Kimberly Ann Brooks did an original dramatic presentation "Daddy, You're Gone" (entered around a girl talking to her deceased father in the funeral home) during which she cried (real tears) and walked away with this year's 'Miss Talented Teen Maryland' title.

The Pageant, held at the Holiday Inn Downtown, Sunday, June 14, attracted several hundred parents, friends and supporters who audienced the 16 lovely contestants as they went through their paces in drama, singing and dancing.

Their preview - a dance and song routine, was lively and spirited.

City Councilman Kweisi Mfume emceed the Pageant, during which the contestants were judged in three areas — appearance, personality and achievement and performing talent, with talent being the most heavily weighted area.

The Official welcome was by Mary Clayburn, public service director, WWIN Radio.

Representing Mayor Schaefer was Floraine Applefeld, director of Baltimore's Best, who presented the 'Miss Baltimore Best' queen and a proclamation from the mayor declaring June 14 'Miss Talented Teen Maryland Day' in Baltimore.

In addition to Miss Brooks (the winner) other contestants and their talents were Shirley K. Fleming (tap dancing), Sharon Washington (drama); Janice McLeane (tap dancing); Renee Murray (singing); Letricia Y. Loftin (singing); Wendy Wright (dancing); Valencia Carter (singing); Edith Lawson (dancing and acrobatics); Patrice Day (singing); Nicole Bell (dancing); Dorhas Garey (singing); Karla McCullers (drama); Sohntowna Todd (drama); Sheronda Sands (singing) and Cynthia Carter (singing).

Edith Lawson was spectacular in her dancing-acrobatics routine.

Fourth runner-up was Nicole Bell, who received a scholarship award from the Columbia Links.

Third runner-up was Sheronda Sands, who was presented a scholarship award from the Columbia AKA's.

Second runner-up was Renee Murray, who received a monetary award from M's Delores Addison, (Addison Enterprise).

First runner-up was Dorhas Garey who received the Columbia Deltas scholarship award.

All of the runners-up received trophies and nosegays of colorful carnations.

Music was provided by Baltimore's own Soft Tones Band and Marvin Brown, lead singer did a beautifully touching medley of songs dedicated to all of the contestants.

Leatrice Coleman, the 1980 queen gave her glowing experiences as 1980 Miss Talented Teen Maryland, sang with style 'Send in the Clowns' (her 1980 winning talent) and crowned the new queen.

Voted 'Miss Congeniality by her Pageant peers was Shirley Fleming.

Prior to the final awards Pinnie L. Ross, executive producer of the Pageant, received a gift from the contestants, as did her associate Director Miss Marti Franklin.

Mrs. Ross thanked all who had helped to make the Pageant a success, with special thanks going to Mrs. Maggie Watkins and Mrs. Rosa Clanton, Miss Marcia Faulkner, Robert Harper (of Harper's Cleaners) and Crystal Clear (of the Travis Winkey Modeling Studio) who was makeup artist for the girls.

Miss Brooks, as the new 'Miss Talented Teen Maryland 1981' will go to New York from July 30 until August 8 to the Waldorf Astoria, where she will compete for the national title.

She also received, in addition to her crown, sach, flowers, a scholarship award, and as reigning queen will have many travel and personal appearance experiences.

She is the daughter of Mr. and

John Holmes Graduation Dinner

Celebrations are abundant in Baltimore following the many graduations.

High on the list for celebration was the graduation dinner party hosted recently for John A. Holmes, son of Mrs. Doris Holmes of this city at the Holiday Inn Belmont from 6 until p.m.

John or John - John as he is fondly called, had earlier that day graduated from Mt. St. Joseph High School at impressive ceremonies held at the Cathedral of Mary Our Queen, on Charles St.

More than 125 family members, friends and fellow graduates came out to celebrate with him, all looking very stylish — the young ladies in their lovely white dresses and the fellows in their tuxedos.

Featured were a hearty sit - down dinner, and later a disco dancing for the young folks with music provided by Anderson Ward.

There was lots of picture - taking and party patter during the festivities.

John was honored by a tribute from one of his friends Talmira Hill, who read an original poem (dedicated to him on Friendship.

He cut a huge sheet cake inscribed "Congratulations, John - John."

John, who gave remarks of thanks prior to the dancing, will be attending the University of Md, in Sept., '81, majoring in computer science.
