affected by poor management and misallocation of funds.

Three other metropolitan areas were included in the study: Milwaukee, WIS; Dade County, FLA; and San Diego, CA. However, Baltimore was cited for more misuse of funds and poorer relations with federal authorities than the other three.

Peterson said the four cities in the study represented four geographical areas of the country and offered a balance to the findings.

Although he declined to discuss specific dollars amounts, Peterson said the study found instances of money either misallocated or not used for local programs of special education and Section 8 housing for low-income residents.

While the other cities in the study operated social programs with minimal political considerations, Schaefer imposed his personal style of governing on policy by concentrating power in his office and "dispensing patronage to build loyality," the report stated.

The 245-page report examined the operation of nine federal education, housing, health programs and community development block grants.

"Overall the federally supported social programs work very well," Peterson said.

Following the early examples of misuse of federal funds and conflict between federal and local officials, the programs are for the most part now being run by professionals, rather than politically connected people.

Baltimore is the exception.

Pat Bernstein, spokeswoman for Mayor Schaefer, said the mayor "doesn't give it (the report) much credibility." She said the mayor had not seen the study and that he had not been apprised of its content prior to the time it was released.

"From what I've heard, it's very vague and the authors offer no specific examples," Bernstein said.

Although the report says Baltimore is run by a Schaefer-led political "machine," it concluded that this arguably "afford sufficient stability to deter further deterioration (of the city)."

Peterson said release of the study at this time has nothing to do with Schaefer's election as governor.

"This information is meant to influence the discussion of federal policy in the next session of Congress," he said.

Lee, a third grader.

"What happens if, instead of pleading guilty, they told the truth?" another third grader, Angela Watkins, wanted to know.

Thetuis Saunders, from The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, whose responsibility it is to place women in non-traditional roles, spoke of "Women in the Work Force" and her own experience in a male-dominated career setting.

Ron Castain, an engineer for instrumentation and control with the Baltimore Gas and Electric Co., urged the eighth graders he addressed, "to get a good education" and "learn all you can . . ."

Castain also told the students that they were "experiencing things today that 20 years ago did not exist."

Guidance Counselor Earnestine Stewart, said the school's faculty was "trying to get the kids to stay on course."

Sixth grade social studies teacher Mildred Long-Harper said the staff was "trying to get children to establish goals."

In addition to those named professions, there were, an artist, writer, journalist, fireman, policeman, youth director, psychiatrist, industrial hygienist, interpreter for the deaf, minister, parole officer and more.

Wilkes had just pulled his Pontiac behind the house to work on it. His son was a few doors away at a friend's house when he heard the shot and expressed shock that anyone would kill his father, who never bothered anyone.

The shooting has police baffled because the incident does not appear to be a robbery because Wilke's valuables were left on him.

Funeral services were handled by March Funeral Home earlier this week at the Good Shepherd Baptist Church, located at 3500 Park Heights Ave.

had several "feeling out" conversations with people about running in either the Fourth District or the Fifth District.

At this point, Dean, who now teaches sociology and social work at the Community College of Baltimore, said he is leaning against running. He said he would be supportive of other candidates because "new blood" is needed.

Dean was a state delegate from 1970 until 1982. He tried to recapture his old spot earlier this year in the Primary Elections, but failed.

Dean did not rule out the possibility of ever running for elective office again. He said it is too early to make a decision, and he would have to put together "an excellent, effective and efficient campaign organization," something he did not have last time out.

Dean also said if he does decide to run for City Council in the Fifth District he would not be facing an incumbent.

"No one is asking me to oppose an incumbent," he said. Dean would not say which of the three present councilpersons is expected to leave office or not run for re-election.

The Fifth District, presently is represented by Mrs. Iris Reeves, Mrs. Rochelle "Rikki" Spector, and Thomas Waxter

Mrs. Spector told the AFRO any vacancy in that district was "news to me" and she has heard nothing about it.

Mrs. Reeves said the matter has not come up in any of the discussions she has had with her fellow council persons.

"I haven't heard anything. My assumption is that everyone is running," Mrs. Reeves said. "At this point in time, my intentionis to run for re-election. I don't see anything down the road to make me do otherwise."

Waxter could not be reached for comment.

About Michael Mitchell

Looking back at the 1986 political races, Del. Larry young (D.-39th) has a few comments about state Sen.-elect Michael B. Mitchell's successful campaign for the 39th district post.

Mitchell, who was ill and unable to campaign much after the Sept. 9 primary, won handily over his Republican opponent, Victor Clark, by more than 7,000 votes.

Young said three factors helped elect Mitchell. His family name helped.

"It was a tribute to Mike Mitchell that the public would give him that kind of vote," Young said. "It was a tribute to me and my organization. We were out there and did the kinds of things that made it a race."

Young said the third factor was Clark did not receive much support from the Republican party.

Neighborhood Recreation Center after the city took over Shake and Bake when Glenn Doughty and other former owners were unable to meet their financial obligations after being granted extensions. Doughty defaulted on a $4 million city loan and the center then became part of the city's budget.

According to Richard Przybylowski, spokesman for Recreation and Parks, Ms. Mildred Waker is the acting director of Shake and Bake, but he declined to comment further on the status of the center. Mr. Delaporte could not be reached for comment and his assistant, Bob Caldwell, declined to speak in his superior's absence.

Delaporte hired Dease at a yearly incomeof $26,500 to manage the fun center. Delaporte was one of a half dozen witnesses called before the grand jury last Thursday.

SURPRISE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY FETE

Dorothy and Clarence Jones, better known as Dolly and Chick, were surprised recently on their 50th wedding anniversary with a party hosted by their daughters Portia Covington and Andrea Abraham at the Covington residence.

Chick and Dolly were speechless when they saw friends neighbors and family members, not only from Baltimore, but from Washington, DC and Annapolis, MD as well. There was even a phone call from Dolly's best buddy Ada Dabney in Virginia.

Their cousin, the Rev. Charles Simms gave a beautiful talk reminding them of what staying together for 50 years really means, and bringing their wedding vows up to date.

One son-in-law, Arthur Covington, led in giving the toasts, all of which came from the heart, with some amusement sprinkled in. Angela Covington gave the toast for the grandchildren, including herself and Kyron and Kyle Abraham.

The main photographer to help Dolly and Chick remember this occasion was son-in-law Sherman Abraham.

Among the guests were Tenyo and John Wiggins who had celebrated their 50th anniversary in August, along with Inez and Robert Reid, who will celebrate theirs in March, 1987.

The Rev. Marcus G. Wood took time from his busy schedule to wish the couple the best.

The food was great, the gifts were beautiful, but love was the most outstanding "aura" of the affair.

Guests from out-of-town included Mrs. Willie Waters, Hattie Ward, Mr. and Mrs. William Terrell and Mr. and Mrs. Preston Warren, Washington, DC; from Annapolis: Mr. and Mrs. James Carter, Ms. Dorothy Harris, the Rev. and Mrs. Charles A. Simms, Ms. Shirley Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Alton, Mr. and Mrs. Forester, Ms. Eugenn Bowman, Ms. Bestine Larkins, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Larkins, Ms. Margaret Green and Mr. and Mrs. Lafayett Isaac.

Guests from Baltimore included Ms. Sandra Simms, Ms. Irene Bond, Ms. Anna Davis, Ms. Elnora Cash, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Wesson, Ms. Marjorie Williams, Ms. Sandra Dorsey, Ms. Eunice Lokeman, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gatling, Mrs. William Dillard, Ms. Shan Dillard, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Goins, Mr. and Mrs. John Palmer, Ms. Henretta Thomas, Mrs. Margaret Evans, Ms. Lillian Hawkins, Ms. Patricia Wiggins, Jerome Wiggins, Mr. and Mrs. David Waters, Ms. Sylvia Gundy, Mrs. Victoria Brashears, Ms. Bluaie Wynn, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Brown.

90TH B'DAY CELEBRATION

A very festive atmosphere prevailed as John Reynolds celebrated his 90th birthday Saturday, Nov. 15. He, at 90, was the life of the party, held a t 3702 Dennlyn Rd.

The honoree and his guests enjoyed a delicious meal of Creole shrimp, baked ham, pasta salad and jello molds.

Everyone sang "Happy Birthday" and Reynolds cut the specially-made cake which sported a cigar made of icing.

As agile and jovial as he was for the party, Reynolds 91st birthday celebration should be a real blast.

Out to celebrate with the honoree were William McRae, John Burton, Victoria Jones, Ersel Smith, Elizabeth James, Carolyn Thompson, Arlene Redmond, Stephanie and George Gilliam, Eva Howard, Pamela Williams; Dewey Williams, Queen Esther Hill, Queenie Reynolds, Alberta Briggs; Also Rebecca Wilson, Washington, DC; Dwight Cunningham, New York; Betty Williams, Phillip Daniels, Austin Walker, Wilbert [illegible] Dorothy Johnson, John Wells, Kenneth Stotts, Gary Stotts, Joanne Stotts, Washington, DC; Guinevere and Walter Spurlock, Maria Boles, Leone and Joseph Felton, Niki Randolph, Lisa Randolph and Sandra and Berkley Mosley.

BOWIE ALUMNI MEET

The Frederick-Carroll (Counties) Chapter of the Bowie State College Alumni ASsociation Inc. started their 40th business year with their first monthly meeting on September 3, at the home of Mary and Noble Harris.

Officers for 1986-87 are: Ms. Mary V. Harris, president; Melvin Doweary, vice president; Mrs. Margaret Brown, recording secretary; Ms. Helen Butler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Audrey King, treasurer; and Mr. Henry Brown, chaplain.

The program, Scholarship and Publicity Committees were organized for the fiscal year. Also, plans were discussed for the annual dinner dance that will be held in May.

Every year a $500 scholarship is awarded to a high school graduate from Frederick County and Carroll County, each, who will be attending Bowie State College.

This past June scholarships were awarded to recipients Yolanda Murphy of Frederick County, and Wanda Willis of Carroll County.

A $500 grant was also awarded to Dwayne Whiten of Frederick County.

The Fred-Carroll Chapter also established a Gladys Irving Memorial Scholarship Fund at Bowie State College to financially assist Bowie students in their third or fourth year who are majoring in the field of education. The first $500 Gladys Irving scholarship will be granted this year.

The Fred-Carroll Bowie Alumni Association meets from September to June at the homes of the different members on the first Wednesday of every month, with the meetings starting at 8 p.m. The October 1 meeting was held at the home of Ms. Helen Butler, Baltimore, MD.

If you are interested in knowing more about this organization you can contact: Mary V. Harris, 301-874-2430; Melvin Doweary, 301-829-0135; Audrey King, 301-997-3146; or Sidney Sheppard, 301-542-5253.

JUGS BALL SET

The Baltimore Chapter of J.U.G.S. Inc. will present their annual Living Ads Ball on Saturday, November 22, at the Forum on Primrose Ave. J.U.G.S. is an acronym for the goals of the organization which are justice, unity, generosity and service.

J.U.G.S. Inc was founded in Memphis, TN in February 1955 by Mrs. Josephine Bridges and Dr. Sarah McKinney Chandler. The humanitarian instincts of the founders captured the imagination of others. There are now eleven chapters nationally.

Mrs. Mattie Slowe founded the Baltimore Chapter. Present officers include Bernice Hardy, president; Betty Dorsey, vice president; Eleanor Gwynn, recording secretary; Bridgette Dean, financial secretary, Carolyn Glascoe, treasurer and Rosemary Atkinson, business manager.

Other members are Helen Boyette, Helen Gregg, Francis Stith, Jeanne Saunders, Juanita Smith and Carleen Wilkes.

This year our theme is J.U.G.S. Inc. "Touching Others." Their way of touching this year is to raise funds to help establish a medical trust fund for Lorenzo (Huggie Bear) Simpson Jr., who was severely burned by house fire in 1985.

The highlight of the evening will be the presentatin of the Living Ads and the Flair Modeling Studio's Exotic Dance Ensemble

31 YOUNG WOMEN FETED

AKA holds Salute to Outstanding Young Women

IN A JOYOUS MOOD are these honorees who were feted as Outstanding Young Women at the annual Salute to Outstanding Young Women sponsored by the Epsilon Omega Chapter, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Saturday, Nov. 1 at the Forum, Primrose Ave. Seen (from L to R) Sherri Goodall, Annissa Sawyer, Margaret Petty, Doris Patterson and Cynthia Howard.

OTHER HONOREES CHATTING HAPPILY are (from L) Dale Bastian, Joy Alford, Pamela Wright, Patricia Parrish and Tracey Harrison.

They were lovely — bedecked in flowing gowns or tea-length dresses in a rainbow of vibrant hues and wearing writs corsages of pink carnation. They were talented. They were intelligent, either enrolled at prestigious colleges and universities, or already graduates upwardly mobile in their various fields.

Who were they? None other than the 31 beautiful young women feted at the 'Salute to Outstanding Young Women' sponsored annually by the Epislon Omega Chapter, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, which, for the past 12 years has been honoring young women of integrity and intelligence who have a commitment to community service.

Held at the Forum, Primrose Ave., Saturday, Nov. 1 with the theme 'Service with a Global Perspective,' and atteneded by a near-capacity crowd of proud parents, AKA sorors and other guests, the affair was as impressive as ever.

The 31 honorees were escorted to the dais by Darrell Jackson and Kevin Robinson, Honor Guards from the Douglass High School R.O.T.C.

Presiding at the program was Beulah M. Maxwell, Salute Chairperson, who recognized Sorors Mary Young, Rowena Lewis and Virginia Vauls, the latter of whom had the brainchild from which the 'Salute' was born.

Presenting the 1986 honorees were Sorors Nancy Brown-Holt and Janice L. Young, honorees from the years of 1982 and 1975 respectively.

Greetings were extended by Heloise Frazier, Chapter Basileus, the Occasion given by Elizabeth S. Williams and the stirring grace offered by Dolores M. Spriggs.

Before and during the luncheon, served on pink tablecloths with green napery, with pink carnations in silver vases as centerpieces, a musical interlude was provided by the Bob Smith Trio.

There were Greetings from the National Office given by Edna O. Campbell, Past National Supreme Basileus, and from the former honorees, extended by Karen C. Barland, a 1981 honoree.

There were proclamations — from the governor's office and the mayor's office proclaiming November 1, 1986 as 'Salute to Outstanding Young Women Day' in Maryland and Baltimore respectively. The latter was presented by Hilda Ford.

Soror Edmonia Yates, representing Soror Alice G. Pinderhughes and the Department of Education, brought greetings to the honorees, parents and friends, and Certificates of Merit to the honorees.

Awarding of the Certificates and personalized penholders with the AKA symbol was done by Beulah M. Maxwell.

Soror Jean B. Owens presented Scholarship recipients Velma Sampson, senior, Notre Dame College of Maryland, Communications Major; Charmaine Graham, junior, Morgan University, Business Technology major; Jacqueline Williams, junior, Coppin State College, Nursing major; Octavia Brown, sophomore, Coppin, Science major (got Second Chance Award); Sherri Scott, freshman, Towson State University, Accounting major; Detrus Janifer, freshman, Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University, FL, Science major; Courtney Lewis, freshman, Spelman College, Civil
