1300 at International Fashion Show

By Pinnie L. Ross

It was a rainy afternoon on Sunday, Oct. 25, but the misty fog didn't hinder the guests from viewing a large ice cube sculpture placed in front of the Murphy Fine Arts Auditorium as they entered the building to witness the Second Annual International Designer's Fashion Show presented by our own Baltimore - born Travis Winkey. "In Person" was the theme of the International show.

At 1 p.m. a VIP reception was held in the lobby which lasted until 3 p.m. show time.

Councilman Kweisi M. Fume, Committee coordinator served as emcee for the show, which opened with a performance by The Pop Locker Dancers which captured the thirteen hundred audience.

The Rev. Willie Ray gave the invocation. Dr. Leslie King Hammond, Dean of Graduate Students at Maryland Institute gave background information on Winkey.

Next to come forward was the Honorable Mayor William Donald Schaefer. He had this to say about Winkey: "You know there have been lots of people that have come to me and have promised to do big things for the city of Baltimore, and it never happened." Then he seriously said, "And in came Travis years ago, saying what he would do. I thought it was just another promise, but what he has promised he did. I am proud to be his friend. He has brought International to Maryland." Then he presented a proclamation to him.

Mr. Schaefer stayed until the International Show was nearly over. Also representing the Mayor's office was Norman Reed who brought greetings on behalf of the council. Reed praised Winkey for his great ideals that had materialized.

Mrs. Gloria Luskins, Chairperson for the fashion show also praised Winkey for his concern for young people and a fine job he is doing for the State of Maryland. She was presented a bouquet of flowers. Mrs. Leslie Hammond also received flowers.

All 50 committee members were given carnations, including Miss Diasa Garey, first runnerup in the Miss Talented Teen Maryland Pageant.

The Talented Miss Brenda Alford sang the National Anthem.

The audience yelled and screamed when the show opened at 3:30.

The Travis Winkey models in a formation of the letter V with Travis himself at the point of the letter, in slow motion, did a choreographed number holding red, white and blue streamers. Just prior to the number the audience was asked to wave the streamers with the group simultaneously and we did as America The Beautiful was played. What a beautiful sight to see.

Designer M. JourDell, Melinda and Delia came from the Phillipines for the showing of their silks, georgettes, hand - painted fabrics, metallic and quianas with lots of black telling the whole story.

Some designers went velvet tops with victorian padded shoulders.

Another designer was talented young Gary Juon Chandler, native of Baltimore who showed outstanding designs. He holds a graduate degree in Fashion Merchandising and Buying from FIT which carries a line of garments nationwide in Macy's Department Store and shown in Essence, Blacktress and Dawn Magazines and touring fashion capitals of Europe with the Winkey Company.

Another was the famous renowned designer, John Haggin, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., whose first collection put him on the 'leap to success. He received accolades from editors of Vogue, Harper's Bazaar and Woman's Wear Daily, which led his collection to be placed in such stores as Bloomingdales, Bonwit Teller, B. Altman's. He was nominated for the prestigious fashion award, the Coty American Fashion Critics Award in 1981, 'Famed Black Designer of the Year.' Haggin showed playtime casual wear in stripes to fabulous sensuous evening wear.

Gail from Boston presented her beautiful collection. Baltimore's own new designer, Travis Winkey presented a collection of uncomplicated designs that have taken the East Coast by surprise.

His line of garments consisted of chiffons in colors of Red, Black and Gold, chiffon, satin and Quianas, and they couldn't have been modeled on any other models to do them justice then those fabulous Winkey models headed by the The Lady Crystal Clear Associate Director, and out little cute Charlie L. Gray. They are all beautiful models.

Those male models are much too much. Headed by handsome Elliott Wallace they included Frank Williams, Stevie Stevenson, Andre Bartell and Dwone Williamson plus Winkey's handsome models.

Cejus, another outstanding designer who has been designing men's wear for 16 years, participated in the fashion show. I call him the young designer who is superb for men's wear. His detailing is exquisite.

Designer John Haggin brought two of his house models from Paris to participate in the show. There were models from several states come to view the show.

All guests lodged at the New Hyatt Regency and their itinerary included a complete tour of Baltimore.

Mrs. Doloraine Applefield, representative from the Mayor's office presented an honorary citizenship to John Haggin and Gail P. Krukonis.

A special production was presented for the Mayor, titled "We Thank You Mayor" and a salute to all of the sponsors who helped sponsor the International Show. They were Anheuser Busch, Mr. Fred Brown, Manager, Fulla Wave Hair product, Mr. Edgar Gardner and Mr. Kelly Murphy and others.

Travis (cuff note) I call him my adopted son, a young man I've known since 1965 when he did his first fashion show at the YWCA with my group, very aggressive and served as my assistant director for fashions and the pageant for years.

He is an unselfish person, a young man with a light and open heart, and dedicated to the fashion industry.

Baltimore, stand back and let him pass, because he is on his way and don't try to deter him because what he is doing is for the betterment of the fashion industry in the Charm Center of Baltimore. Just watch him and cooperate with him because he is going to put Baltimore further on the map. God Bless You my child, we are in your corner one hundred percent.

Rev. Mrs. Murray honored at Birthday testimonial

By Marjorie R. Green

Adopted family members and friends of the Rev. Mrs. Inez Murray gathered in the Tower Room of the Senior Citizens Apartment Building on the corner of Monament and Aisquith Streets last Saturday evening to honor her with a 74th birthday Testimonial party.

A former member of Fountain Baptist Church in East Baltimore, the beloved Rev. Sister Murray currently serves as an Associate Minister of Mount Calvary Holy Church. Throughout the years she has been surrounded by many young friends who have benefited from her wise counseling.

Following the lavish buffet dinner, the guests who referred to the honoree as "Mother Murray" spent the memorable evening expressing their deep feelings of love towards her through witty words and songs along with the presentation of several gifts of love.

Highlighting the unique birthday gathering were the moments of sadness and gladness experienced as each guest told of unforgettable and happy moments they shared with her in the past.

Long time friends enjoying the festivities were Dr. Amanda Williams, Deacon Collie Dunn, Mrs. Gertrude Wright, Mrs. Alice Talley, and Mrs. Elaine Jones, all of Mount Calvary Holy Church.

Attendees from Fountain Baptist Church were Mrs. Janice Ford, wife of the Pastor, Rev. Herman Ford, Deacon and Mrs. Lushes Lewis, Mr. James Bracey, Mr. Eddie Berry, Mr. Leonard Cox, Mr. Lloyd Cox, Mrs. Mary E. Turner, Mrs. Helen Evans, Mrs. Addie Mae Brown and Mrs. Shirley Horton.

Friend from St. Paul Baptist Church was Mrs. Annie McCormick. Also attending was Mrs. Leonora Anderson, the Senior Citizens Apartment building manager.

Former Module Manager, Mary E. Turner was recently promoted to the position of Section Chief in the Critical Services Section of the Office of Central Records Operation. This is the same section she started in as a searching clerk 18½ years ago. In her new position, Mrs. Turner has six supervisors, four secretaries, and 157 clerks under her immediate supervision.

A section chief since 1973, she responds to questions about her work with positive statements about her love of supervisory work. Prior to employment with SSA she was supervisor of the circulation office at Morgan State University. Mrs. Turner is the mother of five sons and one daughter. All are married.

One son, Joseph Jr. and daughter Barbara McDowell, both work in the Woodlawn area. Joseph is a Benefit Authorizer in the Office of Disability Operations. Barbara works for the Health Care Financing Administration.

Born under the sign of Aries, Mrs. Turner has been married 40 years to Joseph Turner, Sr., a retired Bethlehem Steel employee. She is an active member of Fountain Baptist Church where the Rev. Herman Ford is pastor.
