Black students stage protest in Peking

PEKING — More than 200 black students shouting "Africa, Africa" and jabbing their fists in the air barged through police cordons recently in an illegal 9-mile march through the capital to protest alleged racism in China.

The students took about 2½ hours to march from the Language Institute in northwest Pekins to the Sudanese and Moroccan embassies in the northeast diplomatic quarter.

At one point a black leader shouted, "We will protect the just rights and interests of African students," prompting calls of "Africa, Africa" from the crowd. One protester yelled, "We have had enough of China."

At issue is a typewritten letter sent to African embassies last week signed by the unknown "Chinese Students Association."

The letter praised China's achievements but added: "It doesn't mean that we will feed the whole uncultural Africa with the results of our efforts and we will allow any Negro to hang about our universities and annoy Chinese girls."

The letter warned African embassies to correct the behavior of "idling black students" or "even harder lessons will follow ... based on the experience of Americans who know very well what to do to curb the Negroes in their country."

Chinese university officials have denounced the letter as a "malicious circular" and said that the group which signed it was not genuine.

Word of the letter prompted black students Wednesday to boycott classes and examinations. Students said today they would not return to class until they received assurances from the Education Ministry that steps would be taken to end alleged racial harassment against blacks in China.

The incident is believed extremely embarrassing for Peking which prides itself on good relations with African nations.

The march was described by police and university officials as illegal under a city ban on demonstrations without advanced permission.

At one point, about 15 police blocked the entrance to the Sudanese Embassy but stepped aside when Ambassador Mohamed Hamad Mattar came outside. He advised the students Moroccan Ambassador Abdenahim Harkett was dean of the African diplomatic corps.

They marched to the Moroccan mission, where some 30 police blocked the entrance and shoved the students back. The protestors barged through into the embassy compound, where Harkett told them he had asked the Foreign Ministry earlier today to "assure the dignity and security" of Africans in China.

He also said he had requested a meeting between African student leaders and Education Ministry officials.
