St. Mark celebrates Heritage Day

St. Mark United Methodist Church of Hanover has a sure-fire mix for success — a firm relationship between the clerical and lay components of the congregation.

Under the leadership of pastor Roland J. R. Timity, the church has evolved into a community center of religious and secular guidance.

That atmosphere was probably best illustrated several weeks ago during the annual Heritage Day. On that Sunday, the descendants of Anne Arundel County farmers, horsemen and engineers dressed in traditional costumes and came to church ladened with examples of their forebearers' handiwork.

They were met by many parishioners from Africa, dressed in their native garb and sharing the fruit of their homelands.

"The activities celebrate how far we have come to the present time in America," said Pastor Timity, a Sierra Leone native who holds a doctorate and several masters' degrees.

Under Rev. Timity's administration, the church has reached out to encompass a growing African community. But at the same time, he has glorified the immediate past of his Anne Arundel County constituents.

Irving Gaither, a teacher at Baltimore's Mergenthaler Vocational-Technical High School and a driving force behind the annual Heritage Day, spoke of his ancestors' contributions to the larger community.

Gaither, who arrived at one Heritage Sunday activity at the reins of a horse-drawn buggy, said the county farmers once were known far and wide for their strawberries and cantaloupes.

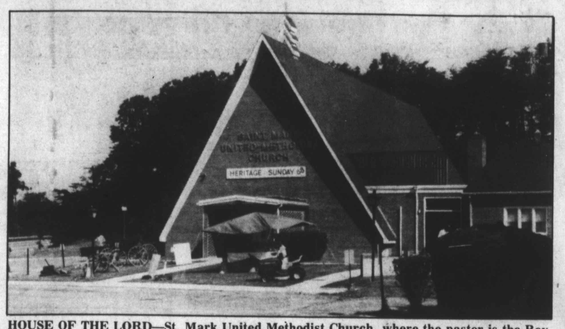
He said, however, that truck farming, which brings in the same crops from other regions, spelled the end of the once booming agricultural industry in the county.

"You'd starve to death if you had to make a living farming these days," he said with a laugh.

Rev. Timity quick to point out how the people of his homeland and the residents of Anne Arundel County shared a common agricultural heritage.

But in a humorous vein, he said many natives of Sierra Leone still depend on some of the old-fashioned farm implements Anne Arundel County residents display as relics during Heritage Day.

"In some cases things haven't changed," he said. "Some of the farmers take pride in the fact that they don't have to go to the Holiday Inn for exercise."



HOUSE OF THE LORD—St. Mark United Methodist Church, where the pastor is the Rev. Roland J. R. Timothy is located in Hanover, MD., a place of history and culture.

ALL GOD'S CREATIONS—Five little pigs were on the scene at Heritage Day '88. Farming was a way of life for many of our ancestors and still remains a means of production for many.

WHEN WE ALL GET TOGETHER—Heritage Day was a grand celebration at St. Mark United Methodist Church in Hanover, MD. as children and adults from the church and community gathered together to celebrate the heritage of not only a community but of a people.

Rev. Timity was quick to praise Hilda Macauley and Esther Watts for their coordination of Heritage Day, and also praised the church's lay leader, Daniel Butler for his leadership.

"The people seem to be more relaxed when they worship on Heritage Sunday," Butler said.

He described how people were eager to share their artifacts and creations with their fellow parishioners, and how church members and their guests all brought covered dishes to share.

Rev. Timity, in keeping with the Heritage theme, invited a Bishop from the Coptic Church, generally credited as one of the oldest churches in the world (it originated in Ethiopia) to speak.

The lay community also shows its spirit in a variety of other ways, as illustrated by a recent night of drama hosted by the church.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Irene Hebron, the drama coach and Hilda Simms, president of the United Methodist Women, the church sponsored a series of short plays during their annual dinner theater.

As the accompanying photographs show, a fine time was had by all.

A WORD OF HOPE

By Maxine L. Wallace
Church News Editor

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." John 14:27

We are living in a world filled with doubt and uncertainty. The United States isn't sure whether it can trust the Soviet Union . . . blacks are afraid to trust blacks . . . husbands don't trust their wives . . . children doubt their parents' genuine concern . . . and sometimes, we are even unsure of ourselves.

Not only is there doubt and uncertainty, but their are forces and obstacles in this world that would seek to drain us of every ounce of joy and every thread of peace.

Yet in the midst of all of our complexities and uncertainties, Jesus is saying I am your peace.

There are several definitions for the word peace. But let us examine peace in the context of an undisturbed state of mind . . . the absence of mental conflict.

The Bible says in this world you will have tribulations . . . Things are not always going to go the way I want them to go . . . sometimes I may have to cry in the midnight hour.

God never promised that just because you are saved and know Him in a personal way that everyday would be sunny and bright. For you see, my friend, in every life some rain must fall. We're not always going to be on the mountain top . . . For sometimes we have to go through the valley.

Yet we can take courage in God . . . Although circumstances may look bleak and drear, we must put our hope and trust in the All Mighty God. Are you persuaded that nothing is too hard for our God. The Bible says with God, nothing shall be impossible unto you.

That means that you can put your hope in God and trust Him to work out every detail in your life.

God loves you and He cares about you. He does not want you living a life that is less than victorious in Him.

God wants you to take your eyes off of the immediate circumstances and let the eyes of your faith look up to Him.

Be encouraged today . . . allow no problem or situation to present itself as being bigger than our God. For God is omnipotent . . . He is All Powerful.

When all around your soul gives way don't look down . . . look up. Lift up your heads Oh ye gates, and the King of Glory shall come in!

Jesus says my peace I give unto you. Jesus is offering you His peace today.

Jesus' peace is not like the peace the world has to offer you. So many people are searching for peace.

Some try to find peace in a bottle of alcohol . . . others try to find peace by taking drugs. . . . Many have tried to find it in their relationships . . . or in the clothes store . . . Some try to find peace in the grocery store.

But if the truth be told, none of these things can bring true peace of tranquility. For with the temporary tranquility comes unavoidable consequences. . . .

Only Jesus can bring true peace. . . .

To know peace is to know Jesus. . . . To know Jesus is to know peace. Beloved, invite Jesus to come into your heart. May His love, truth, and peace, rest, rule and abide with you. . . . henceforth, now, and forevermore, Amen.
