City building

Smoking banned

By Helen Glover Cook
AFRO Staff Reporter

The Baltimore City Council has passed a new law restricting smoking in buildings owned or leased by the City of Baltimore. The bill will go into effect this year on April 1st.

Buildings included in the City's no smoking regulation are the Baltimore Convention Center, the Arena, and all of the buildings within the school system.

Baltimore City councilman and Chairman of the City Council's sub-committee on health; Carl Stokes, called the bill an "overwhelming success." Stokes said, "I started this campaign against smoking in city owned and leased buildings with a neutral attitude toward including a provision in the bill which would allow city employees to smoke in their private offices but I soon changed my opinion when confronted by two facts.

"First, many of these offices are only cubicles, separated by a partition rather than offices with actual walls. This allows smoke to seep through and effect workers who do not smoke. Second, the ventilation systems within city buildings do not have smoke filtering capabilities, so the air stored but not filtered, therefore it is recycled and able to come into other offices."

Councilman Stokes says that he was bombarded with the negative opinion of City employees who felt that a provision allowing workers to smoke in the privacy of their offices would be an elitist measure giving more freedoms to those most likely to have a private office-management.

IF YOU ASK ME

$10,000 smile

St. Edward Catholic Church at Poplar Grove and Lafayette Ave. in west Baltimore, is unique for its marble walls and statues. It is also known for its outstanding music and preaching by pastor, Father Maurice J. Blackwell.

Members and visitors received an extra thrill at 11 a.m. services this past Sunday. They already had applauded the choir's singing of such numbers as "Jesus, I Love Thee" and heard Father Blackwell utter a firm "amen" when word came of a special presentation.

There was a hush when Mrs. Carolyn Fugett approached the mike. She announced the gift of $10,000 to the church to purchase a piano and upgrade the sound system. The congregation went wild with applause. Plenty of smiles, too.

The gift was from Mrs. Fugett's older son, Reginald F. Lewis of N.Y. He is the chairman and CEO of TLC Beatrice International Service Holdings Inc., the leading black-owned business in the nation with sales in excess of $1.8 billion and employees totalling over 20,000.

MORE SMILES

More smiles when Mrs. Fugett announced a $500 gift from the Blessed Mother Sodality headed by Mrs. Eva Brown.

Guests in the congregation, members of Baltimore, chapter of CHUMS, headed by Mrs. Shirley Swafford, who brought $100 gift; and member, Gwen Hillen who added $50 to the $5.300 scholarship memorial she established for her husband, Charles (Granny) Hillen. (who was church finance officer at the time of his death in March, 1987).

Cuff note: You'll be moved to join Father Blackwell in saying "amen" when you hear good singing, with harmonious accompaniment such as St. Edward's director of choral activities provides on organ, and Robert Dett on drums. And, when you listen to the glorious solos by Mrs. Anne Lumpkin and her son, Larry Lumpkin. Very moving.

Amen. And, smiles, too.

More cuff: Businessman Lewis, 46, grew up in St. Frances Church, was a member of St. Edward's before he went off to Va. State College in 1965, and then launched his spectacular career.

And More

Smile orchids to Dr. Delores Kelly chair of fine arts department of Coppin State College.

She was speaker when the Philomathian Club held its monthly meeting at Pargo's (guest of member, Marion Patterson). She urged listeners to become bootstraps, reach out and help others — through caring, voluntarism, making a difference in others' lives.

* * *

More orchids to member, Dr. Flossie Dedmond. She presided at the installation ceremony for four new Philomathian members — Dr. Ruth Sheffey, Mrs. Mamie Russell, Mrs. Frances Draper and Dr. Thelma Daley. Dr. Thelma Bando is club president.

Did someone's smile make your day? Let this column salute them. Write, Smiles, If You Ask Me, Baltimore AFRO-AMERICAN, 628 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md., 21201, and smile, please.

Fishmarket

Observance of the birthday of the late Eubie Blake, famed Baltimore-born musician, saw special ceremonies at the Fishmarket, the new entertainment palace in downtown Baltimore this week.

The Urban Services Agency and Radio Station V-103 joined with the Pratt E. Lombard St. facility in sponsoring the Tuesday evening festivities which opened the three-day celebration.

A large and interesting crowd was on hand for the opening night — young and old, in a variety of attire, and all giving undivided attention to the orchestra, singers and dancers who performed with great skill.

There was cutting of a huge cake — prepared by chef, Joseph Randall. Former mayor Clarence Du Burns, Urban Services cultural arts chief, Norman Ross, V-103's Roy Sampson and Urban Services chief, Linwood Ivey assisted in cake cutting. The crowd applauded and wasted no time in accepting their invitation to taste the goody.

$10,000 SMILE — Father Maurice J. Blackwell gets $10,000 gift for St. Edward Catholic Church from member, Mrs. Carolyn Fugett: gift of her son, Reginald F. Lewis, the wealthy businessman. See details in If You Ask Me.

They were there

Faces in the crowd: — Mrs. Faith Bazemore, the Human Resources employee, was there, looking good. With her, her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Gross, who was celebrating her 75th birthday.

At nearby table, Earla McKinnon, Juanita Morton, Yvonne Mitchell, Barbara Dunsen.

And, Dr. and Mrs. George Musgrove (Barbara); Dr. and Mrs. William Day (Carrie), Barbara Carter, the realtor and Percival Smith.

Also spotted young and pretty Delta soror, Jeri Reid, the Bendix employee with another young lovely, Lorraine Walker.

More beautiful people in the crowd: — Angela Baugh, Benlow (B.T.) Wright, Shiloh Baptist Church members, George and Betty Smothers, Gene Atkins, and James Myers (Buster, and his wife, Lillie, the Lombard High principal. The evening was extra special for them. They were longtime friends of the late Mr. Blake and his family.

Also there, Dr. and Mrs. Matthew B. Fraling, Jr. (Valerie). He is the vocational rehabilitation director with the State Department of Education who is also well-known as musician. She's social security employee who is active in the community

More there

Carolyn A. Brown was there. She's chair of the 6th annual Victorine Q. Adams Humanitarian Award dinner this year and wants everyone to mark the date — June 3. Honoree will be Governor Schaefer. Proceeds will benefit the Fuel Fund of Central Md.

Looking good: Twenty-six-year-old Renee Johnson, of Northern High and Towson U. who trained in the youth class at Arena Players, is employed as hostess and model at the Fishmarket.

Sounding good: Charles Covington, the pianist, saying something as he tickled the ivories. So were members of the house orchestra, the Jazzins.

Looking good and sounding good, these Fishmarket singers and dancers: Shirley Tripp, Percy Travis, Sherry Ederman, Kelly Spencer, Malcolm Clary, Connie and the others whose names we missed. Go down to Fishmarket — you'll enjoy watching and hearing these skilled entertainers.
