Prom Night..once in a lifetime moment

By Robyn-Denise Yourse

While dates and dances come and go, most everyone agrees there will be but one senior prom in a lifetime — a cross between the transistion from adolescence to young adulthood with a fantasy touch of Cinderella.

In my day, Chanel No. 5 was THE fragrance to have. Today, however, tastes are more likely to include the pricey "Eternity" or Giorgio's new "Red".

But the road to achieving that "perfect look" begins well before the swirling aromas of perfume or the elaborate gowns. Here, patience and a bit of creativity are the key.

Whatever your preference, the quality of beauty need not be expensive, and for a fraction of the cost, million dollar looks can be yours.

MAKE-UP MAGIC

With the emphasis on the natural look this season, there is very little reason for appearing at the prom more suitably made up for the circus.

If in doubt, survey the latest magazines, or better yet, visit a department store for a consultation with a trained make-up artist.

In the world of make-up, there is something for everyone — but everything isn't for everybody. First, consider the undertones of the skin. Are yours yellow , red, blue or green?

"The actual complexion doesn't matter here," said one expert, "we're speaking of the tones under the skin. That's how you find the correct make-up."

While many product lines are available both at drug and department store counters , more vibrant colors can be found for less at your nearest theatrical supply shop.

ENTRANCE and ATTITUDE

When you make your entrance, remember all eyes will be focused on YOU. If you do so with slouched shoulders, or a stooped back, that will be remembered more so than the classiest outfit.

So, pull yourself up and think tall. Think of an imaginary string that's pulling you up right through our center. And by all means, pick up your feet when you walk!

THE BEST KEPT SECRET —

Is to be yourself, and present our own unique aura.

There may only be one prom, but remember more importantly, there will only be one you.

MESSAGE TO PARENTS

For high school students, springtime means prom and graduation celebrations. It can be an important part of your child's high school experience — full of wonderful memories.

Unfortunately, proms and graduations are often associated with alcohol. Drinking and driving continues to be the number one killer of American teenagers.

In addition, over 200,000 young people suffer traumatic head injuries every year, most from car accidents. Many of these teenagers are left with severe disabilities.

Discuss the matter with your children. Let them know you want them to enjoy the festivities, but you also care deeply for their safety. Focus the conservation on solutions, not problems.

An ideal solution is to help your community organize an all-night alcohol-free party for the students.

"Project Prom/Graduation," supported by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration in Washington, D.C., as state highway safety offices, has worked successfully in hundreds of schools across the country.

Ideas for an exciting celebration are endless, but in order to have a truly successful event, make sure the students do the planning themselves.

- Help your child team up with friends to rent a limousine.
- Solicit the driving assistance of an older brother or sister or a responsible older neighbor.
- Draw up a "contract" with your children whereby they will call you for transportation if they have been drinking. You, in turn, agree to pick them up at whatever hour, no questions asked.

"A little extra planning can make for a much safer prom and graduation season."
