Fauntroy heads bi-partisan delegation studying Haiti

Congressman Walter E. Fauntroy (D.-D.C.), chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus (CBC) Task Force on Haiti, heads a bi-partisan delegation of members of the U.S. House of Representatives on a fact finding mission to Haiti.

The purpose of the mission is to find out how the Haitian people feel the United States of America can best assist them in achieving a sharp departure from the policies and practices of the Duvalier dictatorship.

"Our mission," said Congressman Fauntroy, "is to enter into a dialogue in a spirit of mutual respect and cooperation with representatives of the transitional government, key members of the social and economic sectors, religious leaders, business persons, and those working in the countryside for bottomup development.

"When we return to the United States we hope to be effective advocates for U.s. policies that are supportive of the aspirations of the Haitian people for a better future."

The CBC Task Force on Haiti has played a pivotal role in moving the United States to disassociate itself from the Duvalier dictatorship. Since its founding in 1979, the Task Force has been allied with forces of progressive change in Haiti.

Congressman Fauntroy stated that, "We are at the point where we believe the entire Congress is ready to follow the kind of leadership that CBC has attempted to give in shaping U.S. policies and programs supportive of the legitimate aspirations of the Haitian people."

Pro-busing boycott is planned in Norfolk

NORFOLK — Opponents of the Norfolk School Board's efforts to stop school busing are planning a major boycott in protest of the plan that would resegregate the city's elementary schools.

The Norfolk Coalition for Quality Public Education announced the boycott last week. The Rev. James H. Harris, chairman of the pro-busing Coalition, said details of the boycott would be announced later.

The School Board has put off until April 14 a vote on whether to implement the "neighborhood schools" plan this fall.

Opponents of the court-approved pupil reassignment plan say they will carry the fight to the U.S. Supreme Court.

A top official of the NAACP has thrown his weight behind those fighting the School Board plan.

Dr. William F. Gibson, chairman of the NAACP National Board of Directors, spoke before an overflow capacity audience at the First Baptist Church, Bute Street in Norfolk against that city's proposed elementary school pupil reassignment plan.

Gibson was in the city at the invitation of the Coalition, an association of over 100 educational, religious, social, civic and civil rights organizations including the NAACP. The Coalition was organized in 1983 to promote and preserve quality desegrated public education in Norfolk.

The reassignment plan drawn by the Norfolk School Board and affirmed by the U.S. District Court and a three judge panel of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals has been highly praised and applauded by Assistant Attorney general William Bradford Reynolds, who calls it a model case and says that as many as 370 more school systems could probably be freed from court-ordered busing by the decision.

Gibson's opinion of the actions were less praising and laudatory. Gibson referred to them as "backsliding" from the unanimous Supreme Court's 1954 decision in Brown vs. Board of education from which he quoted: "We conclude that in the field of Public Education, the Doctrine of separate but equal, has no place. Separate education facilities are inherently unequal."

He called the decision of the district court a perversion of that historic landmark decision and the three judge decision's affirmation, a subversion of the highest court in the land. He said that the Norfolk City School Board was utilizing one of the last obstacles in the "Arsenal of Obstruction" of public school desegregation — the so-called Neighborhood School.

He said "Neighborhood School" was a "codeword" used by Ronald Reagan in both of his presidential campaigns, that was no less racist, no less vitriolic, no less divisive than was George Wallace "buzzword" "busing" in the sixties.

He urged the emotionally-charged crowd "to continue their fight, to appeal until there are no courts left in which to appeal." He implored his enthusiastic listeners to "not forget those City Council persons who were against you" — because the Norfolk City Council appoints the Norfolk City School Board — but "remember to send them a reverberating message, the next time that they run, in the ballot box."
