not going to reject our dollars and the challenge is to get white business to give us our share based on our going investments in the free enterprise system.

Ray Haysbert, corporation president and advocate for minority economic growth, seen his role as letting black people know just how valuable they already are so they can get an even larger and equitable share of the system.

LAST MINUTE PREPARATIONS — Tyrous "Terry" Addison and his son Eric busily are working to get everything just so for the HUB organization's week of activities.

New Seagram manager

Walter E. Thornton has been named plant manager at Dundalk, Md., for Joseph E. Seagram and Sons, Inc. Thornton has been assistant manager at the company's Louisville, Ky., plant for the past three years.

Thornton is a native of Gary, W. Va. He is married to the former Jacqueline Richmond of Louisville.

Conference for women business owners

Women business owners, federal and state government officials and representatives from the Fortune 500 will meet in Washington, for an intensive three-day conference convened to develop strategies leading toward increased business opportunities for women entrepreneurs.

It is expected that more than 200 women will participate when the conference begins on Monday, Apr. 12 and running through Thursday, Apr. 15 at the Sheraton Washington Hotel.

"Although women comprise more than 50 percent of this country's population, they own less than eight percent of all the businesses. This conference is just the first step toward guaranteeing a fair share of the marketplace for women entrepreneurs," said Patricia D. Jacobs, president of the American Association of Minority Enterprise Small Business Investment Companies, AAMESBIC, and one of the convenors of the East Coast Conference for Women Business Owners. The other convenors include the Forum for Women Business Owners, Opportunity Funding Corporation and the Coalition of 100 Black Women of D.C., Inc.

Thousands of patients are seen daily on an appointment basis and through emergency visits.

The doctors keep abreast of current medicine and new techniques by attending lectures and continuing medical educational seminars.

Atlas Insurance — nearing its 1st decade, still growing

Terry Addison

Atlas Insurance Agency, located in Towson, Md., near York Road, has an enviable position in the insurance world.

A minority firm headed by B. Tyrous "Terry" Addison, a Morgan State University graduate, Atlas now nine-years-old, currently represents more than 18 major insurance companies in the U.S. and abroad— among them are Aetna Life and Casualty, the Hartford Insurance Group, INA Insurance Co. and Lloyds of London.

Atlas is associated with the brokerage firm Insurance Inc., formerly located on Garrison Boulevard in Baltimore.

Addison has, through his associations with organizations such as The HUB, the Association of Black Insurance Brokers, Employees and Agents, and his personal business ventures of the past, become a familiar face in Baltimore's black business community.

A 25-year federal government employee, Addison has experience in administering federal and state government insurance programs through his work at the Social Security Administration.

He also possesses experience in running digital computer systems at Aberdeen Proving Ground, in Maryland, and experience in graduate school, where he took business courses.

Through these experiences, he has gained the confidence to expand Atlas to a full -scale operation, capable, he says, of " giving you virtually any coverage you want, with one phone call."

Angela Hubbard, Addison's administrative assistant , is an agent herself, and is licensed to sell property and casualty insurance.

Besides handling such major accounts as Constant Care Community Health Center, Baltimore Electronics, Bethel A.M.E. Church and the contents of the World Trade Center in the Inner Harbor, Atlas insures many smaller accounts in Baltimore
