Bears jolt Delaware St. in 2nd win

Morgan State basketball, at least for the present, appears to have reached the proverbial "light at the end of the tunnel."

The Bears won their second straight game (the first time in 9 years to thus open a season) at Dover Wednesday night, jolting the Delaware State Hornets, 82-51.

In their opener last weekend, coach Nat Frazier's youngsters turned back St. Frances College, 61-58.

* * *

The early success is looked upon as a positive force by Frazier, who rebelled when he took over against pitting the undermanned Bears against the likes of SMU, New Mexico State, Clemson, etc.

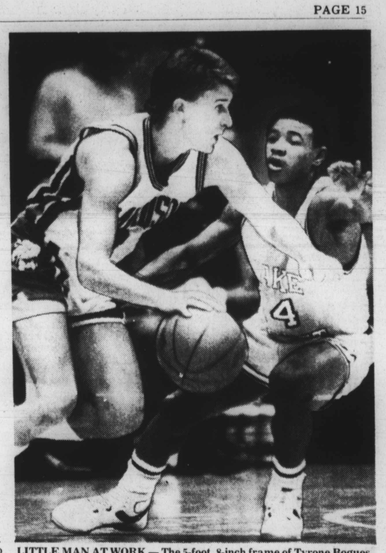
However, Morgan faces a real test Monday when the team travels to Richmond to take on perennially strong Virginia Commonwealth.

* * *

At Dover Wednesday night, the Bears broke in front early and were never headed.

Anthony Reid and Randy Hampton led the scoring with 18 and 15 points, respectively. Tony Brown added 11 and Gary Koter- was 10.

DelState was paced by Eric Wilson's 17 points and 13 by Reggie Garlick.



LITTLE MAN AT WORK — The 5-foot, 8-inch frame of Tyrone Bogues doesn't deter the little Deacon of Wake Forest from doing a consistently amazing job on the basketball floor. Bogues (right) is another product of Baltimore's Dunbar High School who is scintillating in collegiate ranks. He and his Wake teammates topped Davidson, 75-60, on Wednesday night at Charlotte, N.C.

Far-reaching city program planned for track hopefuls

What looms as one of the most unique development programs in the recent history of Maryland track and field, gets under way Dec. 14 at 5th Regiment Armory.

A series of competitions under the joint sponsorship of the Department of Recreation and the long-standing Ed Waters Track Club, will offer access to individuals of all ages, sexes, races and levels of performance.

It is hoped that the wide range of activities will entice boys, girls, men and women from ages 7 to 60 and over, and from beginners to former competitors who may think their days of gainful recreation are over.

Directors outline their plans:

"As opposed to simply planning and presenting a large scale activity to the public, the development program attempts to actually build from the 'grass roots' an all-encompassing program. It strives to meet the needs and interests of track and field enthusiasts of all ages. This city-wide program is designed to:

— organize local/community based teams
— offer training and coaching expertise
— sponsor local track and field competitions (both winter indoor season and summer)
— establish and organize parent support groups
— provide the mechanism for participating teams to acquire sponsorship and uniforms
— offer special activities for participating track athletes in the areas of tutoring and academic competitions
— sponsor and train top qualifying athletes participating in local meets on a city-wide team (Ed Waters Track and Field Alliance Club of Baltimore, Inc.), which represents our city in invitational, regional, and national level track meets
— establish a local Coaches' Association for national representation
— expose our young athletes to special leadership training programs (i.e. Outward Bound) and encourage their participation — utilize the services of a college liaison, whose responsibility lies in exposing colleges and universities nationwide to our local athletes, their talents and skills, for academic and scholarship purpose."

Further information on this year-round activity may be obtained at the Department of Recreation's Office of Developmental Recreation, 4901 Greenspring — 396-0933.

Packer's ban holds firm

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle Tuesday upheld his two-game suspension of Charles Martin following a hearing over a play in which the Green Bay Packers nose tackle slammed Chicago quarterback Jim McMahon.

Martin will miss, without pay, Sunday's game against Minnesota and the Dec. 14 game against Tampa Bay. The suspension will cost Martin $15,000—two-sixteenths of his $120,000 base salary.

Martin was suspended last Wednesday for throwing McMahon after the whistle during a Nov. 23 game. He appealed the suspension and played in Green Bay's Thanksgiving Day game against Detroit, then met with Rozelle Monday.

Martin was accompanied at the hearing in New York by Judge Robert Parins, the Packers president. Parins presented tapes of rough play by Chicago defensive tackle William Perry and linebacker Otis Wilson to show what he claimed was inconsistent officiating on late hits.

NBA notes

Ex-cager broke up house, wed another, says woman

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A May 17 trial date was set Wednesday for Memphis State basketball star Baskerville Holmes, whose ex-girlfriend accused him of hitting her and damaging her apartment the same day he married someone else.

Norma Jean Gooden of Memphis told police that Holmes harassed her Nov. 19. She said Holmes came to her apartment early in the morning, ordered her not to go work, hit her in the head and slapped her five times.

Holmes is charged with assault and battery and malicious mischief.

Holmes' attorney, Joe Brown, said that Gooden was a jilted lover who was angry because Holmes married someone else.

We deny the charges and apparently what it's all about is a vindictive woman," Brown said.

Gooden accused Holmes of calling her during the day and damaging her apartment while she was at work. She said clothing was torn up, her couch overturned and a stereo torn up. She said bleach was thrown over her clothes and the couch.

That same day, Holmes, 22, married the former Shirley Levette Currie.

Holmes was arraigned Wednesday in General Sessions court and released on his own recognizance.

Ex-Poet paces Hoya win

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Reggie Williams, the ring-leader on a youthful Georgetown team, literally did it all for the 12th-ranked Hoyas Wednesday night, playing all five positions and leading his team in scoring, rebounding and assists.

Williams, Coach John Thompson's lone senior, powered the Hoyas to a 96-52 rout of Grambling in Georgetown's home-opener, delivering 30 points, 17 rebounds and 6 assists.

* * *

"I'll play him everywhere I can," said Thompson. "I don't have the luxury not to. I think Reggie has got to do everything until the team grows up. He's got to be the heart and soul of the team."

The Hoyas improved to 3-0, while the Tigers dropped to 1-2. Georgetown never trailed and took control of the non-conference affair with a 20-4 spree late in the first half.

* * *

"They have to look up to someone and I'm the lone senior for them to look to and to take the load," said Williams, the last remaining player from the Hoyas 1984 NCAA championship team.

The 17 rebounds was the career best for the 6-foot-7 Williams, topping the 16 he grabbed last Jan. 8 against Connecticut.

"He's got the quickness and he's got the shot. Maybe he should concentrate on playing guard - he's a little bit like Magic," said Grambling coach Bob Hopkins, making reference to Los Angeles Lakers star Earvin "Magic" Johnson.
