About people

Congrats to Mrs. Reva Lewie, art department head at Walbrook High. She has been named art educator of the year by the Maryland Art Association and the Maryland Affiliate for the Arts for Baltimore City.

Cuff note: Walbrook has 2,100 students, is the only city high school with an art department, and she has headed it since 1971.

Samuel Billups is principal here.

People planning nice things for nice people: The Olton Singing Society of Baltimore is planning a benefit concert for the Coppin State College Scholarship Fund.

The Sunday, Nov. 24th, 4 p.m. event is set for Heritage United Church of Christ, 3106 Liberty Heights.

Special guests, beloved retired Baltimore city music teachers, Mollie Almira Miller and Mildred Margarite Williams, both Coppin grads.

Sponsors of concert, the Heritage chapter of Coppin Alumni Association, headed by Mrs. Esther Harcume. Mrs. Edna DeCoursey Johnson is concert chair. Clarence Henderson is director of the Olton Singing Society, an East Baltimore based musical group.

More congrats due: Mrs. Flozella Clark, the realtor, (with Magill and Yerman), was elected to the board of directors of the Real Estate Million $ Association Ltd., when the group met on Tuesday at Cross Keys Inn.

Elected president was Suzanne Gottlieb.

And more: Harlow Fullwood, the Kentucky Fried Chicken franchiser, is beaming. He's just been notified he's exceeded expectations, is entitled to a special trip; plus he's on the way to erecting his second store in Baltimore. Watch this newspaper for details.

Other voices: — Current issue of Jet Magazine gives results of its Ticker Tape survey which asked its readers to pick the best national headquarters for the NAACP.

Its summer - long poll showed Baltimore nosed out Washington, D.C., AS THE NO. ONE CHOICE. Seventeen other cities were mentioned.

Excerpts from one reader who picked Baltimore: "Ms. Norma Spencer of Woodbridge, N.J. wrote: 'It (Baltimore), is more than 50 percent black and its proximity to Washington makes it invaluable as the ideal location.'" She pointed out that the city has many influential politicians like Rep. Parren J. Mitchell and Judge William Murphy, and is the home of the AFRO-AMERICAN, a strong force in the black community ..."

More other voices: Current issue of Pocket, edited by Earl Koger, has interesting commentary by Southwestern High School principal, Dr. Hilbert Stanley.

Entitled, "A Call To Arms," it lists a 10-point program for parents, students, educators and the community to improve our schools.

Dr. Stanley concludes: "Implementing these ten actions would raise the quality of education to the equivalent of about $50 million dollars worth of excellence ..."

Watch for reprint of this entire article in an upcoming column. The ten points make a lot of sense.

More people remembering: Plymouth Congregational Church in Washington was filled on Tuesday evening (Nov. 5,) as friends of Osmond Henry Brown gathered to remember him. A large group of his Lincoln U. classmates were there. Spied in the crowd: Baltimore's Dr. George Woodland.

Some 70 Alpha Phi Alpha men participated in the fraternity's Omega service, led by Vernon Gill, president of Mu Lambda Chapter, and chaplain, Rev. Jerry Hargrove. Thomas Reed directed the singing.

Brown, 63, died Saturday after a long illness. He was director of the executive staff of the U.S. Bureau of Government Financial Operation when he retired last January.

He was a trustee at Lincoln University and a member of the Boule. Representatives of these groups gave tributes at the funeral services on Wednesday morning.

Mr. Brown held a masters in English from Columbia U., and earned a theology degree from General Theological Seminary. His father was the late Dr. Osmond H. Brown of Buffalo, N.Y., a canon in the Episcopal Church.

Survivors: His wife of nine years, Mrs. Minnie Brown; daughter, Harriet, N.Y. and brothers, Dr. Allen Brown, Augusta, Ga. and John Brown, Buffalo.

Mailbag

In the mailbag: Jonathan Z. Wright of McCulloh St., complains: "My gosh, a newspaper which boasts it is in its 94th year ought to know that there is only one (1) r in harassment, and if it doesn't, it ought to compel its writers to use a synonym.

Webster's suggests annoy, badger and worry (with two r's). Please eliminate harass from your stories and headlines until you can spell it correctly. Since you must use two r's, try using worry.

And, while I'm at it, please tell your crime-story writer there is no way a man can "put a photo of he and a friend" anywhere. He who? Come on, AFRO, you know better.

"I intend to keep my subscription to your newspaper which I get every Tuesday and Friday. I also send another copy to my mother in California twice a week.

"I expect my hometown newspaper to tighten up on its editing and proofreading, please. We need you out front."

This and that

More thoughtful people: Women at St. James Episcopal Church did a thoughtful thing on Sunday. At their annual Women's day convocation, they paused to salute women members eighty years or older. There were gifts for all, including the absentees who were represented by stand-ins.

Honorees were: Mesdames Waida Alston, Carrie Armstead, Irene Bennett, Laura G. Butler, Bertha Chapman, Jeannette Christmas, Beatrice Collins, Elmira Collins, Rachel Cooper, Mamie Cosby, Ethel Covington, Lucretia Evans, Ethel Hucles, Jemina Jones, Edythe Myers, Alice Parham, Bessie Reavis, Freda Servis, Hattie Tilghman, Ethel Watts, Alice Williams and Flossie Wright.

Member G. Doris Baker penned a special verse to the ladies, (and did they look good.). It was entitled, "Eighty Years and Older."

SIGMAS TO HOST 25TH ANNUAL ORCHID BALL

the Baltimore community one of the true formal balls of the season. If you are one of the many who has always wanted to be a part of this gala affair, now is your opportunity.

The Sigmas' are inviting you and your guest to Martin's West, November 27, from 9 p.m. until 2 a.m. for elegant wining and dining, featuring an orchestra, open bar, and sit-down dinner. This is not a money-making affair but another way for Sigma men to extend their hands in Brotherhood to the wider community at Thanksgiving.

Dr. Parlett L. Moore reminded the Brothers that this affair has become a Sigma and Baltimore Tradition.

Greeks are always special guests as are Sigma Sisters, the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc., Alpha Zeta Chapter, who are considered a part of Sigma.

The following Brothers can be contacted for ticket information: Chapter President Dr. Guilbert A. Daley, at 542-0178; Chairman of the Orchid Ball Committee and Treasurer, Willie Nichols, at 526-9343; or the Chairman of Publicity, Eugene Clark at 578-9352. "Be our special guest," say the Sigmas.
