Birds to open with hopes of better season

The Baltimore Orioles were still shuffling players in and out of the city a few days before kicking off the 1988 season Monday at 2:05 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

Hopes were high for a better showing than last year's unsteady performance but there were question marks in many places as new general manager Roland Hemond and manager Carl Ripkin Sr. prepared to send the Birds into action against the Milwaukee Brewers, another team not expected to have smooth sailing this year.

* * *

Wednesday, the Birds released veteran outfielder Lee Lacy and brought in Wade Rowden, an infielder-outfielder from the Chicago Cubs. Also Wednesday, the Birds placed Don Aase, the relief pitcher, on the 15-day disabled list, did the same thing with outfielder Ken Gerhart, dating his retroactive to March 15 and dispatched infielder-outfielder Pete Stanicek to Rochester.

Lacey had another year on his contract and will be paid $400,000 for the season.

What the Birds hope to improve on this season is their 18-60 record in the American League East, the second worst run-scoring record with 79, the AL's lowest stolen bases total with 69 and a league second-lowest in the complete-game total of 17 by the pitching staff.

FINAL FOUR SMILE—Arizona forward Sean Elliott raised the nets after his team defeated North Carolina and moved on to the Final Four in Kansas City to meet the Oklahoma Sooners. Winner of this NCAA semifinal game Saturday is favored by many to claim national championship.

64 teams down to 4 in NCAA

The NCAA championship playoffs are down to the Final Four games and when the dust settles Saturday evening in Kansas City, Mo.'s Kemper Arena, there will be just two left for Monday night's final match-up.

In Saturday afternoon's first game it will be Duke against Kansas while the second semi-final match pits Oklahoma against Arizona.

Arizona Coach Lute Olson said he would allow his experienced guards to determine the tempo of Saturday's game against Oklahoma.

"They've played 37 games, we've played 37 games," Olson said. "At this point, it gets down to who can get who to play their game."

The Sooners, 34-3, averaged 104 points per game this year; with an average 85 points.

Guards Steve Kerr and Craig McMillan, both three-year starters, will draw the assignment of dictating the tempo.

* * *

Duke's poorest shooter, Billy King, has scoredin double figures only twice in 34 games and averages less than 50 percent from the foul line.

But he has defensive skills that have earned him the nickname "Secretary of Defense" and the respect of opposing teams.

Duke, 28-6, is ranked fifth nationally while Kansas, 25-11, is the unexpected team at the Final Four.

"Billy is definitely a cornerstone of the team because he is one of the big leaders," said Duke's leading scorer and rebounder, Danny Ferry, a 1988 UPI All America selection.

* * *

King, a 6-foot-6, 205 pounder from Sterling, VA., is more modest:

"I'm just a competitor going against other great competitors," said King. "Going into each game, I know I face a challenge, especially when its a guy like (Temple's Mark Macon."

The 18-year-old Macon made only 6 of 29 shots, including 7 air balls, against King.

Macon joined a club of other well-known players whose offensive production has been limited by King's defensive tenacity. Perhaps the best example this season came Feb. 7 when David Rivers, the third leading scorer in Notre Dame history, shot only 3 of 17, largely due to King's persistent hounding.

Physique titles on tap April 10

The Maryland Association of the AAU of the USA has sanctioned the 1988 Mr. and Ms. Maryland Physique championships for April 10, to be held at Steelworkers Hall on Dundalk Avenue in Baltimore.

The annual event begins at 12 noon and will contest both novice and championship athletes in senior, teenage and masters divisions.

Wade, Md. Terps land coveted Jerrod Mustaf

HYATTSVILLE, Md. — Jerrod Mustaf, one of the nation's most prized high school basketball players, will attend Maryland, providing Terrapins a premier big man for the second consecutive season.

The 6-10, 200-pound Mustaf, who can play center or either forward position, averaged 22 points, 15 rebounds and four blocked shots this past season at DeMatha High School, the perennial scholastic powerhouse that produced Adrian Dantley, Kenny Carr and Danny Ferry.

Mustaf said he chose Maryland over Georgia Tech and Howard.

"I have decided to become a Terrapin and attend the University of Maryland," Mustaf, flanked by his parents and high school coach Morgan Wootten, said during a news conference in the DeMatha Library.

Mustaf, who led DeMatha to a 30-3 record this past season and the Washington city title, gives Maryland's Coach Bob Wade another explosive inside threat and compensates for the loss of senior power forward Derrick Lewis.

Mustaf cited Maryland's "positive outlook to minorities" as a reason for attending Maryland. Both Wade and Mustaf are black.

Mustaf sent questionnaires to about a dozen schools requesting information about the number of black faculty members, black staff members in the athletic department and the percentage of black enrollment.

Black coaches

The Men's Division I NCAA Final Four Championship activities will not be limited to the Kemper Arena floors in Kansas City as the Black Coaches Association will highlight its Final Four Executive Board meetings with an April 3 noon panel discussion.

The panel includes coaching legend Clarence "Big House" Gaines of Winston-Salem State University; John B. McLendon, Jr. of Tennessee State University fame and currently a representative with Converse, Inc.; Will Robinson, pro scout and administrator with the NBA Detroit Pistons; and Fred Snowden, former University of Arizona head basketball coach and associate athletic director.

The discussion will focus on issues pertaining to the problems and concerns black coaches and black student/athletes face in inter-collegiate athletics, according to University of Iowa assistant backetball coach and BCA Executive Director Rudy Washington.

Colts take 'skin

INDIANAPOLIS — Indianapolis has traded an undisclosed future draft choice to the Washington Redskins for wide receiver-kick returner Clarence Verdin, Colts officials said.

Verdin, a third-year NFL player out of Southwest Louisiana, played in three games for the Redskins last season. The 5-foot-8, 160-pounder has two NFL receptions and 20 kickoff returns.

Prior to joining the NFL, Verdin played for the Houston Gamblers of the USFL, where he caught 100 passes and returned 53 kickoffs over two seasons.

Manning chosen

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Danny Manning, a two-time All-America from Kansas, was named the recipient Tuesday of the 14th Eastman Award, whichis given to the top player as determined by a vote of college basketball coaches.

Army serving as a member of the Military District of Washington Army Presidential Honor Guard retiring after 23 years.

Returning from military service he taught in the D.C. Public Schools becoming principal at Rudolph Elementary School retiring after seventeen years. He was an Elder at the Thirteenth and Irving Street Church of Christ and an active member of the Southeast Civic Association and a scout master for the Boy Scouts of America for more than 15 years.

Tarter was employed with the Department of the Army for 30 years. He retired in 1981.

He loved sports; bowling, golfing, and playing cards with his friends and family. He also enjoyed collecting records and photography.

He is survived by his wife, Peggie; one sister, Clarice Watts; three brothers, Robert C., Charles L., Glenn S.; three sisters-in-law, one brother-in-law; and a host of other relatives and friends.

Lois Wooten, educator, eulogized

Funeral services for Mrs. Lois Copeland Wooten were held Saturday, March 26 at 11 a.m. at Garrison Boulevard United Methodist Church, 2506 Garrison Blvd. She died Monday, March 21st at Mercy Hospital.

Mrs. Wooten is the wife of the Rev. James H. Wooten, retired minister of the Baltimore Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Wooten has been a teacher in the Public Schools of Maryland for over 30 years; beginning her teaching career in the Harford County School System in 1948. She taught English and was the school librarian at the Colored High School, before integration.

She was a graduate of Douglass High School in Baltimore, and Virginia State College, Ettrick, Virginia.

She also did further study at the Catholic University in Washington, New York University and North Carolina College in Durham, receiving certification in Library Science.

In 1950, she joined the faculty of the Harriet Tubman High School in Howard County, continuing in the field of English and school librarian.

In 1958, she accompanied her husband to his first appointment in the Methodist Church in Clarksburg, West Virginia, returning in 1961 to Baltimore where they served the Milton Avenue Methodist Church for 10 years.

Returning to Baltimore, she resumed teaching, first as a substitute teacher, but later as a regular teacher at Houston Woods Junior High School, Garrison Junior High School and Greenspring Junior High School. She retired from Greenspring on disability in 1982.

Mrs. Wooten taught mostly in the areas of Special Education, where her patience and love for children seemed most rewarding. She seemed capable of communicating love to the children who needed so much understanding and remediation. She was able to create an atmosphere for learning through her visual techniques and displays.

Her room was always a place where supervisors and teachers would often come to get ideas. Her bulletin boards and displays were often discussed by her superiors.

She was urged many times to put some of the ideas and techniques in print, and she had vowed to edit a demonstration pamphlet. This was a task she did not complete.

Because of her ability to establish a rapport with her students, the most disruptive students in other classes became cooperative and manageable, when entering her classroom.

In addition to her teaching, she was a loyal minister's wife, working along with her husband at the various churches to which he was assigned.

Mrs. Wooten is survived by her husband, Rev. James H. Wooten; a son, Darryl Eugene Wooten; one granddaughter, Natasha; and other relatives and friends.
