—Natures Apprentice

"I am into everything," Robbs says. "Nutrition, food combining, cosmetology. Not lipstick and make-up," she explains, "but natural skin conditioners, which I create myself from fresh fruit and nutrients.

"I tend to keep a low profile about what I do, because people expect me to have some type of paper hanging on the wall," Robbs said. "They want to know where I learned what I know. I tell them I didn't learn it, it evolved out of an effort to keep myself and my family alive.

"I don't have a plush car and a lot of credit cards, but who the heck cares. I gave up a lot, but it's okay. I wasn't happy with any of it."

Happiness for Robbs is her herbs, her counter, at Health Concern and the customers who come to see her and ask for a discerning ear while they exchange their problems for advice. Advice Robbs dispenses with a caveat.

"I don't prescribe, Robbs says emphatically. "I can't even show someone information on the pages of a book. I have to be very careful about what I say to people."

But Robbs' hesitation has not slowed the number of customers that seek her out. Many Robbs says come after being treated at length by a physician and are frustrated. In Robbs they find one who will ask "a zillion questions and offer safe advice."

"I don't know what it is that draws these people to me. They must feel sorry for me," Robbs says. "I just share this knowledge with others and ask them not to believe a thing I say. They can find out for themselves.
