Sigma Scene

In celebration of Sigma Week on Sunday, March 8, Alpha Alpha Sigma of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority chose "Leadership through Reactivation" as their theme of action.

As the first step toward this goal, the combined Baltimore Chapters: Alpha Alpha Sigma, Beta Tau, Gamma Phi, Eta Xi, and Gamma Mu invited all Sigma Women to a Sigma Luncheon at La Paragone Caterers on Forest Park Avenue.

Janet Cherry, presider for this fruitful event, presented the occasion with an original poem signifying sisterly love and togetherness. Myra Curtis and Eldora brought greetings.

Soror Curtis appealed to all Sigmas assembled to join the Sigma membership Swaad and start Reactivation now. She emphasized that if we are to survive and continue in the mainstream of Greek letter and other service organizations in our society, we must at least increase our active membership.

She was First, we must motivate. Secondly, we must activate. Thirdly, we must retain. We felt that all three steps had been accomplished as she drew a round of applause.

After the undergraduates sang a timely tune, Veronica Dingle gave the invocation.

Luncheon was served and the undergraduates returned with more entertainment: Lisa Hammack solo; Vanilla Perkins, Eldora Ben, Janet Cherry, Cheri Thomas, Christel Boone - original skit Cheri Thomas - interpretive dance.

Mary West Miller, a long time member and dramatic actor of the Arena Players, Inc., recited Langston Hughes immortal poem "The Negro Mother."

Sharon Jones gave special recognition and presentations to eight sorors: Martha Allen for several years as admisor to Beta Tau; Betty Jo Cashier - consistency in providing refreshments at meetings; Myra Curtis - five years as chairperson for Hawaiian LUAU; Gladys Brown (former basileus) Chairperson - "Day at the Races"; "Hortense Franklin - public relations? Alice Lee - ability to inspire, reactivate, show sisterly love and concern; Geraldine Dobson - a former basileus Hawaiian Luau; Catherine Moyer sisterly hospitality.

FOR THIS HOMECOMING EVENT Martha Allen gifted each inactive soror with a yellow tea rose and time to express herself. Several pledged support and reactivation of membership.

Rededication was in order as Delores Routh and Veronica Dingle lead the meditation on the sorority pledge.

Basileus Alice Lee received lous applause as she reflected on the theme and encouraged us with words of saterly love — "There is no door that love will not open.

There is no problem that love will not solve. There is no sister that love cannot reach.

The undergraduate step highlighted the luncheon and was climaxed when all sorors joined in a circle for "Sigma Line."

The energy and enthusiasm generated was indeed contagious. The luncheon ended with satisfaction and enjoyment among sosors.

The Sigma Week committee included Mabel Marbrey, Sharon Jones, Veronica Dingle, Delores Routh, Martha Allen, Emily Bryant, Eliza Diggs, Myra Curtis - chairperson, Alice Sue Lee, basileus.

Zetas

Award winners were Rosetta F. Sands, assistant professor, Registered Nurse Program, Univ. of Md., Woman of the Year; Roberta W. Clark, retired educator, Zeta of the Year; Margaret C. Wicks, Director of Education and Youth Services, Park Hts. Community Corp who got the Community Service Award and Donna Alston, both a senior at Western High and enrolled in a psychology course at CCB Girl of the Year.

Following the program, guests enjoyed refreshments in the lower auditorium.

On Saturday, March 7 the Chapter honored their retired sorors (most of whom are former educators) at a Dedicatory Luncheon at the Holiday Inn, Harborplace.

Over 200 guests enjoyed a delicious buffet and had their spirits lifted with the resonant, rich lyric soprano voice of soror Alma G. Macer, a teacher at the GATE School, who did "A City Called Heaven" and "Morning", accompanied by John Miller, Music Department, Calverton Jr. High.

Each table bore the Zeta symbol (with the Zeta's familiar blue and white) and a retiree's name.

Soror Carrie D. Jackson, who presided, gave a unique presentation of the retirees, combining qualities of their zodiac signs with their educational, career, family and church life, along with the other community and civic activities and hobbies and their service to the sorority and positions held and their post retirement activities.

It was interesting because as she gave each presentation, guests had fun guessing who was she was speaking of many successes before she asked the retiree to stand.

The retirees, who wore white carnation corsages and received most lovely gifts and decorative Zeta Pins were Sorors Audrey J. Davis, Ethel D. Jones, Jane U. Harrison, Helen C. Johns, Doris D. Johnson, Emma Black Roberts, Anita F. Myers. Precious Williams and Elizabeth Dorsey. Soror Demby was unable to attend.

The Occasion of Retiring had been given by Soror Jackson and an inspirational poem by Helen Steiner Rice was read and dedicated to the retirees by Basileus Sandra East.

After words of gratitude from the retirees, the sorors did their National Sorority Song.

Final activities for the Zeta celebration were a Zeta Rama (night of games on March 13 at Soror Elise Collier's lovely Southgreen Rd. home, which included a sumptuous repast, and a visit by the sorors to the Annie Mae Hunter Home for the Blind on March 14, during which they gave a contribution to the Center, gifts to the residents and a short program of songs.

The next Zeta activity is their Annual Dinner Dancr to be held at Martin's West May 8 1981.

Chair for the Finer Womanhood Tea was Soror Bernice Whites, assisted by co-chair, Linda J. Brown. Soror Mary C. Frazier was chair for the Dedicatory Luncheon.
