Jones family reunion

The first family reunion of the late Dennis and Geneva Jones, of South Carolina, was held by their descendants Saturday, July 25 and Sunday, July 26, at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, Route 40 West.

The eldest family member, is Simon T. Jones (79) son of the matriach and patriach and the youngest is Tina Moses, (1 year) a great - granddaughter.

There were four generations in attendance, 22 children with 45 grandchildren, 50 great - grandchildren and 10 great - great grandchildren.

There were also seven states represented — North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and New York, with more than 200 gathering for the occasion.

The immediate family members were Simon T. Jones, New Jersey; Sam F. Jones, Virginia; Susan J. Branch and Geneva J. Davis, New Jersey; George W. Jones, South Carolina; Marie J. Moses, North Carolina; James Jones, New Jersey, and Robert Jones, New York.

After the passing of Geneva (original matriach), Dennis remarried. From this union he and Mrs. Mattie Jones were blessed with five more children, of which Susan J. Branch is the 20th child of the clan and the oldest living female family member.

There were presentations to Simon T. Jones which were accepted by the youngest daughter Geneva J. Davis, as Mr. Jones was unable to attend due to illness.

Other presentations were made to Susan J. Branch, coordinator of the reunion, and Mrs. Lelia E. Jones, a sister - in - law who has been like a mother and a sister to the family.

While in Charm City, many family members went on tours of the city, including, of course, Harborplace, and on shopping trips, mainly to Westview Mall.

On Sunday, family members gathered at Southern Baptist Church for 11 a.m. worship service before departure for their homes.

Sir William Arthur Lewis, West Indian-born British economist, in 1979 became the first Black to win a Nobel Prise—for economics—in a category other than peace.

No response on 'alternative' franchising plan

The president of a cable television company here said this week that he has not received a response from the mayor's office on his alternative franchising plan for Baltimore city.

Lester Green, president and owner of Cable Communication System, Inc., sent an "alternative" plan to the mayor last month suggesting that the joint venture-single franchise plan opted by the city be manuevered in such a way that the uniformity the mayor reportedly wants can be maintained, but multiple franchises eventually be awarded.

Under the guidelines of Green's plan, each component of a joint venture would have complete control for an assigned area of cable installation. The initial plan would in fact call for a joint venture set-up, with a major company and one or more minority companies forming the partnership.

Green's plan specifically states that the request for proposal (RFP) be drafted in such a way to allow the same number of franchises as there are defined areas of business responsibility.

After installation of the system, however, "the control and ownership of the franchise for each individual area" would then pass on to the company in the joint venture that had had specific responsibility for the area in question.

The plan, Green maintained, would "ensure the continuation of a city-wide CATV system" that is in accordance with the mayor's wishes for uniformity in technology, rates and services.

An official of Cox Broadcasting Company, approached with Green's plan, received the conception with little enthusiasm, stating that it would have to be up to the city to decide on its feasibility. The company declined saying directly whether or not it was in favor or opposed to the plan, but suggested that perhaps there might be some legalities that would prevent such a plan from being implemented.

Green said, however, that he sees no legal impediments. The final determination on such impediments will have to be decided by the mayor's office.

The issue of cable ownership has hotly divided the city, with black leaders charging overt racial discrimination on the part of the city in its recommendation that a single company be awarded the cable franchise here.

Green's plan, to date, is the only alternative to the plan recommended by the CATV Commission. A final recommendation is due to be released soon.

Baltimore woman named deputy director

Barbara Smith Hamer

Native Baltimorean, Barbara Smith Hamer, will leave her current job as director of administration and management of the Baltimore City Health Department's Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Addictions Division, to assume a position with the State of Maryland in September.

In her new post as Deputy Director of the Mental Hygiene Administration of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, Mrs. Hamer will assist the director in the administration and the management of the more than $120 million budget of the Mental Hygiene Administration.

That department is responsible for 11 hospitals and more than 65 community mental health service programs.

Mrs. Hamer said she was very pleased to have been selected as deputy director. The job means a lot of work, "but will be a worthwhile effort."

"It's sort of a landmark and reflects a number of changes with the emphasis on persons with an administrative background," she said.

Most of Mrs. Hamer's professional experience, since 1963, has been in the administrative area, as well as in education and training within the field of community mental health.

Prior to joining the Baltimore Health Department in 1978, she was Chief of Service at Bronx Psychiatric Center and Meyer-Manhattan Psychiatric Center in New York City.

During Mrs. Hamer's stint at Beth Israel Medical Center in New York in 1967, she assisted in the development of a pioneering methodone maintenance program at the hospital.

Mrs. Hamer is a 1963 graduate of Villanova University. She received a graduate degree in psychiatric nursing at New York University. Washington Square and later became an instructor in the University's graduate psychiatric nursing program.

Reward offered for thief

A 39-year-old Northwest Baltimore woman is offering a $100 reward for the capture of a pistol toting bike thief and the return of her 12-speed bicycle, stolen during a daylight robbery July 30.

Helen Cox, of the 3900 block of Reisterstown Road, said she and her daughter, Dona, 9, were sitting on a street curb in front of the Malcolm X Elementary School on Shirley Avenue when a man, carrying a plain brown bag walked past them shortly before 7 p.m.

Anyone with information about the bicycle thief or Mrs. Cox's bicycle should call the Baltimore City Police Department.
