KIDSAKE ministries under way in Baltimore

A local church has decided to act upon what it recognized as an "unmet need in the community," thus establishing KIDSAKE (Kids in Divorce or Separation Asking Kids' Encouragement), according to church pastor, the Rev. Jane Harmes.

Rev. Harmes said the purpose of the new program is to "provide a supportive group in which children can safely express their feelings, develop coping skills, make friends and have fun." She added that the program offers an opportunity for "fellowship and support" for children of divorced parents between the ages of seven and 12.

Rev. Harmes acknowledged that the church hopes to offer the program twice a year for five to six weeks, most often on a Saturday. She said the sessions will consist primarily of "group discussion and dialogue" and will include volunteers, one of which will be a professional.

According to Rev. Harmes, the seminars will provide discussion on topics such as: "What Is A Family?" "Shock of Separation," "Being In the Middle," "Building Self-Esteem," "Changed Relationship" and "Support Systems For Me."

The program was started last spring with a trial run consisting of children of the Brown Memorial congregation, said Rev. Harmes, adding that the trial was very successful.

"As far as we know," boasted Rev. Harmes, "there is no ministry in Baltimore of its kind." She added that there is a similar program in Columbia, MD.

For more information, contact the church office at 377-7232.

RETIRED PRINCIPAL, social worker and founder of the Edgar Allen Poe School for Teen-age Mothers (now Laurence Paquin School), Mrs. Vivian E. Washington, will be the keynote speaker for Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church's 42nd Annual Women's Day program on Sunday, Nov. 9, at the church. The church is located on Madison Ave. near Bloom St. and the program is slated to begin at 11 a.m.

Church member to appear in new movie filmed here

Robert Anderson, a devoted member of East Baltimore Deliverance Church, 1001 Caroline St., and waiter at the Belvedere Hotel, will appear in the upcoming movie, "The Tin Men," starring Danny Devito.

Anderson, who bears a striking resemblance to musical wizard Chuck Berry, was asked to play the role of a waiter in the film, which was filmed in Baltimore in August.

According to the born-again Christian, he is no Johnny-come lately to the acting arena. He explained that he has acted in several church performances in his life and is very much interested in the field.

"I am a natural," acknowledged Anderson, referring to his ability to act. "I will see if I can get the right people" to provide the necessary exposure to the acting arena, he continued, adding that he has had acting on his mind since his boyhood days.

Though his role is very brief in the movie, Anderson feels his relationship with Devito could give him that chance he has been waiting for.

He said he and Devito have talked on several occasions, primarily about them both being "born-again Christians."

The strongly religious lay actor said, "Who knows, this might turn into bigger and better things."

Anderson said the movie will premier in April of next year.

Who passed away November 7, 1954

HE IS NOT DEAD

I cannot say, and I will not say
That he is dead. He is just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land
And left us dreaming how very fair
Its needs must be, since he lingers there.
And you-oh, you, who the wildest yearn
For an old-time step, and the glad return,
Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here.
Think of him still as the same. I say,
He is not dead — he is just away.
