SPORTS

Notable quotable
Baseball Hall of Famer Lou Brock:
"When I was a kid, I used to imagine animals running under my bed. I told my dad and he solved the problem quickly. He cut the legs off the bed."

Golf: the alluring captor of mankind

SAM LACY

You have heard it, maybe you've said it yourself: "Golf is a ludicrous game . . . . Who in his right mind can enjoy hitting a little white ball as far as he can and then have to go look for it, to do it all over again?"

To be honest, it is a viewpoint that carries a lot of logic . . . . But, there is this to consider: many of the detractors who voice that kind of derision, who laughingly taunt those who play golf, often find themselves fascinated by the game.

An increasing number of them, in fact, can't wait to watch the weekend telecasts of the PGA (Professional Golf Association) tour.

Also, it happens more often than not that once these critics succumb to the urge to find out why (people hit little white balls and chase them), they go out to a golf course and find themselves trapped . . . . And, unless they have no competitive instinct whatsoever, the trap closes on them.

They're captured . . . . helpless in the grip of some metal sticks with leather handles and a tightly wrapped spheroid with a surlyn cover — commonly known as golf clubs and balls.

So, what is the mystique that holds mankind (and womankind) in relative captivity?

Explanations come easy . . . . so does understanding . . . . Especially, if as stated earlier one is of a competitive nature.

There is no age limit . . . . Golf is played by 4-year-old boys and girls and 90-year-old men and women . . . . It can be played in virtually any kind of weather . . . . Only snow on the course or lightning from the heavens will deter the avid golfer.

At Rock Creek in D.C., there is a regular golf foursome that plays together — one is 90, the others range from 86 to 82.

Lovers of the game even overcome handicaps . . . . At the moment, I am playing with one eye, the stitches yet to be removed after a cornea operation on my right side.

I have played with a man with one arm . . . . He had a convertible club with grooves that enabled him to switch from a club for distance to a club for any desired loft . . . . He struck his ball, placed the club between his legs and "click" he had anything he needed from the driving tee to the putting green.

Golf is a game that keens the concentration and tells you like nothing else in life whether or not you are able to control your emotions.

And control of the emotions is an absolute necessity, because while golf and its fascination may be easy to explain the game itself can be in one minute rewarding and in the next minute frustrating.

Golf, friends, also is a game like no other . . . . In tennis, your opponent tries to outhit you on the baseline and place the ball out of reach of your return . . . . In football, the big end, tackle or linebacker tries to knock you down before you can advance the ball in his territory . . . . In baseball, the pitcher tries to strike you out and the fielder tries to throw you out . . . . In boxing, your opponent's design is to knock your block off . . . . and in basketball, every attempt is made to prevent you from shooting a basket.

Nobody can keep you from hitting a golf ball . . . . No opponent can stand between your ball and the cup.

In golf, you are on your own . . . . In golf, you play against yourself and the course, which sits right there and waits for you — without changing face and without pushing hazards in your pursuit of that little white pellet which also sat there without moving and waiting for you to blast it as far as you could.

Trapped?

The newcomer upon moving off the 18th green:

"Why in the hell can't I hit you, sucker? . . . . I'll bet I get you tomorrow!"

OVERVIEW

REVENGE COMING? — If he doesn't have 10 horses between him and the rail — as he did at Louisville — look for Summer Squall to beat Derby champion Unbridled in Saturday's Preakness at Pimlico.

HOT PINS — Of course, hers are alright too, but the pins referred to were on the alleys of the Ladies Professional Bowling Association's $100,000 Clearwater (Fla.) Classic last week.

These pins fell to the winning tosses of 24-year-old Kim Terrell of Daley City, Calif., as she whipped Robin Romeo and Lisa Wagner in the semi-final and final matches Thursday night.

Romeo of Van Nuys, Cal., was the 1989 Bowler of the Year, and Wagner is the holder of 25 career titles and the top-ranked woman on the tour.

Kim was '89 Rookie of the Year and a 2-time collegiate All-American.

WIN SOME, LOSE SOME — Charles Owens captured the over-60 (Vantage Class) title in the Southwestern Bell golf tournament (and $9,000) at Oklahoma City Sunday. But Jim Dent could only tie for second in the regular (under 60) event.

For the weekend, Dent earned $28,875, and Owens added another $8,100 for tying in 15th place.

HOCKEY HOTSHOT — Probably not enough, though.

Because while Bill Riley has twice taken last-place teams in Canadian minor league hockey and led them to championships (at Nova Scotia and Newfoundland), no club in either the AHL or NHL seems willing to hire him as the (first Black) coach.

"I've had a lot of promises," the one-time Washington winger says, "but something always seems to come up."

BISON GET THE CALL — Southern (La.) University will play Howard University Sept. 2 at the Coliseum in the second annual Los Angeles Football Classic, it was announced Monday.

The game is produced and promoted by the Los Angeles Football Classic Foundation, a non-profit corporation dedicated to the support of Black colleges and Black students. Proceeds from the game will be used to provide scholarships.

In last year's game, Grambling defeated Alcorn.

TRACK 'HALL' BECKONS — Charlie Dumas, Charlie Jenkins and Doris Brown Heritage have been nominated for enshrinement in the National Track and Field Hall of Fame at Indianapolis, Ind.

Dumas was the first 7-foot high jumper; Heritage won 19 distant running titles in her career, and Jenkins, now Villanova coach, captured two gold medals in the 1956 Olympics.

TAKE THAT, YOU BIRDS! — The California Angels have announced that Don Baylor and Bobby Grich will be inducted into the Hall of Angels on May 26.

Baylor played outfield and Grich held down second base as teammates on the Orioles until the (GM) Hank Peters regime shipped them out of Baltimore, Don in 1975 and Bobby a year later.

* * *

AND THE "TOKEN" BIRD — In the recent media summation of Blacks reaching the major leagues, much was made of the fact that the Orioles made their initial move to integrate in 1954, signing lefthanded pitcher Jehosie Heard.

Evidence of Heard's chances of achieving more than "token" status, can be found in his Black-league history of three teams in three years (1948-50).

SAVE-A-HEART SALUTES SANDERS — Al Sanders, popular anchor of WJZ-TV's Eyewitness News, will be the 1990 recipient of Save-A-Heart's Third Jerry Turner Memorial Award for Outstanding Broadcasting.

The award also posthumously honors one of Baltimore's more respected broadcasters, Jerry Turner, a friend and wholehearted supporter of Save-A-Heart Foundation and its annual Celebrity Golf Classics.

The award ceremony will be one of the features of the Save-A-Heart Foundation's 3-day series held annually to fund the charitable program that has netted over $6 million to area hospitals.

K.C. RETURNS — Former Washington Bullets and Boston Celtics coach K.C. Jones Monday agreed to a three-year, $900,000 contract to become head coach of the Seattle SuperSonics, replacing Bernie Bickerstaff, who will become vice president of basketball operations.

MOTHER'S DAY REVERSE — Instead of waiting at home back in Seattle for the flowers or phone calls from son James, Mrs. Nan Edwards hopped a plane and flew to Detroit on Mother's Day to "home-cook" for the Pistons' forward. Evidently, it worked as James Edwards scored team-high 19 points, the Pistons won 102-90, and went up 3-1 in the NBA playoff with the New York Knicks.

AND A LITTLE CHILD — Both 5-year-old Lewis West and Berklee College of Music sophomore Blake Windal enjoy the ride to the finish line in a hitch-ride competition at Boston's Christian Science Center.

Africa arrives

The major press missed it — or ignored it — but players from the African nations of Nigeria and Kenya joined the cast of professional tennis champions last week.

Nigeria's Nduka Odizor, a veteran of Wimbledon, French and United States tournaments — but never a winner — captured the $300,000 Malaysian Open singles title at Kuala Lumpur on Sunday, defeating Johan Siemerink of the Netherlands.

Odizor then teamed with Kenyan Paul Wekesa to outlast Mike Breggs and Craig Johnson of the USA, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3, in the doubles.

DC connects

Each of the three new electees to the Basketball Hall of Fame has had a close connection with the Washington (DC) area.

Dave Bing, born and raised in D.C., graduated Spingarn High School and finished his NBA career with the Bullets.

Elvin Hayes spent most of his productive years with the Bullets.

Preakness unique in 'Triple' series

By Sam Lacy

Despite the frantic fanfare that surrounds the Kentucky Derby and the inherent fear of sending a young horse a mile-and-a-half in the Belmont, Saturday's Preakness represents the most unique aspect of racing's Triple Crown series.

The annual Pimlico classic is entirely different from both the Kentucky and New York races.

It is run at a shorter distance than the mile-and-a-quarter of the Derby and the rugged 12 furlongs of the Belmont. The turns are sharper, meaning that the jockeys must not allow their horses to lay back too long — and too far off the pace — to make their stretch charge.

Over the years, the Old Hilltop race has proved a stumbling block for many colts vying for the prestigious Triple Crown.

The stumbles occurred as long ago as 1939, and as recently as 1984. In that span, eight Derby winners have tripped in the Preakness then gone on to capture the Belmont.

Johnstown won at Louisville and Belmont but was beaten by Challedon at Pimlico in 1939.

Three years later Shut Out was trounced by Alsab at Belmont between his triumphs in 1942 at Louisville and New York.

In 1950, Middleground lost to Hill Prince on the way to the Belmont. Fabius beat Derby winner and Belmont champion Needles in 1956.

Candy Spots stopped Chateugay in 1963; Bee Bee Bee upset Riva Ridge at the 1972 Preakness before the latter took the Belmont.

Bold Forbes won the 1976 Derby and Belmont but saw the back of Elocutionist in between. And Swale was seventh to Gate Dancer at Baltimore, before going on the score in the 1984 Belmont.

Ex-coach dies

Former D.C. Dunbar High and Delaware State College basketball coach Joe Dean Davison died Friday after a heart attack. He was 50.
