You can help us raise the colorectal cancer cure rate.

"If everyone over 50 had checkups for colorectal cancer, the cure rate could be as high as 75%," says Dr. Lasalle D. Leffall, Jr., past president, American Cancer Society. "You can't cure it if you don't know you have it." But if it's detected early, the cure rate for colorectal cancer is very high. Your doctor can perform the digital and proctoscopic exams, and you take care of the simple stool blood test at home.
Since men and women are equally affected by this disease we urge everyone over 50 to get regular checkups.
The warning signs for colorectal cancer are a change in bowel habits and blood in the stool.
People with a family history of colon or rectal cancer or ulcerative colitis are at higher risk and are urged to be doubly cautious.
Checkup Guidelines for men and women over 50 without symptoms:
• digital exam annually
• stool blood test annually
• proctoscopic exam every 3 to 5 years after 2 negative tests 1 year apart.

INAUGURATION OF L. DOUGLAS WILDER:

Black History is made!

By Hazel Trice Edney
AFRO Staff Writer

More African-Americans collectively stood on the grounds of the Virginia State Capitol than ever before in history, last Saturday, as the nation's first elected Black governor, Lawrence Douglas Wilder, was inaugurated.

Just 125 years ago, most of them would have been slaves.

But, indeed a celebration of freedom occurred as the nation applauded the grandson of former slaves who took the oath as Virginia's chief executive officer.

Lt. Governor Donald Beyer, Jr. and Attorney General Mary Sue Terry, also took their oaths of office.

Thirty-thousand people, young and old, rich and poor, Black and White, from far and near stood, shoulder-to-shoulder in a common spirit of unity.

Children scrambled to the tops of trees hoping to get a better view of the historic moment.

"If these words about freedom are to be heard at all today, I hope they will be heard by the young people of this Commonwealth," Wilder said in his inaugural address.

Body in trash bags identified

By Helen Glover Cook
AFRO Staff Writer

Two months ago the AFRO received a telephone call whose caller said, "One of my good friends is missing and we have no idea what happened to him."

The answer may have been revealed last night when the badly decomposed body of a Black male, approximately 40 years old was found by unsuspecting trashmen as they cleared a vacant lot in the 2500 block of Madison Avenue.

The body had been cut up and distributed between two plastic trashbags. The Madison Avenue lot is located in the same block as the apartment building in which the McBrides resided.

"At this moment the Police have no motive or suspect in the case," said Police Spokesperson, Arlene Jenkins.

Mrs. Margaret McBride, the wife of the missing computer company executive thinks that the body might be that of her husband, Edward McBride.

In an effort to find out where he was and what had happened to her husband, Mrs. McBride consulted a New Jersey psychic during the first weeks of his absence. "The psychic was unable to specify whether Ed was alive or dead," said Mrs. McBride.

Fr. Stallings cites Imani Temple need

By Helen Glover Cook
AFRO Staff Writer

Once again, Father George Stallings, the spiritual leader of the Washington, D.C. based Imani Temple has angered mainstream Roman Catholic officials by proclaiming the Reverend Martin Luther King a Saint and martyr at a mass held in the nation's capital this past Sunday.

The Reverend conducted a information seminar this week at the Palladium to explore the level of interest toward establishing a Baltimore African-American Catholic Congregation (AACC) temple.

Reverend Stallings said, "The canonization of Dr. King at a time when his birthday is still not observed as a National holiday by many Americans adds credence to the need for the formation of the AACC. We need to take charge of our own destinies."

Rev. Stallings said, "Proclaiming Dr. King a Saint is in keeping with the basic tenets of the AACC. We believe in self-determination for our

Shacking-up Bill causing a big stir

By Hamil Harris
AFRO Staff Writer

The Maryland General Assembly has been in session for less than a week and already there is controversy and division among some Black delegates over a bill providing compensation for partners in common-law marriages.

The legislation, introduced by Delegate Tony E. Fulton of the 40th District, would extend medical and pension benefits to people who have been living with Maryland state employees for at least a year.

Delegate Fulton told the AFRO that he didn't introduce the bill to condone, "shacking up," but, "to pro-

BOSTON/BALTIMORE: A PARALLEL IN POLICE SEARCHES

By Joy M. Tyler
AFRO Staff Reporter

An increasing number of Whites, who claim that they are victims of heinous crimes by Black attackers, are causing public uproars because of misleading or fictitious information surrounding their attacks.

The nationally publicized case in Boston, MA involving such fabricated crimes to cover up the actual events involving the murder of Carol Stuart, and the shooting of her husband Charles, has caused a furor in the city of Boston.

While the couple was coming home from a birthing class at a local Boston hospital, husband Charles alleged that a Black man tried to rob them and shot the couple, killing wife Carol and shooting Charles in the stomach.

Charles Stuart not only falsely accused a Black man of doing the incident, but provided a bogus description and managed to pick out a suspect fitting his previous description to police.

Based on the victim's story, Boston police became so intense in trying to find a Black suspect that the Black sections of the city came under siege.

Nowhere else had such an intensive search for a suspect been more intense since the likes of the search
