C.U.E.S. holds breakfast

Churches United for Emergency Services (C.U.E.S.) sponsored the 4th Annual Prayer Breakfast in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Saturday, Jan. 10 at the Holiday Inn downtown.

The theme was: "We shall never forget."

In opening remarks, members of the organization noted: "We are here today for two very important reasons: One, we take this opportunity to reflect upon the life and dream of a man who dedicated his life to the realization of that dream, which was peace and equality for all men, of all nations.

"His concern for the poor, the hungry, the homeless and the destitute goes far beyond the scope of our thinking, and because Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s life has had such a positive impact upon all Americans, in all walks of life.

"We are gathered here today to help carry on a part of that work this man gave himself, even his life for."

Churches United for Emergency Services is a nonprofit organization established in October, 1982 for the purpose of assisting individuals and families with gas and electric turn-offs and deposits.

Residents living in the areas serviced by the Collington Square, Johnston Square, Clifton and Kirk Baltimore City Department of Social Service Centers and members of participating churches with a gas and electric turn-off notice are eligible to receive a donation toward the amount needed to prevent termination.

The organization is operated by volunteers and is funded by donations from participating churches and proceeds from special events.

The participating churches are: Eastern United Methodist Church, 1429 E. North Ave.; Mt. Calvary Star Baptist Church, 1725 N. Milton Ave.; New Second Baptist Church, 214 E. Lanvale St.; Philadelphia Baptist Church, 2401 E. Fayette St.; Shining Star Baptist Church, 1503 E. North Ave.; and Mount Hatten Baptist Church, 1752 N. Chester St.

Ministers' wives today face special problem

By Pani Widgeon

Today's minister's wife is often called "the first lady" in her church.

In her newest book, titled Today's Minister's Wife, Mrs. Weptanomah W. Carter talks about how a minister's wife can guard herself against unrealistic expectations. She also mentions to what extent the pastor's wife allows others to shape her role in the church and how a wife should respond to criticism from church members.

The 109-page paper back book covers a variety of topics dealing with ministers wives, their family, home, time for herself and time for the Lord.

"Many women tell me that the most difficult thing about being a minister's wife is having to live up to so many standards and expectations.

"Our churches must realize that each preacher's wife is unique. Some of us are interested in art, music, gardening, or decorating. Others of us prefer sports, camping, civic involvement and volunteer work. Some pastor's wives have Ph.d's while others feel equally content to have a high school diploma," said Mrs. Carter.

As a minister's wife and mother, in her book, she talks about time for the family and lists projects a wife can do with her children to help instill family loyalty in them.

She also writes about dealing with difficult people, church gossip, time for the home and special time set aside one night a week for a "date" with the minister.

She recommends "dress up and go out for a special evening together. Remember how it was before you were married," stated Mrs. Carter.

Mrs. Carter is an author and lecturer who is heard widely as a speaker in religious services, seminars and conventions.

A graduate of Millersville University, she is the first of her race to have earned the Master of Divinity degree from the Virginia Seminary. She also received the honorary degree doctor of literature from the same school.

She is the author of several other books and a seminar and workshop instructor. She has taught ministers wives and was the Bible teacher for the Women's Continental meeting in Nairobi, Kenya in 1982.

Her father, Dr. T. Robert Washington pastors the Second Baptist Church in Philadelphia. Her husband is the Rev. Dr. Harold A. Carter, pastor of New Shiloh Baptist Church and her son is the Rev. Harold A. Carter, Jr. and pastor of Zion Baptist Church in Reading, Pennsylvania. The Carters have one daughter, Weptanomah W. Carter.

The Right Faith

Like the many styles of clothes and makes and models of cars, there exists many kinds of faith in this present age.

Though there be a renaissance of faiths being painted upon the canvas of our times, can all of them be looked upon as the Right Faith, a faith that will sustain in hard times, a faith that will help us when we find ourselves in a moment of desperation?

Before we discuss the Right Faith — the faith that helps make the Pilgrims Progress — let us look at some of the other faiths around which many people are building their lives.

There is the faith of humanism, which is the modern expression of man's belief in man. It has its roots in the renaissance.

The rediscovery of Aristotle, a renewed interest in the arts, the spirit of exploration, improvements in farming techniques, and the decline of the feudal system brought mankind a surge of confidence.

But to those who place their faith in humanism, one must consider that along with man's triumphs comes terrible suffering and guevous injustice.

Crime rates keep rrising all over the world. Teenage suicide is escalating. The overfed rich and the starving poor are increasing. Drug abuse, venereal disease, abortion and other social evils continue to rise.

So then can the faith of humanism be considered the Right Faith, or would it be best to agree with the Bertrade Russell/Albert Einstein manifesto: "We have found that men who know the most about the future are the most gloomy."

To take another example, I would briefly mention the faith of escapism, the belief that we can find peace and solace in alcohol and drugs.

And there's the faith of occultism, mysticism, legalism, selfism and sacramentalism. These faiths are all inadequate. At best, they represent artificial realities. And today we need more than that. We need the Right Faith.

We need a rock in a weary land, a shelter in a time of storm, we need a bridge over troubled water.

If you place your faith in Jesus Christ, which is the Right Faith, you can have these things.

John 1:1; 17:5 tells us Christ is eternal. John 5:19 tells us Christ is all powerful. Matthew 18:20; 28:20 tells us Christ is everywhere. And Hebrews 1:3 tells us Christ is the upholder.

Wrong faith puts its trust in an object that is finite, fickle, and limited in knowledge and power. The contrast is obvious.

To have the Right Faith, the Bible gives the following steps:

1. Admit your sinfulness, Luke 13:3.

2. Believe Christ died for the sins of the world and rose again, 1 Cor. 15:3, 4.

3. Trust in Jesus Christ as your Saviour and Lord, Romans 10:9.

Receive the Right Faith today, it will help you face tomorrow.

Jehovah assembly

Hundreds of Jehovah's Witnesses from the Baltimore area convened in their Assembly Hall on Sunrise Beach Road off Route 178 in Crowsville, Maryland for their semi-annual two-day circuit assembly on January 17th and 18th.

Featured at the assembly were timely Bible discourses, practical demonstrations on how to apply Bible counsel and principles in daily life affairs, and the baptism of new ones who have dedicated their lives to the doing of Jehovah's Will.

The theme of the assembly was: "PROGRESSIVELY WALK IN JEHOVAH'S WAYS," which was emphasized throughout the two-day assembly program.

The highlight of the assembly was the public address at 2:10 p.m. Sunday afternoon. The theme of that address is: "ACTS OF GOD, WHAT ARE THEY?" The speaker was George Condilis, district overseer for Jehovah's Witnesses in the Baltimore-Washington area, a representative of the Watchtower Bible Tract Society.

Woodard begins study

Rev. Earl Nathan Woodard, 25, the Princeton-educated pastor of East Baltimore's David Memorial Baptist Church entered the Ph.D program at the American University in Washington, D.C. on Jan. 20, 1987.

Rev. Woodard is the proud son of Deacon and Mrs. Lorenza Woodard and the Grandson of the late Rev. William B. Davis. Upon completion of his studies, Rev. Woodard will be the youngest black pastor with a Ph.D. in Baltimore City.

G.L.A.D.D. seminar gets positive marks

When the time came for this seminar to end, you wished it could have continued. Once again these words came true at The New Rose of Sharon Baptist Church where Rev. Virginia Wise is the host pastor.

These words were spoken by Isaiah Hill, The Seminar director for G.L.A.D.D. G.L.A.D.D. is one of the newest training programs on how to effectively counsel drug and alcohol abusers.

After the student received their cerificates there was a mixture of emotions — some of the comments were "I believe if I had attended a G.L.A.D.D. seminar not too long ago I could have saved my son." — "I know a lot now about the street language." — "I understand now that just listening attentively is a part of counseling."

The most hilarious reaction was when the pastor said, "After learning the language of the drug users I will have to quit saving, I am a tea-baby, realizing now that tea is another word for marijuana." There were also tears as the new lay counselors departed. Velesto Courts featured three roll skits on G.L.A.D.D.

Another six hour intensive training course will be given again at 2 N. Carey St., Jan. 28th at 7 p.m. For more information call 687-3040 or 233-4590 at the conclusion of this seminar an official G.L.A.D.D. station sign was presented to The Church.

It is planned to have G.L.A.D.D. counseling stations in every church interested in dealing with alcohol and drug abusers.

Retired chemist dies at 59

PHILADELPHIA — Services were held January 7 for Carl J. Collick, 59, a retired chemist, who died New Year's Day after suffering a heart attack.

Collick, who lived in Philadelphia's East Falls section, died at the Hilton Hotel in University City.

Collick was a chemist for the Naval Air Propulsion Test Center in Trenton, NJ, until his retirement in 1984. During his career, he served as an equal employment opportunity counselor for the Navy's Appeals and Grievance Division.

During the Korean War, he served in the Army as a technical sergeant for the Airborne Infantry. He was a graduate of Delaware State College in Dover.

Collick was known for his community work as a tennis coach. He directed several youth tennis programs, including a summer camp at Woodford Tennis Club in Germantown and youth programs at the Philadelphia Tennis Club in Germantown and youth programs at the Philadelphia Tennis Club and the Arthur Ashe Youth Tennis Center.

At the time of his death, Collick was a tennis coach at Cheyney State College.

For his community affairs work, he received the Chapel of Four Chaplains Legion of Honor Membership Award.

Collick was a member of the U.S. Tennis Association and the U.S. Professional Tennis Association. In 1985, he won the Pennsylvania Open for Men's Singles and the Johnny Sample Tennis Tournament in Philadelphia.

He was a member of International Toastmasters and Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, and he was a Mason. He also was a member of House of Prayer Episcopal Church in Philadelphia.

Survivors include his wife, the former Lillian Frances Coleman; daughter, Shelah Ann Daniels, son, Carl Jr.; two grandchildren; a sister; three brothers, and several nieces and nephews.

Services were held at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, 52nd and Parrish Sts. Burial was at Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Jesse Fox, retired worker

Jesse Foxx, 74 retired postal worker who was active in Catholic Church circles, died on Saturday at his Jeffrey Rd. home.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday evening at St. Peter Claver Church.

He was an usher and was known as a caring and committed member of the Holy Name Society, the St. Vincent de Paul Society, and the Knights of St. John, of which he was chairman of the trustee board.

Friends remember him as a devoted father, brother, uncle and friend who was fondly known as "Uncle Jesse" by many to whom he gave comfort by volunteering his time and service.

He was a member of the Phalanax, and the Baltimore Club of Frontiers International.

Mr. Foxx was a veteran of World War II and joined the postal service shortly after his discharge in 1946. He retired in 1980.

Other survivors: son, Kenneth Earl Lockett, and granddaughter, Lynette Lockett, E. Orange, N.J., and several aunts and cousins.
