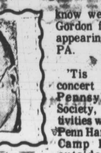
Night Scene Seen



By Bob Mathews

Now that the Left Bank Jazz Society has returned from hiatus, it is once again, THE place to be on Sunday evenings, if you are into the music.

Each Sunday thus far, it has been wall to wall people, which helps to give LBJS a cushion against the times when support for th performing artists is not so large.

This week, saxophonist Chico Freeman is featured. A lot of people have indicated to us that they are not too familiar with him, since he was more or less in the fusion mainstream for a while.

He is also into mainstream music, and his backup group attests to this. On piano will be Kenny Barron, Cecil McBee, bass, and Billy Hart, drums.

It'll be a smoker, but it brings about a serious conflict in our plans. Those who know us, know we are a Dexter Gordon fan, and Dex is appearing in Harrisburg, PA.

'Tis the monthly concert of the Central Pennsylvania Jazz Society, where the activities will be held at the Penn Harris Motor Inn in Camp Hill, PA, just outside Harrisburg. Sunday, at 5 p.m.

The Sportsmen's Lounge is presenting Jennifer Jones, along with th Dennis Fisher trio Friday and Saturday nights. The Saturday afternoon jazz jam, will feature Michael Lee and Company.

Lee will be on vocals, along with Benny Russell, reeds; Reggie Wilson, bass; Charles Arnette, keyboards, and Carlton Hendricks, drums.

gg—

Lee is also the featured attraction at the Gatsby's on Wednesday nights, and we do promise to check it all out for the Night Sceners.

This weekend at Gatsby's, Gary Richardson and Seido will be on tap in th upstairs Billie Holliday Room. As Van put, they are continuing to program live music, especially jazz at the club.

Speaking of live music, the Sphinx Club has returned to its weekend live music policy, and we're told it is almost standing room only on the weekends.

You can still watch people dance like they did back in the jitterbug days at the club. It is always interesting to watch some of the discoers when they discover "touch" dancing.

The King of France Tavern at the Maryland Inn in Annapolis has increased the days they program live music, and this week, the featured artist is Bob Wilber and the Bechet Legacy.

'Tis an unwieldy title for a group, but we heard a couple of cuts from an album by Wilbur, and he really is a student of the great soprano saxophonist.

You can't compete with success, and the January dates of Bill Harris and Co. at the Ritz, has led to his being brought back for this weekend.

He'll be the artist featured in the penthouse Friday and Saturday nights.

Nell Carter pops up as 'Reggina Jackson'

Did they check with Reggie on this?

Nell Carter, of NBC-TV's "Gimme A Break," and Robert Conrad guest star on NBC-TV's "The Billy Crystal Comedy Hour," Saturday, Feb. 13.

Highlights include a sketch in which Crystal, as Howard Cosell, reams that New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner (Conrad) relates the inside story of the Yankees-Reggie Jackson split for his "Up Close and Personal" program. Suddenly the reluctant superstar shows up to reveal an astonishing new identity and outlook as the "ever controversial and now quite beautiful" Reggina (Carter).

In "Fernando's Hideaway," a regularly featured talk-show spoof in which Crystal portrays host Fernando Lamas, this week's interviewee," Robert Conrad, is surlised with a "film clip" of his first screen test — directed by none other than the great Fernando.

Crystal, as Wally the autograph hound, breaks away from an NBC tour and sneaks into an open studio where he dons different hats to impersonate Chaplin, Sinatra and Durante.

Nell Carter delivers a resounding rendition of "Bye, Bye Blackbird" and joins Crystal, Conrad and composer-cab driver Lou Carter for a medley of the latter's tunes, including "I Got a Rose Between My Toes" and "If I Had a Nose Full of Nickels."

Show regulars Jane Anderson and Monica Ganas are passenger and flight attendant on the overly accommodating Peoria Airlines.

'Shoot the Moon'... a family growing apart

"Shoot the Moon," Alan Parker's new film for MGM starring Albert Finney and Diane Keaton, is a story of love and a family that has grown apart but has not yet severed the bond.

Directed by Parker, it is produced by Alan Marshall from an original screenplay by Bo Goldman with gedgar J. Scherick and Stuart Millar serving as executive producers.

Faith and George Dunlap have four school age daughters. After fifteen year of marriage, they have reached a breaking point in their relationship. As George has struggled for and achieved success as a writer and Faith has développed from youth to womanhood, nurturing a family in the process, they have lost touch with one another.

The Dunlaps' daughters wrestle with their own emotions at being cught up in their parents' conflict. For Sherry, the eldest daughter, the family upheaval comes at that early point in her adolescence when she especially craves the solid attention, support and love of her family.

"Shoot the Moon" begins on the eve of the Dunlap family's dissolution, nd stays with the family during the trying period of separation, realization and change. It is the story of a splintered family that can't fall out of love.

Diane Keaton and Albert Finney in "Shoot the Moon," the story of a family growing apart.

Gone but not forgotten
THE FAMILY

MITCHELL. In loving memory of our dear mother, grandmother and great grandmother, MAMIE MITCHELL, who passed away February 16, 1980.
A broken circle, a vacant chair;
We seem to miss you everywhere;
But in our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of you are ever near.
THE FAMILY

THOMAS. In loving memory of my dear husband and loved one, ROBERT E. THOMAS, who passed away on February 9, 1962.
Twenty years since you have passed.
And the Lamp of my love is still glowing.
Your heart was the choice of all the wide world
Your love the best to reveal,
But no one on earth can take your place.
You're still the dearest of all.
