Bettye Moss

IF YOU ASK ME

106 years old!!

Hats off to Thomas Kyler. He marked his 106 birthday on Thursday, Oct. 23!!

Address greetings to him at the Harvey Johnson Terrace Senior Citizens Home, 1510 W. Mosher St., Baltimore, Md. 21217.

Despite his advanced years, Mr. Kyler is alert, reads his Bible regularly, watches some television. He likes people, and they enjoy him. On his birthday, there was a celebration for him at the Washington Village Clinic.

Mr. Kyler was born and reared in Calvert County, Md. In the thirties, he moved to the Baltimore area and did some farming and worked as a hod carrier.

He is a longtime member of the Church of God and Saints of Christ at Preston and Central Aves. in East Baltimore.

Mr. Kyler had 14 children. Sole surviving child is a daughter, Mrs. Mary Walker, of Calvert County. He has 42 grandchildren and 11 great-grands.

A 1983 AFRO article on the 28th anniversary of the Lafayette Square Center reported that Mr. Kyler was the first to join the center's eating together program.

Loyal niece

Mr. Kyler lives alone in his senior citizens apartment. He manages to do well because of the loving attention provided by a niece, Mrs. Isabelle Moody, who resides in an adjoining apartment.

Longevity runs in the family. Mrs. Moody marks her 75-plus birthday on Monday, Oct. 27.

Mrs. Moody had 13 children of her own. Twelve are still living. There are 32 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

After her children grew up, Mrs. Moody kept busy as saleslady for Stanley Home Products, a post she held for 24 years before her retirement. Remember?

God's special blessings on Mr. Kyler and his niece, Mrs. Moody, two senior citizens who manage to look much younger than the calendar states.

BISHOP MOURNED — Eighteen bishops and church leaders eulogized Bishop Theodore Robert Young.

FRIEND TO MANY was Mrs. Mildred Nelson, who was memorialized on Wednesday.

Happy day

Saturday was a happy day for Mrs. Lydia W. Mussenden, one of our town's most gracious ladies, who has endeared herself to many because of her unselfish volunteer service.

Mrs. Mussenden's twin daughters and their husbands, Dr. Carol Ellis and Dr. Rodney Ellis of Suffolk, Va. and Christine Williams and hubby, Gregory Williams of Prince George's County, hosted a black tie retirement dinner for Mrs. Mussenden at Peabody Court.

In attendance, 65 friends and kin who came from D.C., Md., Fla., Ill. and Calif.

Those who were there are still talking about the elegant event and how much they enjoyed the French cuisine for which the Peabody is famous.

Mrs. Mussenden is the widow of Dr. Glenford Mussenden, the Baltimore physician.

She retired recently after 14 years as human resources specialist with the U.S. Extension Service at the University of Maryland. In earlier years, she taught at Morgan State University and worked with the city health department.

Toasts, guests

Many know Mrs. Mussenden because she has served as president of the Baltimore chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, the local chapter of Pierians, Inc. and Baltimore Chapter of Links.

Amid toasts by her daughters and other guests, Mrs. Mussenden expressed appreciation for her blessings. She promised to continue her volunteer work, enjoy traveling and her grandchildren.

Music for dinner and dancing was by the Bill Clark Combo of D.C.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Etta Moton Barnett, Chicago; Dr. Flaxie (Plum) Fletcher, Los Angeles; Mrs. Vivian Gill Lee and Dr. Hampton Johnson, all of D.C.; Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, Palm Beach, Fla. and from Arundel-on-the-Bay, Dr. and Mrs. Aris Allen, Mrs. Catherine Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Brown; from Annapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Hynson and from Fairfax, Va., Dr. Marcie Wilkerson, and from Bethesda, Dr. Jessie Colson.

Baltimore guests there: Messrs. and Mesdames Marshall Bright, Hiram Butler, Charles Fletcher, James Mebane, Robert Payne, Glenn Tarter;

Also, Drs. and Mesdames Lionel Desbordes, James Lewis, Nathaniel Proctor, Bruce Russell and G. James Fleming;

And, Mesdames Catherine Adams, Lillian Berry, Pearl Brackett, Roberta Briscoe, Louise Dennis, Frances Hill, Dora Hutchinson, Freddye Lucas, Sylvia Martin, Audrey Norris, Selby McDonald, Shirley Mott, Gladys Reed, Allegra Taylor, Pauline Watts, Betty Williams;

Also, William Proctor, Dr. Judy Williamson and Dr. Billie Frazier.

Friend to many

Those of us who have watched and admired Mildred Nelson through the years marvelled that she found the time and energy to help so many in the Baltimore community she loved.

Her unexpected death on Friday, Oct. 17, causes us to pause and recall some of the areas in which her presence made a significant difference.

Like at Social Security, where she began work 23 years ago as a clerk and worked up to Labor Relations Specialist, a job co-workers state she did in a professional manner.

At Morgan State University, where she was a student counselor for evening school students. Continuing Education Dean Emeritus, Dr. Beryl Williams, recalls, she was "very good and understanding" of the problems faced by students who worked in the day and enrolled in evening classes.

At St. Paul United Methodist Church, where she was an active lay leader whom some fondly called "chief cook and bottle washer." Annually, she prepared delicious dishes for the bake sale or dinners, and folks rushed to buy them because they knew they were the work of Mildred's hands.

KLW leader

And we remember Mildred's skills as caterer on a snowy day in February 1979, when she turned the drab Masonic Hall into a place of beauty for our oldest daughter's wedding.

And many of us will never forget the ten years Mildred Nelson served as treasurer of the King's Landing Women's Service Club, which a group of campers' mothers organized at the YMCA in Huntingtown, Md.

Mildred was in the initial group when King's Landing Women adopted YM executive Paul Moss' idea for an annual Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Breakfast, now an annual Baltimore event.

In the early years of this program, the Y had no funds to underwrite expenses, pay for printing, engage speakers. The KLW women held benefits and paid the tab.

And every year, Mildred Nelson was in the group which stayed up the night before the breakfast to make sure seats were properly assigned — on a first-come, first-served basis.

And even though she was invited to chair the breakfast committee, or introduce the speaker, she opted to remain on the door to see that things went smoothly. They usually did, because she was there.

No complaints

She was patient, understanding, when others failed in their responsibilities. She took up the baton, and rarely complained.

Last year, however, she was dismayed to learn that the new YMCA leadership was not crediting the KLW women for their pioneer work. She made her concerns known in a pointed letter, and then went about the work of helping the breakfast committee. This was the same caring manner in which Mildred Nelson operated in other areas where she gave time voluntarily . . . in Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, where she was long corresponding secretary; in the Md. League of Women's Clubs, the National Council of Negro Women, the N. M. Carroll Home for the Aged, where she served on the board of directors.

Tributes

Cuff notes: — Just three weeks ago (Sept. 27), Mildred Nelson retired from her Social Security post. Co-workers and friends made plans for a retirement banquet — the gifts and flowers had been ordered and the Forum engaged for the Nov. 13 tribute.

Mildred died in her sleep without complaining about her illness.

Co-workers and friends jammed St. Paul United Methodist Church for her service of triumph on Wednesday. An estimated 450 persons filled the first floor and spilled over into the balcony. Extra chairs were brought in to seat the crowd.

Dozens of floral tributes banked the sanctuary.

We're glad to note that Mildred Nelson did get some of her flowers while she could enjoy them.

The Freedom Chapter of American Business Women recently named her Woman of the Year. In 1980, when the Philomathian Club marked its 50th anniversary, Mildred Nelson was one of 100 outstanding women the group selected for their "significant contributions" to the Baltimore community.

Prior to the formal services conducted by the pastor, Rev. George R. Allen, her Zeta sorors, 27 of them, conducted fraternal rites. Basileus Mary E. Fields, Chaplain Etta Williams, Historian Elva Tillman led the services. Catherine Neal was soloist. In the group was Zeta founder, Mrs. Myrtle Faithful.

Survivors: Mrs. Nelson is survived by daughters, Joyce Cotten and Bertha Anderson; son, Barry E. Nelson; sisters, Mrs. Delores Brown, Mrs. LeGloria Barnes and Mrs. Bertha N. Taylor and brother, John W. Shird.

Three grandchildren also survive, Renee Cotten, Damon Anderson and Brandon C. Nelson.

Bishop Young

Eighteen bishops and church leaders from Md., and Del. gathered in Baltimore recently to eulogize Bishop Theodore Robert Young at the Maryland Church of God in Christ on Denmore Ave. in the Pimlico area.

Bishop Young, 86, died on Oct. 17. He established his church in 1931, and affiliated with the National Churches of God in Christ under the late Bishop C. H. Mason. He was consecrated bishop in 1960, and served until he retired in 1984.

His fellow bishops and church leaders recalled Bishop Young was "known throughout the Baltimore community for his dedication and support of many civic organizations." He was remembered as "a man of peace, humility and prayer."

Bishop David W. Spann presided.

Other participants in the October 22 service were Bishop L. T. Blackshear of the Delaware district; Bishops O. T. Jones, Jr., C. D. Owens, of the church's general board and presiding bishop, J. O. Patterson.

Church leaders

Other church leaders who gave tributes were Dr. James A. Parson, executive secretary of Md. jurisdiction and Bishops of Md. and D.C. jurisdictions, James I. Doswell, James E. Eure, Samuel Kelsey and J. Howard Sherman, chair of the Board of Bishops.

Leaders of other denominations also participated — Rev. Douglas Miles, president of the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance; Bishop Monroe Saunders, presiding bishop of United Church of Jesus Christ, Apostolic; Bishop Winfield Showell, vice president of Bibleway Worldwide and Bishop Millard Cox, a vice president of the United Holy Churches of America.

Speaking for the women's auxiliary were Supervisors Catherine Carter and Eureta Griffin. From the Maryland Jurisdiction, Elder Stafford Sutton. The combined choirs sang. Soloists were Deborah Bell and Floretta Harris.

Bishop Young is survived by four nephews, James and Gilbert Young and David Porter, Baltimore and Timothy Porter, Jersey City; nine nieces, Mrs. Miriam Hawes, Fort Pierce, Fla.; Mrs. Trophena Johnson, Baltimore; Mrs. Phyllis Rosario, Philadelphia; Miss Queenie Young, Fort Pierce, Fla.; Mrs. Deborah Porter Barton, Miss Grace Porter, Mrs. Mary Dukes, Miss Hope Porter, Miss Hannah Porter, all of Baltimore.

BETTER DAY COMING? — Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, bounced around Tuesday night in Boston's 7-1 loss to New York, hopes for another chance against the Mets in the World Series. The high-wired Red Sox righthander lost the third game of both last week's AL pennant playoff and this week's World Series. He's like chance to come back as he did in winning 6th game of playoff.

AFRO SPORTS

Respect but no awe held for next Morgan foe

A game Morgan State eleven, struggling to shake off its 0-7 losing image, plays host to Tennessee State Saturday at Hughes Stadium.

It will be the Bears' final home game of the 1986 campaign and it seems to portend no good for Morgan, since the Tigers are unbeaten (8-0) and ranked seventh among NCAA Division I-AA teams.

However, head coach Jesse Thomas and offense coordinator Gerald Boyd are cheered by the gradual improvement in the play of their freshman-sophomore oriented team.

A measure of this encouragement stems from the manner in which the Bears conducted themselves last Saturday.

Although they lost to Towson State, 21-0, it was only on the scoreboard that the decision materialized.

The Towsonites are unbeaten and thus were heavily favored.

Yet, Morgan outrushed Towson, 96-29 in yards, returned kicks 112 yards to 40, kept possession 32 minutes to 27 for Towson, and accounted for only three fewer first downs, 13-16.

It was in defensing the pass that the Bears suffered, the Tigers managing 50 yards more (203-153), and negotiating two of their three touchdowns via the air.

As for Tennessee State, Thomas says, "We respect them but we don't hold them in awe."

Statistics bode well for Mets in turnaround

The Mets are the 13th team in Series history to tie the Series at 2-2 after losing the first two games. Of the previous 12 teams to do so, seven have gone on to win the Series, including six of the last seven.

Baltimore fans are fully aware of the peril of building what might be considered an insurmountable advantage in the October event.

In 1979, their Orioles took a 3-1 lead into the fifth game with Mike Flanagan. Jim Palmer and Scott McGregor poised to close it out.

Pittsburgh beat Flanagan, 7-1, at Three Rivers Stadium, but the Birds still were comfortable going home with Palmer and McGregor ready.

The Pirates bested Palmer, 4-0, and then beat McGregor, 4-1.

• • •

If the Mets manage to pull it off, a lot of so-called experts will breathe easier. Seventeen of 24 members of the World Series press corps from around the nation predicted a New York victory. They still have hope.

Nine of the 17, however, already have flunked. They said the Mets would win in five games.

• • •

No matter the outcome of the Thursday night game, the Series will return to New York this weekend with the sixth game -- and a seventh if necessary -- at Shea Stadium.

The Mets appear to be in good shape, though, if the Series goes seven games.

They will have Ron Darling on the mound. And the swarthy righthander has shown in his first two Series appearances that the Boston Red Sox cannot hit him.

They used an unearned run to beat him 1-0 in the opener. He pitched seven scoreless innings Wednesday night, giving the Mets a 6-2 victory and squaring the Series at two triumphs apiece.

"I felt I pitched much better in the first game," Darling said. "In this game I made the pitch when I had to."

• • •

NOTEWORTHY: The Joseph Kirschner Co., of Augusta, Maine, the official hot dog supplier for Red Sox home games, didn't make enough "Fenway Franks" for the World Series.

But the company put together an emergency crew and delivered another shipment in for the Thursday night contest.

A Kirschner spokesman said the company sent 80,000 franks to Fenway Tuesday, just about enough for Games 3 and 4 of the Series.

But after the New York Mets' 7-1 victory in Game 3, the company had to prepare a special shipment of franks Wednesday.

"We'll have to get them made in a few hours and out of here Thursday morning," plant manager Bob Porter said.

DOUBLE DELIGHT — World famed soccer star Pele, now retired, this week celebrates two jubilant events. On Monday he accepts appointment as grand marshal of the 1987 New Year's Day Rose Parade, and on Thursday he marries his girl-friend of six years, 22-year-old Maria da Graca Meneshel, a model who is known as Xuxa.

Burial rites held for old catcher

A funeral services was held Tuesday noon for Joe Lewis, a popular catcher for the Baltimore Black Sox and other black teams of the twenties and early thirties.

Lewis, who was batterymate of Doc Sykes when the Black Sox were contenders for black league honors, also had tours with the Hilldales, Bacharach Giants and Washington Potomacs.

Death followed an extended illness. Burial was at Arbutus following eulogy at the Russ Funeral Home.

Among survivors are a son, Herman; sister, Mrs. Florence Holmes, and brother, Charles.
