Mrs. Blanche T. Conway

A memorial service was held on Monday, Oct. 29 for Mrs. Blanche Taylor Conway at the William C. March Funeral Home. Burial was at the Maryland National Memorial Park.

She was the daughter of William T. and Sallie Campbell Taylor. Mrs. Conway was born in White Stone, VA. on June 4, 1891. She was educated in public schools of Lancaster County, VA. and at an early age, she joined the Calvary Baptist Church, Kilmarnock, VA. As an adult, Mrs. Conway became a midwife and her love of children led her to adopt both a son and daughter.

She is survived by her natural son, William L. Conway, Sr. of White Stone, VA.

A Mother misplaced

There is nothing quite as devastating as losing a mother. Simply because you lose so much. You lose a companion, a confidant, a listener, a healer, a partner, a helper, a boaster and a supporter.

You may receive encouragement from many sources but there is no encouragement like a mother's. A mother looks at every situation from a multi-faceted angle. She can tell you yes, while she is saying no and she can tell you no when she is saying yes. But, you can always be quite sure that she is fully focused upon YOU and there are no hidden agendas. Mothers are always "looking out for your welfare."

When a mother is gone you wonder WHO will you be able to trust to absorb and hold all your little jokes and quips and gossips and complaints? Who will chide you for your messiness while cleaning up your mess? Who will know by the first tone of your voice whether things are good or bad and then rush forward with an avalanche of whatever is needed?

Who will be there to tell you that you look tired, that you have on too much makeup, that a dress doesn't fit well, that your hair is REALLY gray, that you're spending too much money, that you're bossing your kids too much, that you need to dress more conservatively for your job, that you have too many clothes, that you are too busy with projects, that you should take better care of your husband, that you should go to church, that you should have a place for everything and everything in its place, that you should take better care of your health, that you are growing old . . . without your getting damn mad, and, oh yes, that you curse too much.

I misplace everything and lose nothing, therefore I am assuming that Mother is misplaced somewhere. She is someplace where I cannot see her, or feel her, but she is there.

My great solace in this tragedy is that everything that is misplaced is someday found.

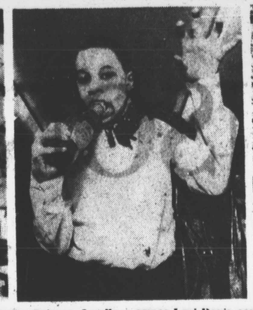
Wow' This was a Halloween that was really a Halloween



Because of the generosity of Shelton Chavez, owner of the Seven Eleven Store in the 1500 block N. Monroe St., the children in the community had an extra special Halloween party Oct. 31. Shown in the first picture as 'Strawberry Shortcake' are Denise Briscoe, Jenelle Briscoe and Sharone Briscoe. They were 2nd place winners in the costume judging. Next is Valerie Alford, who won 4th place. Then comes Levi Davis costumed as 'Dracula.' Last is shown William Alston as the 'Cookie Monster.'

DR. UTHMAN RAY received sustained applause Saturday during the program for the Maryland Legislative Black Caucus memorial service and Prayer Brunch.

The capacity crowd at the New Psalmist Baptist Church, 100 W. Franklin St., was informed by Dr. Ray that the $3,000 contribution he made is to forward the projects of the caucus. His brief talk preceding the donation given to President Del. Elijah Cummings was inspiring "for leadership and future service to the community."

The event was described as "A Reunion with Ourselves".

The memorial portion dedicated to the deceased legislators, Lloyal Randolph, Irma Dixon, Emory Cole, Calvin Douglass, Turk Scott, Floyd Adams, Joseph Chester and Arthur Murphy.

Following addresses by the legislators and Congressman Parren J. Mitchell, all the guests were served brunch in the lower auditorium. In addition to the present members of the Maryland General Assembly, present were members of the Council, an interracial group of the city's jurists and past members of the Maryland House of Delegates. Each left contributions of canned goods for the poor.

MRS. ARDELL VESSELLS, widow of the famed pianist Lawson Vessells has returned from a three-month trip abroad which began with five days sail to Europe on the Queen Elizabeth II. This was the trip she and Lawson had planned for their 40th wedding anniversary.

Ardell reveals the Queen Elizabeth II travel tote bag is enscribed in this demand: "For once in your life, Live!" After seeing all the cities, art galleries, wonderful sights and glamour spots, Mrs. Vessells arrived home on the Concorde, flying faster than the speed of sound and light. What a fantastic experience for a lovely lady who took the journey in memory of her beloved Lawson.

AID TO AFRICA

THE LEAGUE OF RED CROSS and Red Crescent Societies currently has delegates in 12 African countries to assist in distribution of food to the people threatened with death as a result of widespread famine conditions.

The Baltimore Red Cross is accepting cash contributions for the famine relief campaign. Checks should be made out to American Red Corss, and sent to 2701 N. Charles Street, Baltimore 21218, and earmarked "For Africa Relief".

Although thousands of tons of food is being provided by the U.S. Government to the League of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies for distribution in Ethiopia and other crisis areas in Africa, there is an urgent need for funds to insure a continued supply of food throughout 1985.

Individual gifts of food are impractical, due to the high costs of transportation.

ON PROVIDENT

MARY CARTER SMITH discloses her stay at Provident Hospital was without a flaw and she praises the medical staff and the nurses for their efficiency. She says that every staff member she met there went out of their way to be of service and most were cheerful, helpful and professional and compassionate.

HER LETTER of commendation for provident ends thus:

"I was pleased because I had heard some negative comments about Provident. Indeed, I have heard of some harrowing experiences in other hospitals. It made me wonder. These are some of my conclusions:

1. Some people are chronic complainers, ill-tempered, and always threatening, "I'll sue you!" They are going to complain, regardless where they are.

2. Some people demand perfection. There is no perfect hospital.

3. There are those who have unreasonable expections from a Black hospital that they would not expect from a White hospital. These are those with "The white man's ice is colder" syndrome.

4. Some of the complaints may be justified. In that event, let the person in charge know what has happened. Then the matter can be investigated so that the offense will not be repeated.

It's time we stopped "bad-mouthing" ourselves. To all who cared for me while I was in Provident, I say, "Thank you".— Sincerely Mary Carter Smith.

Baltimore's newest full service commercial bank was founded in 1818.

The Savings Bank of Baltimore is now The Bank of Baltimore.

We began in one room in a building on what is now Baltimore Street.

On opening day a tavern keeper, a barber, a schoolmaster, two tailors and a housewife deposited a whopping sum of $170.

We've been through six wars and a Great Depression.

We know what it's like to work for a living.

Today, Baltimore is better off than ever before. And the bank that's stood by its working men and women since 1818 is now even better able to serve you.

We've become The Bank of Baltimore.

The Bank that belongs to what will soon be the largest automated teller network in America.

The Bank with free Mastercard and Visa, no annual fee, no account balance requirement.

The Bank that's open when working people need us most: at 8:30AM weekdays downtown; on Friday evenings and Saturday mornings at all our neighborhood branches.

The Bank that gives you consistently high rates on your savings—not just short-term, hyped-up introductory rates.

The Bank that will meet every one of your financial needs. And never forget where the money comes from.

THE BANK OF BALTIMORE
Where hard work pays off.
