Remember the Starlight, the Avalon and summer trips to Brown's Grove?

By Ida Peters

Captain George Brown, owner of excursion boats and Brown's Grove, 60 years ago had one of the top summer attractions on the Eastern Seaboard. He came to Baltimore in 1883 penniless.

When he died in 1935, his steamer, the Avalon, docked at the foot of Ann Street near Broadway and his Brown's Grove on Rock Creek in Anne Arundel County, was an institution that appealed to all ages and classes of society.

Captain Brown, his steamers and his grove played a significant role in the lives of Baltimoreans, young, middle aged and old.

It is said he was financier to Baltimore churches; impersario to the pleasure seekers; summer Santa Claus to the kiddies, and Dan Cupid to lovers. He was a friend of sinners and Christians, clergyman and dance promoters the upper crust and the lower.

Baltimoreans loved him and trusted him. His excursion boat and the grove at the end were a rendezvous from the heat. From 1906 to 1935, more than 3.5 million people traveled on his steamers.

Churches bought their winter coal by sponsoring excursions down the bay. Old folks found solace in the cooling breezes and children romped the decks in sweet release from hot marble steps and crowded unair-conditioned houses.

Lovers leaned over the rail and whispered sweet nothings and on the decks below, the band blared and dancers Lindy Hopped until they dropped.

Sixty years ago, Baltimoreans flocked to Brown's Grove almost like they do today Martin's West. After he died in 1935, Baltimoreans turned to Carr's and Sparrow's Beaches to escape the heat.

Captain George Brown came to Baltimore penniless in 1883. His first job was hauling coal. He then worked in the engineering company of J.S. Faring Co. He saved $1,500 by hard work and in 1906 with a man named Hanks Baden, obtained charter priveleges on the Steamer Dr. J.W. Newbill, which carried 200 passengers.

He lost his partner Hanks Baden and lost the Newbill. The next year, he charted the Granite City steamer and paid $3,200 for its use. In 1908, he bought this boat for $10,000 and in 1909 renamed it The Starlight and rebuilt it at a cost of $14,000 with a capacity for 550 passengers.

In 1912, Captain Brown paid off all his mortgages and bought a tract of 45 acres on Rock Creek in Anne Arundel County for Brown's Grove. To give you some idea of the amount of money involved, his interest charges ran about $9,876, according to AFRO files.

November 22, 1914, the Starlight burned to the ground. The boat was partially covered by insurance and arson was suspected. Starlight was valued at $40,000.

He purchased a new steamer Starlight which he operated for 10 years. Then he purchased a more luxurious vessel the S.S. Favorite.

In April, 1928, he purchased and had built a new steamship in Connecticut, the S.S. South Shore for $75,000 which was wrecked off Atlantic City, in a storm, on way to Baltimore delivery.

In 1929, Captain Brown purchased the S.S. Avalon the largest and best equipped of all his vessels.

Sometime during the 1930's, Captain Brown bought the York Hotel, mortgaging the Avalon for $25,000 to make the purchase.

At the time of his death, November, 1935 he had paid back half the mortgage.

His funeral was held November 30, 1935 after an illness of a year he died at Baltimore's Marine Hospital.

He was a large contributor to the missionary work of the late Bishop W. Sampon Brooks and a trustee of Cosmopolitan Community Church. He served on the board of the YMCA. He was the first black man to become a member of the Master's, Mates and Pilots Association.

Captain Brown was buried with full Masonic honors conducted by Grand Master Willard W. Allen.

He was buried from Cosmopolitan Community Church (now Douglas Memorial) with the Rev. Frederick Douglas officiating. Music was by the Metropolitan Church Choir.

His body was interred at Mt. Calvery Cemetary. He was survived by his wife, Clare V. Hare Brown of Holland, Va. whom he married in 1927.

Captain George Brown was one of the leading businessmen of his day and owned the York Hotel as well as Brown's Grove and excursion boats. Here he is shown (date unknown) probably 1918 with Booker T. Washington here for convention of National Negro Business League. Above from left, Bernard Taylor, caterer (2nd), Rev. Ernest Lyons, John H. Murphy Sr., founder, AFRO-AMERICAN Newspapers; Dr. Mason Hawkins, principal, Douglass High School and on the end, Capt. George Brown.

The Avalon, right, was bought by Capt. Brown in 1929 and operated for six years. Other boats were S.S. Dr. J. W. Newbill in 1906 and the S.S. Starlight, 1908 until it burned in 1914.

Brown's Grove (top) was a tree shaded on Rock Creek in Anne Arundel County. It has a racer dip, swings, picnic grounds and pavilion for dancing. Below, Douglass High students had a picnic June 29, 1929. From left, Elizabeth Hardy, Henrietta Brown, Clementine Redmond, Helen Trigg, Rosetta Murray and Reginald Watts. Note hats, high heels and pearls.

Sylvester of First Class marries Sydney, Sunday

Mrs. Delores Deshields has sent out invitations to the wedding of her daughter Miss Sydney Deshields to Sylvester R. Redditt, member of the singing group First Class for Sunday, June 7, 1 p.m. at New Frontiers Church, 5200 the Alameda. He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester R. Redditt, Sr.

The engaged couple visited the AFRO this week to talk about their wedding plans. Members of First Class are back in Baltimore having just completed a European tour. They have completed their new album and their new single "Don't Listen To Your Friends" will be released soon. Starting June 8, First Class is appearing at The Point After.

The happy couple say they have been knowing each other for four years. Both agree they first started dating after a show at New York's Leviticus.

The bride will wear a long white gown with a belt picking up the pastel colors of her bridesmaids gowns. Members of the bridegroom's party will be members of First Class and they will wear white Tux.

Matron of honor will be Wanda Deshields. Bridesmaids are Brenda Alston, Iva Timmons, LaVerne Boston, Sonia Redditt. Flower bearers are Daniel Deshields and Keisah Redditt. Ring bearer is Antoine Redditt.

Best man is Harold Bell. Ushers are Tony Yarborough, Fred Marshall Brown and Charles Hillery.

'One Mo Time' in D.C.

"Everybody Loves My Baby." Above, Deborah Burrell, Sandra Reaves-Phillips, Alan Weeks and Jackee Harry.

Get ready for singin', dancin' and lots of laughs as the National Theatre hosts the national touring company of the delightful musical comedy "One Mo' Time!" for six weeks beginning Tuesday, June 16.

A musical tribute to 1920's jazz and vaudeville in New Orleans, "One Mo' Tome!" recreates a snazzy night at the Lyric Theatre in New Orleans where nightly the likes of Bessie Smith, Ma Rainey and Bert Williams entertained enthralled audiences.

The zesty musical has a performance schedule beginning with a preview Tuesday, June 16 at 8 p.m., and a press opening on Wednesday.

Alan Weeks, as papa Du, comes directly to "One Mo' Time!" from starring in Broadway's hit "Ain't Misbehavin'". He's been "Hopscopin'" his way through the role of Company Manager, thrilling audiences in Chicago and Philadelphia. Sandra Reaves-Phillips, as the big, beautiful Bertha Williams, struts her stuff as the leader of the "Big Bertha Touring Company". Deborah Burrell is the sweet and lovely Thelma, and Jackee Harry turns the crowd loose with her comedy antics as Ma Reed.

"One Mo' Time!" also features special artists, the legendary Jabbo Smith, who lights up the stage with his authentic trumpet and vocal style of the era of the 1920's. Musical favorites in "One Mo' Time!" include "C.C. Rider", "Kitchen Man", "Everybody Loves My Baby", "A Hot Time In The Old Town Tonight" and more!.

What happened to Brown's Grove and the Avalon?

The AFRO for February 8, 1936 reports that the Avalon and Brown's Grove would be auctioned on February 13, 1936 to satisfy a balance of $11,500 due on a $25,000 mortagages which Captain Brown placed on the properties to purchase the York Hotel.

Realtor Henry Kolb who owned the mortgages, public auction. In July 1936, the racer dip ride burned to the ground in a spectacular fire seen for 15 miles.

Sunny Sundays return

The sun shines this summer at the Inner Harbor when the popular weekend series of "Sunny Sunday's returns on June 7 for the ninth year of celebration.

Scheduled on sunny Sundays from noon to 5 p.m., "Sunday Sundays" will bring casual haborside recreation and entertainment for the entire family on June 7, July 5, July 19, August 9, August 16 and August 23.

The "Sunny Sundays" programs will feature a series of mini-fairs and happenings ranging from a day of volleyball and dance to a "Country Sunday".

The fairs will include exhibits by local artists and craftspeople. Among their many creative specialities will be dried and silk floral arrangements, handmade pottery, oil paintings, photography, macrame and wooden dolls. These items and more will be available for purchase. In addition, strolling musicians will add a musical touch to each "Sunny Sundays".

These weekend fiestas open with "Sunny Sundance", a day of dance. Showtime begins at 2 p.m. at the Harry D. Kaufman south shore Pavilion of the Inner Harbor.

For more information on "Sunny Sundays" call the Baltimore Office of Promotion and Tourism at 685-TOUR (8687).
