Joe Louis to be buried in Arlington

President Reagan has waived eligibility requirements to permit Joe Louis, who held the world heavyweight boxing championship longer than anyone in history, to be buried in Arlington National Cemetery, it was learned Wednesday.

An administration official said that Reagan, who knew Louis personally, directed that an exception be made to permit the former boxing champion to be buried in the military cemetery in Arlington.

He said Reagan would make an official announcement Thursday.

The official said Louis, who served in the Army during World War II and fought exhibitions for servicemen, would be the 39th exception to the eligibility criteria for burial in Arlington.

Louis died of a heart attack Sunday at the age of 66 in Las Vegas.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., Reagan's close friend and former campaign manager, and Robert Wald, president of Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, recommended that Louis, one of the nation's greatest sports heroes, be buried in the final resting place of many of the nation's war heroes.

General of the Armies Omar Bradley was buried there Tuesday.

Because of the lack of space, eligibility regulations for burial in Arlington were tightened in 1977.

President Reagan lauds Joe Louis

WASHINGTON — President Reagan Monday praised "my friend" Joe Louis, the boxing great who died Sunday, and called him "a source of pride and inspiration to millions of white and black people around the world."

"I was privileged and will always be grateful to have had Joe Louis as my friend," said the president in a statement released by the White House.

"The son of an Alabama sharecropper, Joe Louis fought his way to the top of professional boxing and into the hearts of millions of Americans," the statement said.

"Out of the ring, he was a considerate and soft-spoken man; inside the ring, his courage, strength and consummate skill wrote a unique and unforgettable chapter in sports history.

"But Joe Louis was more than a sports legend — his career was an indictment of racial bigotry and a source of pride and inspiration to millions of white and black people around the world.

In fact, many new brands have been introduced since, including some "ultra low tars." But despite the new entries, CARLTON has maintained its leadership position—CARLTON still lowest.

Carlton is lowest.

35th Anniversary Celebration of the Birthday Circle was a grand occasion

Longtime friends gather at banquet

It's always fair weather when good friends get together. So it was last week when the Birthday Circle met for the 35th Anniversary Celebration. Although a spring rain came down softly that evening, the banquet was packed to capacity with the group's near 100 members and scores of their guests.

The Birthday Circle is one of the most popular clubs of Sharon Baptist Church. Dr. James L. Moore, pastor and founder held the first meeting when he first went to head Sharon.

In his summary speech at the 35th party Dr. Moore sent the members off to another happy year by saying "We have enjoyed good fellowship, good food and good friends."

Dr. Ralph Quarles, guest speaker, took as his theme, "Christ, the Challenge to a Desperate World."

Mrs. Beatrice Creigler presided. Mrs. Esther P. Brooks trustee gave the occasion; Miss Marjorie Moore the welcome address with response by Mrs. Helen Moore of Perkins Square Baptist Church and music by Misses Janet Perry and Donna L. Hayes, soloists.

Former presidents were given corsages by Mrs. Deloris Council. Trustee Theron Quarles introduced the speaker. Presentations were by Trustee Clara Lancaster.

HISTORY

Thirty - Five years ago, a young man with a vision was elected third pastor of Sharon Baptist Church. Dr. Moore had many dreams. Since he was anxious to fellowship with his new parishioners and wanted them to enjoy a closer relationship with each other, he fulfilled one of his dreams by organizing the Birthday Circle.

Each person young or old was invited to join. Everyone has a birthday.

Dr. Moore believes in development of the total man, mind, body and spirit. Therefore, the purpose of the Circle was to prepare each person for leadership.

The plan was to have a president for each month.

Each month's group conducts worship services, programs. It was Dr. Moore's desire that work done in the small groups would be a training situation and the experience gained would prepare each person to serve with far larger responsibilities where ever needed in the church.

Some of the original members are now deceased but there are many still belonging who have been with the Circle since the first day.

In 35 years the Circle has had six presidents. Following the late Mrs. Sallie Seaborne were Mesdames L. Brown, Eva Wilson, Georgianna Scott, Lucy Green and the current president, Clara Lancaster.

HAPPINESS IS a gift for the founder Dr. James L. Moore, Sharon Baptist pastor, from Birthday Circle president Miss Clara Lancaster.

FORMER PRESIDENTS who were recipients of corsages, Mesdames Lucy Green, Eva Wilson, Delores Council making the presentations and Virginia Brown.

TICKET COMMITTEE — Mesdames Esther Brooks, Mrs. Violet Woodson, Minerva Lewis and Ruth Moore.

BIRTHDAY CIRCLE OFFICERS — MESDAMES Doris Wilson, Eva Wilson, Minerva Lewis, Catherine Harris, Ruth Moore, Clara Lancaster, Myrtle Hubbard and Willie M. Gray.

DR. RALPH QUARLES and family, Miss Daphne Quarles, daughter; Randall Quarles, son and Mrs. Mary B. Quarles, wife.

THE QUARLES FAMILY MEMBERS AND THEIR FRIENDS

GUESTS — Miss Marjorie Moore, Theron Quarles, brother of the guest speaker; Miss Clara Lancaster and Mrs. Helen Moore.

PROGRAM PARTICIPANTS included Mistress of Ceremonies Beatrice Creigler, Trustee Clara Lancaster, president; Dr. James L. Moore, invocation and blessing; Janet Perry, soloist and Esther Brooks, for the occasion.
