THIS WEEK IN BLACK AMERICA

Malcolm's 64th Birthday

Malcolm X (El-Hajj Malik El-Shabazz) would have been 64 years old on May 19th, 1989. People all over the world will mourn his tragic, untimely death once again this year.

Blood tests name Young

DEARBORN, Mich. — Blood test results released Friday indicate Detroit Mayor Coleman Young almost certainly is the father of a child born to a former official in his administration.

Results of tests conducted at Lansing's Sparrow Hospital were released at the suburban offices of Noel Keane, an attorney representing Annivory Calvert in her paternity suit against the mayor.

Calvert — who capped a 10-year city career by serving as executive assistant director for public works — filed suit Jan. 27 claiming Young is the father of her son Joel Loving, 6.

Young, 70, who is running for re-election this year, has neither confirmed nor formally denied being the boy's father. He has admitted dating Calvert, who now serves as the public works director in Fontana, Calif.

The report from Sparrow Hospital's Paternity Testing Laboratory states there is a "99.9999 percent" chance that Young is the boy's father, adding, "paternity is practically proved."

Bobby Seale out on bail

PHILADELPHIA — Black Panther co-founder Bobby Seale was released Friday after being held for more than a day on an Ohio warrant charging him with writing bad checks during a national barbecue cooking contest.

Seale, 53, of Philadelphia was allowed to sign his own $50,000 bail after he was arraigned on a fugitive charge. A hearing was scheduled for June 9 in City Hall.

Seale was taken into custody at 12:45 a.m. Thursday after his 1972 Oldsmobile rear-ended a city fire truck, causing minor damage to both vehicles. No one was injured and Seale was not charged in the accident, but a check of his driver's license showed there was a warrant against him, police said.

Seale, who opened a barbecue place in North Philadelphia and wrote a book, "Barbecue'n with Bobby," allegedly wrote three checks for more than $7,000 during the annual National Rib Cook-Off at a fair in Cleveland.

Seale told police the warrant is invalid because he was due for a court hearing May 23 in Cleveland, police Capt. Richard DeLise said.

But Cuyahoga County sheriff's Lt. Chester Zembalal said, "We have a warrant, he's a fugitive. It may be a misunderstanding, but I don't believe it. Anyway, we checked it out . . . and it (the warrant) was still active."

MOVE 4th anniversary

PHILADELPHIA — The eve of the fourth anniversary of the MOVE disaster that killed 11 people, tarnished the city's reputation and has cost it $22.8 million in settlements was marked with a small memorial service Friday.

The service, titled, "Let Us Remember, Lest We Forget," together with panel discussions set for Saturday, was sponsored by the MOVE Committee, a coalition organized by the American Friends Service Committee.

About 50 people attended the MOVE memorial Friday at Mount Olivet Tabernacle Baptist Church in West Philadelphia.

"This critical issue must not go away from the public focus, since it weighs heavily on the minds of many in the community," said William Meek, of the MOVE Committee.

Bridges's robbery charge dismissed

COMPTON, Calif. — A judge dismissed armed robbery charges Tuesday against actor Todd Bridges, who was accused of trying to steal his car without paying a $500 repair bill.

Bridges, however, remains charged in another case involving his alleged attempt to kill a man in a shooting in a cocaine rock house.

Acting on a defense request, Municipal Court Commissioner Bob Bowers dismissed the armed robbery case against Bridges, 23, the former child star of NBC's "Different Strokes" sitcom.

The defense made its request after prosecutors announced, for undisclosed reasons, that they were unable to proceed with their case against Bridges, a court clerk said.

Head shop not a head shop

CLEVELAND — Police detectives anxious to enforce a new ban on the sale of drug-related items in so-called head shops listed a store selling mannequin heads as a potential target.

Narcotics detectives included the Lee-Harvard Boutique on a list presented to City Council as one of 10 purported drug paraphernalia shops in the city. The council passed the head shop ordinance on Monday.

Donald E. Spears, the owner of the mannequin supply store, served as council's first assistant clerk and deputy clerk from 1960 until 1986 and is not happy with the police-bestowed distinction.

He told The Cleveland Plain Dealer he has sold jewelry, human hair, panty hose and wigs for mannequins for 17 years, but has never stocked drug paraphernalia.

"You can't smoke that," he said, pointing to rows of wigs on shelves in his store. Spears told the newspaper he wouldn't ever carry cigarettes in the store because his family is so opposed to drug use.

Police officials apologized for the errors, saying they prepared the list in a hurry for Monday's council meeting.

"Green awakened about 2:30 a.m. with an asthma attack and was rushed to Roosevelt Hospital. Green's heart was not beating and he did not respond to resuscitation," emergency room attending doctor Kenneth Goetz said.

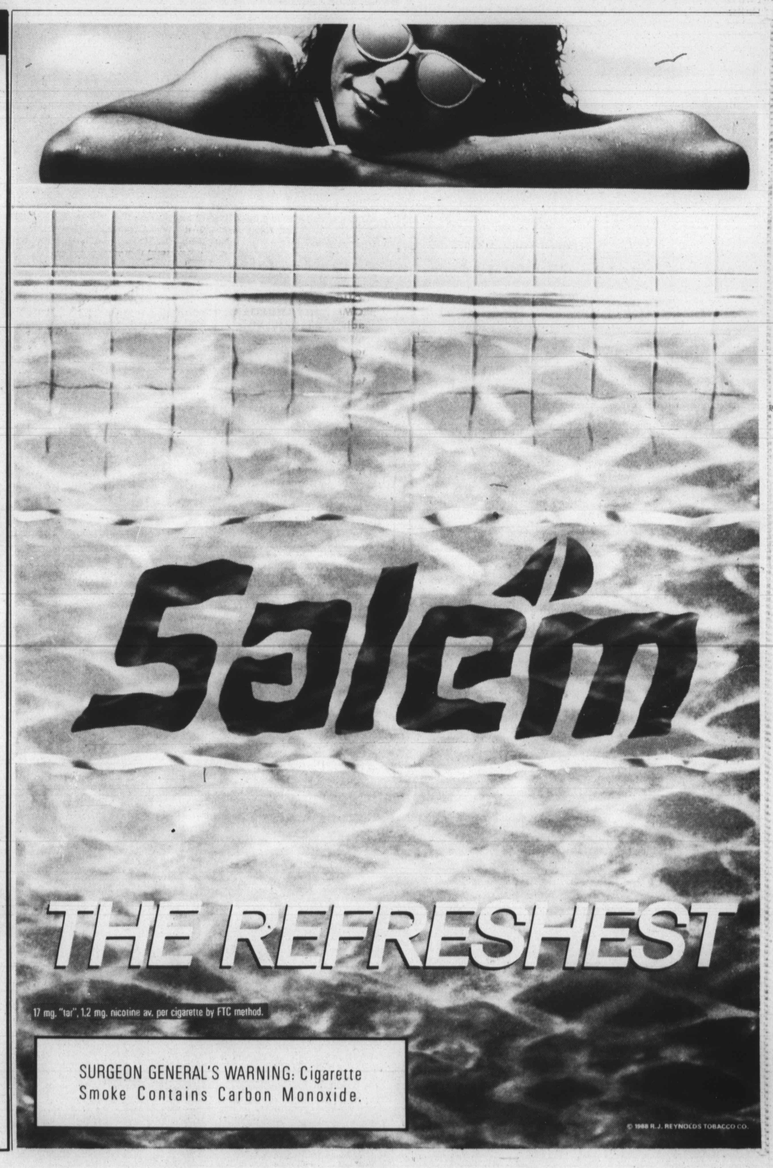
ALBANY, N.Y. — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson, ticketed twice in the last three weeks on speeding charges, may be taking the cases to trial, court officials said Saturday.

A report published Saturday in the Albany Times Union said Tyson's lawyer, Kenneth Payment of Rochester sent a letter last week to city Traffic Court, entering pleas of innocent to the two speeding charges.

Court clerk Mary Creed told the newspaper that step meant the cases would be scheduled for trial.

Tyson, 22, was arrested by Albany police April 26 for allegedly driving his white, 1989 Lamborghini at 71 mph in a 30 mph zone on Albany's Central Avenue. Then, on May 5, Tyson was charged with traveling at an imprudent speed, in the same car on the same street. Police said at the time it appeared the champ had been racing another driver.

Tyson lists a Catskill address as his residence but spends much of his time in Albany. He did not appear last Tuesday for a Traffic Court hearing on the first ticket. However, he had the alternative of entering an innocent or guilty plea by mail.


If convicted on the April 26 speeding charge, Tyson could be slapped with a fine of up to $100 and a sentence of up to 30 days in jail.
