IDELL PUGH NEW AKA REGIONAL DIRECTOR

Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. recently elected Idell S. Pugh to the office of North Atlantic Regional Director during its 52nd national conference in Detroit. Mrs. Pugh was the selected first choice of the membership of the region.

The North Atlantic region includes chapters in Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Washington, D.C. Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority is the first sorority founded by black women in the U.S.

Idell Pugh is a retired educator. She last served as principal of Pimlico Elementary School and has previously held various other teaching and administrative positions with the city school system.

Mrs. Pugh holds bachelor's and master's degrees in elementary education from Grambling State University and the University of Maryland respectively, along with a Certificate of Advanced Study in Education from Johns Hopkins University. She has engaged in other educational pursuits at several institutions.

A member of Alpha Kappa Alpha for over 30 years, Pugh is active with the Epsilon Omega Chapter in Baltimore. She has served as chapter president, vice-president, and has also chaired several committees. There have been five other persons from Epsilon Omega who have served as the North Atlantic Regional Director in the past.

The current national theme of Alpha Kappa Alpha is "Service with a Global Perspective." As one who is quite active with community work and social justice issues, Mrs. Pugh intends to develop plans and activities to promote the sorority's national thrust.

She is involved in several anti-apartheid efforts in the Baltimore/Washington area as well as other social and political causes.

During her term of office, Pugh plans to provide coordinated leadership to the chapters in the North Atlantic Region for the programs supporting the sorority theme.

Mrs. Pugh is the wife of Melville W. Pugh, a semi-retired associate professor of sociology at Morgan State University. She has two sons and two grandchildren.

SELEH SHOWCASES FURS

Seleh, nationally known fur designer and Baltimore's only black furrier and redesigner of furs, held his first major fur fashion showcase as a highlight for the grand opening festivities at Seleh's Fine Furs and Design in the towntown market centers development, 220 Park Ave.

An officially grand opening ribbon cutting ceremony took place on Wednesday, October 29, at 2 p.m. National NAACP President Enolia McMillan, Delegate Larry Young and acting Mayor Clarence DuBurns extended greetings and a proclamation citing Baltimore's first fur salon and redesigned and authentic fur fashion.

Seleh Rahman brings 10 years of experience as a furrier and one of Baltimore's top tailors. He began his career as a tailor in Baltimore, working as a consultant for firms around the city. A move to New York was a direction to expand his fur business.

During his progress as a furrier in New York's heavy fashion district, Seleh had become a cohort with James McQuay Furs, Mr. Corn of Corn Furrier, Nordic Fur of America, Inc., and other furrier in the East Coast market. He relocated back to Baltimore after realizing there is a greater demand for fine fur redesigning.

Seleh travels once or twice a month to New York to buy furs and meet with dealers. Seleh's purchases at times are primarily to create fur designs and generate customers and the public to the advantage of having older furs redesigned.

Intermediate plans for Seleh's Fur Salon and Design are to open up a salon in Washington, D.C. and in the New York fashion district.

Why do we love furs? We love them for their warmth, their natural and animal elegance and splendor, and for the wealth and status they impart. Although they can be enormously expensive, reconditioned furs made of older garments that have been disassembled and remade are much less.

Many furs last a long time if they are properly cared for. However, a buyer should check for the fur quality when making a purchase to insure its longevity. Many fur boutiques sell furs but do not supply the service of an on-going maintenance plan to help maintain the fur quality. The fur owner must then resort to other resources that for the most part, do not specialize in fur maintenance and design.

Seleh suggests having furs cleaned and glazed twice a year. If a tatter should develop, one should see a furrier immediately.

Many fur owners who have old furs are inspired to have them redesigned. This can increase the longevity of the fur.

If the fur garment goes out of fashion while it is still in good condition the owner should consider having it redesigned. Restructuring the body, collar, sleeve and adding any elements that would rehighlight the style and color of the fur garment is considered redesigning.

Redesigning an old fur or enhancing a new fur can give the fur a new identity. Fur designing is rare in the industry as well as offering a total maintenance plan for furs.

LAMBDA KAPPA MU HOLDS CONF.

Lambda Kappa Mu Sorority, Inc. held their Northeastern Regioal Conference at the Park Plaza Hotel in New Haven, CN from October 30 to November 1.

This year's conference was hosted by Alpha Epsilon Chapter upon the occasion of its 10th anniversary. The conference theme was "Improving the Quality of Life; Excellence in Education - the Black woman's Role."

A very interesting and informative program was planned. Workshop topics dealt with pertinent societal issues and concerns, such as "Adolescent Pregnancy," "Depth of Challenges: Girls in Trouble," Custody-Community Care," and "The New Proposed Federal Tax Bill."

Sorors included in their activities, fun, touring, shopping, and attending cultural and sports events. Howling goblins, a slight chill in the air and glorious shades of yellows and oranges helped to make it an exciting weekend.

Iota sorors in attendane at the Northeastern Regional Conference included: Lenora J. Terrell, Joyce A. Sturgis, Sandra M. Wilmer, Sheila M. Jessup, Ethel B. Covington, Elizabeth S. Day, Gladys G. Baird, Imogene B. Douglas, Marie B. Dowell, Mary J. Mitchell, Louise G. Turks, Gloria J. Banks, Ovella D. Queen, Marguerite A. Wilkins, Ida B. Wroten, Dorothy Pollard, E. Monterey Williams, Vivian S. Bennett, Josephine J. Flournoy, CAUGHT BY THE CAMERA during the festivities are (from L): Mr. and Mrs. William Adams, Mrs. Dorothea Merchant and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hagan.

The O'Nose, a group of Baltimore men gathered together some beautiful people Friday night at the Blue Crest North for their annual Autumn Festival. The poetic invitations that were sent out captured the imagination of the senses.

The hosts set the tone with a receiving line at 6:30 p.m. to greet guests and welcome them to the black tie affair. Guests gathered in the Warren Room for cocktails and a variety of delicacies, then moved into the ballroom for a sitdown dinner featuring prime rib-flambe etc.

Before dinner was served the chairman of the group, Lorenzo Felder, stated the purpose of the affair. He then asked all present to stand to offer silent prayers memorializing members Earl Bundara, Roland B. Williams, Melvin Smith, and Robert L. Quarles, Sr.

Between courses, there was dancing to the music of Dennis Fisher. After dinner, desserts and more dancing followed until one o'clock in the morning. Clarence (Gene) Hillen chaired this fabulous event.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of the Scholarship Award to Marcus W. Hines, a 1986 Southwestern High School graduate, now enrolled at Morgan State University majoring in Civil Engineering.

Organized in 1968, the club is composed of business and professional men. They are individually affiliated with numerous, civic, political, business, and education associations.

Members of the O'Nose are: Norman, Malcolm Chamberlain, Clarence Dyson, Lorenzo Felder, Otis D. Froe, Harrison A. Fuller, William E. Griggs, Raymond Haysbert, Clarence E. Hillen,
