fashion segment.

The 'Black Menagerie,' a local 6 model fashion troupe, headed by Jerome Roles, aired fashions in casual, after 5 and evening wear for spring-summer 81.

Modeling, in addition to Roles, were Terras MaGruder, Winnie Avent, Delores Plummer, Marine Mitchell and Geraldine Young. Miss Mitchell was fashion coordinator. Miss Young was commentator.

The Baltimore Rams is a semi-pro football team, of nearly 50 members, many of whom try out for pro football.

Proceeds for the extravaganza will go to purchase new uniforms for them.

Officers are Leon Mitchell, president; Peter Drew, vice president and Jerome R. Roles, public relations officer.

The affair, the first for the group, was an unqualified success. Guests lingered following the fashion segment to dance the night away.

Everyone had a ball, and the Rams feel that their first event of this nature was very well received.

Chairperson was Jerome Mitchell.

Johnson, Audrey J. Davis, Anita F. Myers, Myrtle T. Faithful (founder); Ethel D. Hall, Emma Black Roberts, Ellen C. Johns and Precious Williams. Not pictured is Soror Elizabeth Demby.

The Alpha Zeta Chapter, Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc. recently celebrated 'Finer Womanhood Week' with a round of activities which actually spanned a three-week period.

Zeta Phi Beta, founded 60 years ago is a sorority which devotes itself to sisterhood, finer womanhood, scholarship and service to mankind.

Their slate of activities began with the sorors worshipping together on Sunday, March 22 at the Trinity Presbyterian Church.

On Sunday, March 1, their Finer Womanhood Tea was held at Providence Baptist Church, Pennsylvania and Lafayette Aves. at 4 p.m.

Theme for the tea was "Zetas Working Together Rendering Service to Improve The Human Condition."

Following the musical interlude by Maxine C. Jones, the processional, invocation by the Rev. Marcus Wood, church pastor, greetings by Bernice White, tea chair and presiding officer, and the Occasion given by Linda J. Brown, guests got a real treat.

Members of the Morgan Choir (introduced by Sandra E. East, Chapter basileus) entertained with an inspirational musical soiree, which included selections from the works of Handel, Bach and Schumann, as well as many others.

Nathan Carter is director; Jimmy Thomas and Stanley Thurston the choral assistants and accompanist.

Featured soloists were James Bradley and Elizabeth Hogue.

Presentation of the Zeta Awards was done by Anne Moreland and Barbara Briscoe.

Clifford Lonesome feted at retirement celebration

By Pattie Hodges
AFRO Staff Writer

Recently Major Clifford L. Lonesome was feted on his retirement from Patuxent Institute, where he had been employed since February, 1955 and where he had served as major since July, 1971.

Major Lonesome was one of the black officers in Corrections in the state and the first black correctional officer at Patuxent. The celebration honoring him was a buffet dinner hosted at LaFontaine Bleu, Glen Burnie on February 27, from 7 until 11 p.m. Nearly 150 guests and family members attended.

During the evening's festivities, there was a program highlighting his years of service at Patuxent which was presented by Patuxent staffers.

Major Clifford Johnson presided. The invocation was done by Martin Salisbury, director of Education, at Patuxent. Greetings were extended by Forest Calhoun, former superintendent of Patuxent Institute.

Remarks of commendation were made by present director, Dr. Norma Gluckstern. Other remarks of congratulations and commendation were made by Ralph Packard, present Patuxent superintendent; Dr. Michael Bisco, associate director, Treatment; Jack Murray, associate director, Behavorial Science and J. Brown Hardy, deputy secretary of Safety and Correctional Services.

Major Lonesome received a Citation of Commendation for years of service from Governor Harry Hughes. He was presented his badge and nameplate by Sgt. Cleophus Hackett.

In addition he received many other gifts and cards of congratulations.

Major Lonesome was overwhelmed with joy and gratefulness as he expressed his thanks to all.

Chair for the affair was Mrs. Rosalie Cox, officer supervisor, Patuxent Institute.

Columbia Epicureans' Founders' Day

One way of beating the winter doldrums is to invite a group of close friends to "eat, drink, and be merry."

The Columbia, Maryland branch of National Epicureans, Inc. decided on this method several weeks ago when guests were invited from the Baltimore and Washington areas to help them celebrate Founders' Day.

Red, white and blue decorations tied this affair into the patriotic theme of the season. Delicious tidbits were provided by the
