Jack and Jill celebrating 50th year

very important for the children involved.

"It helps them enlarge their group of friends, especially now that black people have become more mainstreamed and integrated," she said. "I grew up in Baltimore near Harlem Avenue and Bentalou Street with 200 people whom I called my friends. But now that black people are so much more transient and mobile, many of our children don't have that."

"Where some of our children are going to predominantly white private schools, Jack and Jill provides an opportunity for black kids to meet and make friends with other black kids," Sherrington - White said.

Many interstate friendships are formed at the teen conferences, as well as the bi-yearly national conventions and regional mothers' conferences, which have many activities for children and teens, said Baltimore Chapter president, Gladys Bragg.

Monica Wood is in her senior year in high school and her last year of Jack and Jill.

"I've gone to visit colleges, and it's amazing how many people I've met there who've been in Jack and Jill," she says. "Jack and Jill has been a worthwhile experience," she adds. "I've been a Jack and Jiller since I was three, and I'll be in it until I'm 18."

Williams memorialized

is carried by Luke, the physician who healed even more souls than bodies. And does not Christ say that one must come to God as a child? Are we not all children who must be guided in our understanding of the Divine Will? The world to come is given life not by water but by the Holy Spirit, and the "lake" in the "forest" is the spring and reservoir of the Spirit.

Finally, Luke's inspiration does not come from his view of a land beyond. It comes from the face of God, into which he looks directly and to which he must lead us by the hand.

The truth, then, for Dr. Roland Barksdale Williams is that though he is dead, he still lives forever in the land that the Lord has given to him. The promise given to him in the Commandment is fulfilled by God for his keeping of the Commandment. Roland is not the child who walks with the saint.

Roland is now full grown and he walks with God. The work he did in life, has spoken for him eternally.

Anethia Williams, Dr. Williams' mother, wanted to do something special for the church and the idea of the stained glass window came from Mr. & Mrs. Prentis Nolan. The Reverend Charles Taylor, Interim Rector, was delighted over the gift.
