Women business conference slated

A two-day conference for present and prospective women business owners will be held on March 9-10, the U.S. Small Business Administration was announced.

The conference, to be held at the Sheraton Washington Hotel, will feature workshops offering practical advice and counseling on business management skills and also will provide participants an opportunity to meet with purchasing managers of major corporations and with government procurement officers.

It is one in a nationwide series sponsored by SBA at the direction of President Reagan, as part of the President's National Initiative for Women Business Owners.

Cooperating with SBA in sponsoring the Washington conference are the U.S. Department of Commerce and the National Association of Women Business Owners, Capital Area Chapter.

President Reagan initiated his Women's Business Ownership Initiative to help potential and present women business owners compete equitably in the business environment through the development of effective business skills and to improve the business environment for women-owned firms.

The conference will serve as a catalyst for a series of on-going programs being developed in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area with the support of the private sector.

More than 25 workshops will be offered during the conference on a wide range of business-related topics, including "Start-Up Financing," "Tips on Marketing Yourself and Your Business;" "Negotiating: Putting Your Best Foot Forward," "Taxes and Legal Questions and Answers," "Mergers and Acquisitions," Computer Applications in Business Development," and "Surviving Business Crisis."

Top corporations to train school administrators

Eleven major corporations are launching a "management institute for D.C. Public School administrators, announced Superintendent Floretta Dukes McKenzie today.

"Operating effective schools requires finely-honed management skills as well as instructional leadership, so our school system has called upon the management experts—the business community—to share their training talents with our principals and administrators," explained McKenzie.

Industry representatives will conduct training sessions on issues such as trends analysis, human and fiscal resource management motivational techniques and staff development.

Participating corporations include: Marriott Corporation Martin-Marietta, AM-TRAC, AT & T, Xerox, IBM, PEPCO, Control Data, The Acacia Group, Arthur Young & Company, and C & P Telephone. The American Society for Training and Development assisted the school system in engaging the corporate sponsors for the institute.

School personnel who complete the introductory, intermediate, and advanced phases of the institute over a three-year training period will be paired with corporate trainers and serve as co-instructors for new entrants into the program during subsequent sessions.

Eventually, school administrators who complete the program will provide a pool of "certified" instructors to assume the management training responsibilities for the entire school system.

The institute, with an initial corps of 26 administrator "trainees", will begin February 21, 1981 at the Xerox Corporation facilities in Leesburg, Virginia.

The direct costs of the management institute are underwritten by grants from the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation and the Community Foundation of Washington. Participating corporations are paying for the indirect costs of the institute.

Africare sponsors minority conference

A three-day conference entitled "Minority Involvement in Development", a cooperative international development education effort involving Howard University, Africare and U.S. AID will be held March 19 through March 21, at The Howard Inn, 2225 Georgia Ave.

Individuals and organizations interested in and committed to international development are invited to participate.

The purpose of the conference, which will include representatives from federal agencies, colleges and universities, and private voluntary organizations' are: to provide an overview of international and domestic development issues and priorities within the general framework of Third World health, hunger and poverty.

It will also disseminate information on how U.S. minority organizations, institutions and individuals can become more involved in international and domestic development in order to impact constructively upon their economic, social and cultural status; and to create opportunities for dialogue between U.S. conference participants and Third World representatives.

Among the topics for discussion on the Minority Involvement in Development Conference agenda are strategies for meeting basic needs, the role of women in development, world refugee concerns, youth and adult education and training, and procedures for grant and contract development.

Tax Tips

For April 15 procrastinators

By Schanelle Barnes
AFRO Staff Writer

Most taxpayers are now preparing to file their 1983 Federal Income Tax Returns, a dreaded task welcomed only by the anticipation of getting returns on money.

One of the most dreaded notions attached to preparing one's income tax is the seemingly complicated forms.

February is the preferable month to file taxes basically because it is considered the "peak month" as to help you "get it in gear," here are a few helpful hints to aid in overcoming that tax fear.

—Something which may not be known to many taxpayers is that the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) will compute their taxes, particularly for those who can file Form 1040A or Form 1040EZ.

A similar tax computation service is offered to taxpayers who file Form 1040
