Maryland Practical Nurses Convene

The Maryland Licensed Practical Nurses Association recently held its 29th Annual Convention at the Holiday Inn, Belmont. Nurses from across the state met to exchange ideas and discuss current health issues. The theme of the convention is "LPNS Meet The Challenge".

A new slate of officers was elected and they are as follows: Mrs. Elizabeth Hebron, president; Mrs. Catherine R. Williams, 1st vice president; Mrs. Mae Monk, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Delores Savage, secretary; Mrs. Evangeline B. Myers, treasurer and Mrs. Mildred Nerlinger.

A new Board of Directors was also appointed including Mrs. Jeanne Mears, Mrs. Nancy Lou Smith, Mrs. Joan Johnson, Mrs. Juanita Miller, Mrs. Charlene Hall and Mrs. Beatrice Thomas.

A highlight of the Convention was an Awards Luncheon, honoring members for their years of service. A beautiful plaque was presented to Ms. Rosamond Diggs, one of the original founders of the organization in 1952.

The spritely octogenarian embodies the Association's ideals of caring and compassion for others. Ms. Diggs graduated from the Henryton School of Practical Nursing in 1939. She became an Instructor in charge of the Operating Room and Central Supply. She is currently President of the Henryton Nurses Alumni Association.

Despite an advanced heart problem, Ms. Diggs is a devout member of St. Mary The Virgin Episcopal Church, where she sings on the Choir and is President of the Choir Club. She is Secretary of The Charmettes Social Club, and Chairperson of its Annual Western Dance to be held in October.

Ms. Diggs still finds time to spend, cheering cancer patients as a volunteer at the Hospice Program at Church Home and Hospital. Spirits of the terminally ill are lifted by the reading of a Bible verse, or perhaps just friendly conversation.

Quite a few certificates were also awarded to Nurses who had given from five to thirty years of excellent service. Speaker at the lunceon was Mr. David Kesterton, from the National Federation of Licensed Practical Nurses.

The Legislative Action Committee, an arm of the MLPNA that keeps members abreast of health legislation coming before State Legislators held its dinner meeting featuring the Honorable Tony Fulton, as guest speaker.

Present at luncheon were Helen De Voe, Bertha Boyd, Grace Monroe, Past President; Marie Steadly, and Rosamond Diggs.

A gathering of old friends at Nurse's luncheon include Mae Monk, Emily G. Canty, Anna Gilchrist, Rosamond Diggs, Julia Gilliard, Delores Savage, and Nora Bellamy.

Columbia Capers

By Pinnie Ross

Those energetic members of the Columbia (MD) Alumni Chapters of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity sponsored their second annual Business and Professional Awareness conference for high school and college youths recently. The Conference was held at Wilde Lake Interfaith Center where more than one hundred twenty-five youth from the metropolitan Baltimore and Washington Areas attended.

According to conference chairperson, William A. Ross Sr., "During the formative years of the Columbia (MD) Chapter, its members determined that the chapter activities would epitomize that fundamental purpose of providing positive role models in the community we serve. Further, it was determined that the programs the chapter fostered should set forth an image that would have a positive influence on youth.

The chapter has sponsored counseling programs for youth offenders, supported the United Negro College Fund, sponsored youth athletic teams and provided financial assistance to high school and college youths.

The keynote speaker for the conference was Major General Jack Rozier, a Morgan State University graduate and a member of the fraternity. General Rozier is a native of Richmond, VA.

Larry Brown, former running back and NFL Hall of Famer from the Washington Redskins was the luncheon speaker. Mr. Brown is now the manager of new business and community relations with the Xerox Corporation.

JACK DANIEL'S
Jazz Salute To
Black Music Month

THIS WEEK'S HONOREES

RICK HENDERSON: Musical arranger, composer, conductor, saxophonist, educator.
Currently a member of an eighteen piece band, Rick Henderson has been in the jazz music field for over 45 years, performing and composing throughout his career as a jazz artist.
Mr. Henderson's musical background includes performances with several "big bands" such as Duke Ellington, Dizzy Gillespie, Clark Terry, just to name a few. These artists have also recorded compositions that were written and arranged by Rick Henderson. Among his accomplishments, he has made appearances at several orchestra houses, including the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

JOHN E. BONAS: A lifetime jazz lover, New York-born John Bonas says one of his early recollections about the jazz world, was his teenage habit of listening to the old Symphony Side Show's live broadcasts from the famous Birdland Club that featured all the great be-bop stars of the 1950's from Dizzy and Bird to Mingus and Monk.
Bonas' activities in jazz preservation began during a busy career in scientific research and higher education teaching and administration in New York and Baltimore. In 1983, while a special consultant to the president at Baltimore's Sojourner-Douglas College, Bonas began working with the college and the Left Bank Society on a venture to celebrate Baltimore's jazz heritage and Left Bank's 20th anniversary as the only grass-roots jazz performance presenting organization in the country in continuous operation for that length of time.
Shortly after the Tribute, the Jazz Heritage Foundation of Baltimore, Inc. was founded to sustain the work of making Baltimoreans more aware and appreciation of their important musical contributions to the world. Bonas was elected the Foundation's first president and he continues to serve in this capacity. The Foundation is best known for its advocacy of jazz education of Baltimore school children and its acclaimed Legends of Jazz series and the Jazz Circuit East publication.
