Olympic medalist 'sentenced' to lecture kids on booze, dope

MINOT, N.D. (UPI) — U.S. Olympic boxing silver medalist Virgil Hill was convicted of being a minor in possession of alcohol Monday but had his sentence deferred on the condition he deliver self-esteem speeches to students at five local schools.

Hill, 20, agreed to talk to the students about keeping out of trouble and doing something with their lives, according to a court clerk.

Hill and 19-year-old Daniel Peterson of Grand Forks were arrested Sept. 19 near Minot. Hill pleaded innocent, saying he did not know there was a six-pack of beer in the car.

Peterson, the driver, pleaded guilty. He was ordered to pay a $300 fine plus $50 in court costs by Ward County Judge Gary Holum.

Hill, who was North Dakota's first Olympian since 1960, returned home to a hero's welcome after narrowly missing a gold medal in Los Angeles. He had carried a North Dakota flag in the ring after each bout and he listed both Grand Forks and Williston as his hometown because he didn't want to offend anyone from either city.

Hill has been training in Los Angeles and made his pro debut Nov. 15 in New York on a nationally televised card that featured six Olympic medal winners. Hill's victory was not part of the television show, however, and he was paid only $5,000 - compared to the $100,000 Olympic welterweight gold medalist Mark Breland earned on the same card.

Hoyas in romp

HONOLULU (UPI) — Bill Martin scored 14 points and Horace Broadnax added 11 Monday night to lead No. 1 Georgetown to a 74-45 trouncing of Hawaii-Loa.

The Mongoose of Hawaii-Loa held Pat Ewing to 7 points. Robert Cundiff had a game high 17 points for Loa.

Georgetown never looked back after taking an 8-4 lead, and led 38-12 at halftime.

The victory improved Georgetown's record to 2-0. The Mongoose dropped to 1-2.

Africans urged to boycott meets that invite Zola Budd

PARIS (UPI) — The head of a South African anti-apartheid sports organization said Friday he would attempt to organize a boycott against runner Zola Budd, who was using Britain as a "flag of convenience."

Sam Ramsamy, British-based president of the South African Non-Racial Olympic Committee, said he hoped to convince third-world nations at an African sports conference in Yaounde in December to withdraw athletes from competitions in which Budd and other expatriate South Africans participate.

"We were fooled in the era of (South African-born) Marcello Fiasconaro, the former 800 meters world-record holder," said Ramsamy. "When he left Italy to return to South Africa to become a coach, it was proof (South African athletes) are using other countries as flags of convenience."

Budd, 18, announced Friday she would make a final decision Dec. 30 on whether to continue competing internationally for Britain or remain in her native South Africa, barred from international competition because of its apartheid racial policies.

Budd was given a British passport in April which allowed her to compete for Britain at the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles.

Tennis ouch!

Black players on the women's pro tennis tour were socked quickly in the Australian Open at Kooyong, Melbourne, Tuesday.

Both Zina Garrison and Camille Benjamin were eliminated in the first round.

Fellow-American Sharon Walsh ousted Zina, 6-4, 9-7, and Pam Shriver, also of the U.S. defeated Camille, 6-4, 6-3.

In the men's bracket, Rod Harmon went out under a long-distance attack by Australian Darren Cahill, 6-7, 1-6, 6-4, 7-6, 6-2.

HEART VICTIM — Ricky Bell, a college All-American whose promising NFL career was cut short by a rare muscle disease, died Wednesday of heart failure. The disease, called dermatomyositis, attacks muscles leading to the heart and stifles it. The two-time All-American and Heisman Trophy runner-up in 1976, was 29.

Area college Quints lose

It was a somewhat disastrous midweek on the basketball front for AFRO-area college teams.

Morgan State lost games in both men's and women's ranks.

Maryland-Eastern Shore broke even in its two contests, and the Coppin State men took it on the chin.

The Morgan Bears, playing in the humiliation of an ineligible player expose, were trounced 109-57 by the University of South Alabama at Mobile.

At the same time, the Lady Bears were succumbing to a 94-78 shellacking at Towson State.

Meanwhile at Salisbury, Md., the men's varsity of Maryland-Eastern Shore were sustaining an 81-79 defeat at the hands of Salisbury State College; this after the Hawkettes had given the evening promise with a 77-67 triumph over the Salisbury women.

At Dover, Del., the Coppin State Eagles were dealt a 10-point, 85-75 loss by the Delaware State Hornets.

At Bowie State, the Bulldogs played valiantly but were outmanned by visiting North Carolina Central, 77-72.

And at Washington, the Howard women were humbled, 94-65 by highly ranked University of Maryland.

Bear grapplers lost Olympians

The Morgan State wrestling team will be host to Olympic coach Dan Grable and his University of Iowa Hawkeyes next Wednesday (5th) at Hill Field House.

An all-star junior program will be conducted prior to the team matches which are scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Lite NFL Man of the Year

They are often smothered in adulation. They bask in the glory of their deeds. Some are very caring. Some stay to themselves. Seldom do they have enough time for themselves and yet, the National Football League breeds many young athletes who contribute their time and energies to countless, vital community projects.

For some, the time is devoted to the Special Olympics. For others, the Diabetes Foundation or a campaign to prevent drug abuse. Whatever the cause—the March of Dimes, Sickle Cell Anemia, or a drive to raise funds for a children's hospital, many of the NFL's top players around the nation come together to help call the signals for many meaningful civic programs.

Public Recognition

In the past, most player's off-the-field involvements were overshadowed by their feats on the gridiron. But since 1980, thanks to the Miller Brewing Company Lite beer began sponsoring the NFL Man of the Year Award to recognize NFL players for their contributions on and off the playing field.

Selection Process

Throughout the exhibition games pre-season, and continuing into November of each year, ballot boxes are placed in NFL stadiums and where Lite beer is sold allowing fans to vote for their local team's Man of the Year. A winner is selected from each team. The NFL man of the year is ultimately chosen by a group of media representatives from among the five top vote getters.

Rolf Benirschke of the San Diego Chargers, the most accurate field goal kicker in the history of professional football, was the pick for 1983.

Benirschke was cited for his work as the national sports chairman for the National Foundation of Ileitus and Colitis. This disease has inflicted over 3,000,000 Americans and nearly caused the death of Benirschke himself, forcing him to sit out the 1979 season. Community organizations all over the nation contributed 289 pints of blood toward Benirschke's recovery.

Who Will Win In '84?

All 84 candidates for the 1984 Man of the Year have made outstanding off-the-field contributions in their community. Who will be selected?

It could be Reggie Williams of the Cincinnati Bengals for his work with the Diabetes Foundation and the Cincinnati Cerebral Palsy Telethon.

Devon Cherry of the Kansas City Chiefs does an outstanding job with the Special Olympics Program, the March of Dimes and the United Negro College Fund.

The Los Angeles Rams have a guy they feel is special in Mike Davis who is involved with the McBride School for the Handicapped Children's Hospital, the Ear Institute Telethon and the Retinus Pigmantosis Foundation.

Top honors could go to Robin Cole for his work with the American Heart Association. The Pittsburgh Steelers linebacker also devotes many hours to a number of drug and alcohol abuse programs, Multiple Sclerosis, and is a board member of the American Blind Association.

The winner will be announced at a Super Bowl press conference on January 15, 1985 in San Francisco. That NFL player will receive the prestigious Gladiator Trophy as the Lite NFL Man of the Year at the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl in Honolulu.
