THE LIVING CHURCH

157 youth attend Gillis vacation bible school

GETTING TO KNOW each other — Melvina Chase and Jacquetta Green, 8, are getting to know each other at Gillis Memorial vacation Bible school while playing a hand game.

For 10 years, Gillis Memorial Christian Community Church, 4016 Park Heights Ave., has been having vacation Bible School.

The Rev. Theodore Jackson Jr., pastor of the church said the Bible school is open to children and adults. The youngest member is two-years-old and several senior citizen members have also attended.

Classes were held for two weeks from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and a free lunch was served. Miss Carolyn Bruce was the coordinator. The 157 children attended Bible class and arts and craft classes.

Most of the teachers are ministers, missionaries and educators who are members of Gillis.

Rev. Jackson said, "We would like to extend the time period of our Bible school but due to funds and the staff members who have other commitments, it is our hope that we will be able to continue and advance this program every year. The annual church picnic will be held Saturday, July 18.

ARTS AND CRAFT classes were also held at Gillis Memorial Vacation Bible School. Shown from (L) painting pictures are Melisa Sheppard, George Matthews and Lorenzo Williams.

BIBLE CLASS was one of the classes that was taught at Gillis Memorial Christian Community Church, Vacation Bible School. The Rev. Theodore Jackson Jr., is pastor. An active member of Gillis is shown reading the Bible to the students.
