Smile orchids

Smile orchids to Mrs. Margaret H. Turner. She's the Appleton St. resident who is noted for her unusually pleasant manner despite the fact that she has two artificial limbs and requires crutches.

Many admire Mrs. Turner because she does not let her own affliction keep her from cheering others. We watched her in action on Friday at St. Mark's Catholic Church in Catonsville, where she joined in comforting kin of Edward A. Williams, the beloved educator. (See below).

Cuff note: More orchids to Mrs. Turner's hubby, Ellsworth, the retired postal worker. He has engaging smile, too. Belated birthday cards to Mrs. Turner. Hers was July 9.

* * *

Plenty of sunshine in the voice of young Miss Yvette Shipley. She's the dental technician in office of Dr. Nelson Fain. She spends her spare time performing with the Baltimore Dance Theatre. Group directed by Mrs. Eva Anderson—another lovely lady to know—is preparing for a fall date with the Black Arts Festival in Atlanta.

More smiles

More smile orchids to these good neighbors—Godfrey Thomas, sky cap at Baltimore-Washington Airport where he has been employed 40 years. When we watched him at work on Sunday he was singing the praises of his eye doctor—Dr. Earl Kidwell—and talking about how he was enjoying his new glasses.

And to James D. Williams, national NAACP director of public relations. His office at NAACP convention in D.C.'s Sheraton Hotel was a joy to watch in action on Monday. News releases were timely and in place for media people and staff had relaxed and friendly manner.

Plenty of sunshine—Mrs. Linda Hursey, Mr. Williams' assistant and office manager. She's a product of Forest Park High and the U. of Md., at College Park, and a member of Concord Baptist Church.

Cuff note: Seems only yesterday, but it was over 30 years ago when Mr. Williams, received his early news training on the AFRO's city desk here in Baltimore. Time flies!

Mailbag: Mrs. L. K. Heinson, writes: "In my neighborhood here in East Baltimore, we often talk about how helpful and nice city workers who collect trash are, but we never get a chance to say so in person. Please say our thanks and hellos to the men who collect the trash off our block on Orleans St. We think it would be nice to have the city conduct a contest for the best trash collectors, especially those who manage to smile doing this dirty work. . ."

Youth shine

The NAACP's 79th annual convention in Washington this week attracted some 10,000 persons from all over the country. Words are inadequate to describe the thrill one feels sitting in sessions, rubbing shoulders with giants in the civil rights movement.

And one of the biggest thrills is attending the annual ACT-SO awards ceremony. The Washington Sheraton Hotel Ballroom was packed for this Monday afternoon event.

As winners' names were called, relatives and friends of the winners squealed with delight and gave their favorites sustained applause. It was truly a glorious occasion.

Baltimore students won two first place $1,000 awards, Linda Fisher, 18, School for Arts, dance category, and Cleveland Chandler, Jr., 16, classical instrument-violin, also School for Arts.

Chandler also won $12,000 computer from Digital Co., and an additional $3,000 scholarship from McDonalds.

Finalists

Over 25,000 students, grades 9 to 12, representing 450 cities compete in city, state and regional ACT-SO contests in 25 categories, ranging from architecture and biology to poetry, sciences, sculpture and visual arts, under the theme, "black is brilliant."

Baltimore city finalits who were runners-up. were: Walter Slowe, 17, Forest Park High, dramatics; Russell Harris, 17, Southern High, painting; Leighton Barrett, 18, Lake Clifton High, film making; Albert Prater, 17, Calvert Hall, classical vocal; Gail Taylor, 17, Milford Mill, mathematics; Erika Dechields, 18, Northern High, popular vocal; and Stacey Malloy, 18. Southern High, poetry.

Mrs. Delores Pierre, is Baltimore coordinator for ACT-SO.

Cuff Note: ACT-SO is acronym for Afro-Academic, Cultural, Technological and Scientic Olympics.

Program was founded ten years ago by former newsman, Vernon Jarrett, who presided at this year's award ceremony. He had famous rights figures and leaders like journalist Carl Rowan and Mrs. Medgar Evers, widow of the slain rights leader, to present awards to student winners. Very impressive.

People doing thoughtful things for others: Members of Zion Baptist Church's Golden Age Club gathered at Villa St. Michael on June 30 to gift and sing happy birthday to Mrs. Edna Mitchell, who was 97 years old. She's mother of clubwoman, Bernice McDaniels.

Belated birthday hellos to Charles (Kye) Lewis, Bentalou St. good neighbor and retired businessman. he was 89 on Saturday.

The election of Rev. John R. Bryant to the bishopric leaves the pulpit of Baltimore's prestigious Bethel Church vacant.

* * *

Word from AME convention in Fort Worth, Texas, is that the new bishop is assigned to Nigeria, and that the new pastor of Bethel will not be known until after the conference.

Baltimore lost two fine members of the same family, with the recent deaths of Mrs. Jeanne M. Thomas-Simms, and her brother, Richard Thomas.

Mrs. Simms, 65, who held a doctorate in psychology and taught in city schools and area colleges, was known as a multi-talented individual. She died on June 6 after an extended illness and was mmemorialized on June 28 at Madison Ave. Presbyterian Church.

The brother, Mr. Thomas, 58, an architect with the U.S. government, retired May 31, and was hospitalized June 1. He was given last rites on Wednesday, July 6 at Madison Ave.

A Lincoln U. grad, Mr. Thomas was the architect who designed Purnell Village and the Garrison Blvd. Apartments. His work won him commendation from Dover AF Base, which presented special citation on his retirement.

Both Mr. Thomas and his sister, Mrs. Simms, grew up in the 2500 block of Druid Hill Ave., where he lived at the time of his death.

Their parents were the late Richard and Anna Cassell Thomas, pioneer members of Madison Ave. Presbyterian Church. There are no immediate survivors.

"Uncle Ed"

Edward A. Williams, the retired educator who was memorialized last Friday (July 8), was fondly called "Uncle Ed" by many family members, his daughter's friends and associates.

Reason: he was like a real uncle to many—a caring person who extended himself to help others and did so in an unselfish way. He was 75 when he died on July 2.

Family and friends gathered at St. Mark's Catholic Church in Catonsville to say goodbyes on Thursday evening. There, many had an opportunity to see for the first time a distinguished black bishop in action—the Rt. Rev. John H. Ricard, who said the rosary.

At the funeral mass on Friday morning, the pastor, Msgr. John H. McCall, told of Mr. Williams' dedicated church work. He was eucharistic lay minister and active in the Knights of Columbus.

Also, he was for 41 years teacher and administrator in the city public schools, retiring in 1974 as principal of George F. Bragg School, a public farm school facility for emotionally disturbed boys then located in Catonsville.

Nice gesture: Representatives of organizations with which Mr. Williams was affiliated turned out in large numbers at both services.

There were special tributes from his fraternity, Kappa Alpha Psi, by Joel Newton from fellow educators by Robert P. Diggs, and from Baltimore Chapter of Guards-men, which he cofounded in 1934, by Donald Patterson and Dr. M. Guy Bragg ("Guardsmen has lost one of its pillars").

Survivors: Wife of 49 years, Liz Mason Williams; daughter Deborah Williams, grandson, Edward Malik; sister, Mrs. Mary W. Savage, and brother, Franklyn T. Williams, all of Baltimore.

Vacation Bible School opens

Be "CHAMPIONS FOR JESUS." Ages nursery to adult are invited to attend Vacation Bible School at Fountain Baptist Church, 1215 E. Monument Street. Sessions will be held each evening from 6 p.m.-8 p.m., July 11 thru July 22.

Enjoy ten days of Scripture discovery lessons, singing, craft projects and other creative activities. Mrs. Rosa Fields is VBS directress and Rev. Herman Ford is pastor.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Customers of Baltimore City Water Supply
Lead, Drinking Water, And You

This public notice is provided by the City of Baltimore as public information for the people in Baltimore City, Baltimore County, Anne Arundel County, and Howard County, who drink water from this public water supply.

Information contained in this notice concerning lead is being published nationwide under the direction of the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Lead in the environment is an important public health issue. Relatively speaking, the lead contribution from water is minimal. However, Federal law requires that water purveyors rnotify the public of the potential for lead being present, the potential health problems, and methods to minimize exposure.

Lead poisoning is primarily a problem for young children. The major source of lead exposure in children is lead paint. Millions of housing units in the country still contain previously applied leaded paints. Lead contaminated soil and dust have become important contributors to blood lead levels as a result of leaded gasoline and peeling lead paint. Lesser sources include lead-contaminated food, toys, newspaper, pottery, and water. The degree to which elevated lead levels in water contribute to blood levels in children is uncertain and under study. However, it is desirable to reduce lead in the environment wherever feasible.

As your supplier of drinking water, the City of Baltimore has prepared this information to help educate you on this issue. The quality of water supplied by the City of Baltimore meets or is better than the Federal and State standards, including the standard for lead. The average level of lead found in the water delivered to your home's service connection is 0.005 parts per million. However, tap water may contain higher levels of lead leached from lead plumbing materials used at your home.

The EPA sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

- if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
- if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and
- if the home is less than five years old, or
- if you have soft or acidic water, or
- if water sits in the pipes for several hours, or
- if the home has had major plumbing work within the last five years.

Typically, if lead is present in the drinking water, it enters after the water leaves your local water distribution mains. The most likely source for lead contamination is in the home or residence. The most common cause of lead entering drinking water is corrosion, a reaction between the water and the lead pipes or the lead-based solder. When water stands in the pipes of a residence for several hours without use, there is a potential for lead to leach, or dissolve, into the water if a lead source is present.

Soft water (water that makes soap suds easily) can be more corrosive and, therefore, has higher levels of dissolved lead. Some home water treatment devices may also make water more corrosive.

It was common practice in the United States through the early 1900's to use lead pipes for interior plumbing. Until 1986, however, lead-based solder was used widely to join copper pipes. Lead-free solder and lead-free materials are now required by Federal law for use in new household plumbing and for plumbing repairs. To find out if the plumbing in a residence contains lead, try scratching the pipe with a key or screwdriver. Lead is a soft metal and is dull gray in color. If lead pipes are present they will scratch easily and will be shiny when scratched.

Dissolved lead cannot be seen in water. However, if there is reason to believe that your drinking water has lead contamination because of the presence of soft water, lead pipes, lead solder, and other lead-based plumbing materials, there are ways to minimize exposure.

1. One way is to "flush" each cold-water faucet in your home when water stands more than a few hours. Flushing a cold-water faucet means allowing the water to run until it gets as cold as it will get before each use. Normally this may take up to two or three minutes. Keep in mind that toilet and shower use or doing laundry with cold water will also move water through the plumbing system, and this will reduce the amount of time needed to flush the cold water faucets from five to thirty seconds.

2. Another way is to avoid cooking with or consuming water from the hot water faucet. Hot water dissolves lead more quickly than cold water. Especially avoid using hot tap water for making baby formula. If hot water is needed for cooking or oral consumption, draw water from the cold water tap and heat it.

3. If plumbing repairs or other plumbing work is done, make certain that only lead-free solder and other lead-free materials are used. This is now a Federal law.

4. If you have a health concern regarding a lead source in your environment, you should contact your doctor or your local City or County Health Department. For Baltimore City, please call 396-HELP.

For additional information, please contact the local Utility, local or State Health Department, or the EPA. EPA has a toll-free hotline dedicated to this subject, 1-800-426-4791, and has also prepared a booklet on this issue, which they will send to you free of charge.

This information meets EPA's lead public notice requirements under Section 1417 of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1986.

As your local provider of water, the following actions are being taken by the City of Baltimore to assure you of the highest possible quality drinking water. In the continuous water treatment process at the Montebello and Ashburton Water Treatment Plants, the pH level and mineral content is adjusted to deliver minimally-corrosive water to you. (It dissolves lead slowly when compared to corrosive water). The corrosivity level of City water is monitored and tested after treatment to assure you of minimally corrosive water. The existence of lead service connections in the distribution system, and the effect of these services, if any, on the drinking water quality at the household tap is currently being investigated. The City of Baltimore is replacing lead pipes as part of its regular maintenance and repair contracts for water mains and meters.

If you have, or suspect you have lead service line or lead plumbing in your home, or have any additional questions on this issue, please contact the Water Quality Section of the Bureau of Water and Waste Water at 396-LEAD, Monday through Friday between 9 A.M. — 4 P.M.

57th annual assembly of the United Churches of God

By Catrice Greer
AFRO Correspondent

Fifty-seven years old, the United Church of God is holding its 57th Annual Assembly and is expected to continue to Timonium, Maryland to July 17.

The convention is basically the assembly of the United Churches of God which are composites of the Northern District which consists of New York, New Jersey, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Within this framework are ten churches that claim membership in the Northern district.

The purpose of the convention is not only to assemble the churches of the northern district, but to spark the awareness of churches in the Baltimore area about the United Church of God.

The United Church of God is eager to expand its young but growing branch of the Christian denomination. For that reason they have come to Baltimore in order to recruit new members.

"We are hoping to take in more churches for the organization;" says Marvin D. Williams, overseer. The main focus is to make our presence known.

"Last year, the response that we received from surrounding churches was encouraging. We thought we would return this year with the goal of expanding and bringing more churches into the organization," says Williams.

This young Southern-based church, has a congregation that is a composite of young professionals, adolescents, and young couples.

"We're just getting our feet wet," says Williams.

The United Church of God offers activities and programs which cater to the growing needs of its members.

One such program is a scholarship fund that was handled by the United Church of God's Sunday School Youth Department. This fund is available to the adolescent members of the church seeking higher education.

"We encourage young people to seek higher education. They limit themselves by not seeking higher education," says Williams.

The United Church of God tries to stress that "we're interested in you as a whole person. We don't want to just save your soul," says Williams.

So far speakers such as Minister Anita McLean from Greater Stephens, Brooklyn New York have addressed the congregation of newcomers and current members.

Although the United Church of God has hosted this convention for only two years, according to Williams, the response has been favorable.

This young pentecostal church has not yet made its decision as to whether it will return to Baltimore next year.

According to Williams, that decision will be made after the progress made in Baltimore has been evaluated.

Only then will a decision be made to return to Baltimore or move on to another prospective site.

In addition, there were also presentations and an extension of greetings made by the Baltimore County Executive Office, Courthouse Mezzanine, Executive Assistant, Adrienne Jones.

There are also two services being held per day at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

"We have had quite a number of independents attend. They came, saw and the reports are favorable" says Williams in reference to the enthusiasm of independents attending the convention.

IGNITING THE FIRE — Associate Minister Elder David Easterling of the United Church of God in St. Paul, New York presided over the Northern District's convention.

MESSENGER OF GOOD FAITH — Minister Anite Mclean of Greater St. Stephens, Brooklyn, New York delivered messages of good faith to the members of the Northern District and newcomers.

EXPANSION OF THE SOUL — The United Church of God's Northern District assembled at the Holiday Inn located in Timonium, Maryland congregate together and recruit new members from the Baltimore area.

WELL WISHER — Adrienne Jones, Executive Assistant to the Baltimore County Executive officer of the Courthouse Mezzanine extends greetings to Bishop S. M. Leak of the United Church of God (Northern District)

FROM HANDS TO HEARTS — The Northern District of the United Church of God tapped out the rhythms of their souls as they prayed and sang together during their seven-day convention in Timonium.
