AREA OBITUARIES

Fr. Eugene J. Hicks was member of old Baltimore family

A Memorial Mass will be celebrated Sunday, Jan. 18 for Rev. Eugene Joseph Hicks at Our Lady of Lourdes Roman Catholic Church, 3400 Edgewood Rd. at Liberty Heights Avenue, where father celebrated his last Sunday Mass in Baltimore in August, 1986.

John Cardinal O'Connor, archbishop of New York, celebrated the Mass of Resurrection at Saint Clare's Church, Staten Island, New York, where Father Hicks served as associate pastor for 29 of his 34 years as a priest.

Bishop Austin B. Vaughan, a classmate of the departed priest, and Bishop Patrick V. Ahern of the Archdiocese of New York celebrated the Mass of the Eucharist held the night before at St. Clare's. Throngs of Staten Islanders crowded the church at each Mass in response to Father Hick's work among them as a priest.

He was ordained May 14, 1952 as the first black priest in the Archdiocese of New York. He first serve in Hyde Park and then in Harlem before his long tenure at Saint Clare's which is in the Great Kills section of Staten Island. The Priest died two days after collapsing on the altar during his Thanksgiving Day morning Mass upon the conclusion of his distributing Holy Eucharist.

Father Hicks was descendent of the Grooms family of Baltimore. Last August, he visited the home of his deceased aunt and uncle. Myrtle Ave. He ended his visit with a Memorial Mass for departed family members. Especially remembered was his cousin George P. Bush who died in 1986, Constance Clark Dugger (1961), Nathaniel H. Mitchell (1966), William D. Taylor (1977), and his aunt (1958) and uncle (1978) all of whom he vi sited at "The House of Clark" (the name he dubbed the home) were also remembered during the Memorial Mass.

Branches of this six-generation Baltimore family include the family names Flint, Clark, Taylor, Dugger, Mitchell, Bush, Gibbs, Hicks, Woodland, Turks, Makel, Grooms, Chadwick, Thompson, Thomas, McRae, Collins, Murphy, Jackson, Wright.

Stop the killing group receives $88,000 grant

Rev. Willie Ray's war against senseless killings received a hefty boost, after the Stop-the-Killing campaign received a city grant of $88,000, to assist the organization's efforts to preparing youths for job placement.

The organization, Save Another Youth, was funded by Manpower in the Neighborhood Progress Administration to prepare youths' for job placement, skilled training and their G.E.D.

"We are very committed to helping our youths find alternatives to violent behavior," said Ray, who founded the organization after the April, 1984 murder of Craig Cromwell, a Calvert Hall basketball player, shot to death in West Baltimore.

"Human life is always important and something which is constructive as opposed to destructive, should be done to preserve it," said Sarah Cromwell, mother of the slain student.
