National consulting group names new president

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The National Alliance of Minority Consultants and Professional Advisors named Mr. David L. Vaughn as its new President today.

Mr. Vaughn has served as the National President of the National Urban Affairs Council, Chairman of the National Minority Business Council's Advisory Board, in addition to having served with the National Black MBA Association. He is also a Managing Partner in the management consulting firm LaSalle, Gilliam & Vaughn.

"David brings management depth to this organization. We chose him because of his broad experience in working with other multi-disciplinary organizations, such as the Business Council and Urban Affairs Council.

He's a professional that understands the need to qualify and quantify membership needs. Thus he understands how to create practical and tangible value for our members. People who know him know that he gets the job done," according to Mr. Charles E. Segure, Executive Director of the organization.

A Multi-Disciplinary Approach

Although less than a year old the organization has members in business, real estate, public relations, politics, advertising, healthcare, engineering, law, accounting and other professions.

The group targets not only full time consultants and firms, but also professionals who consult on a part time basis, who work as internal consultants for large firms and those who are interested in making the transition from full time employment to consulting.

According to Mr. Vaughn, "The primary value that a multi-disciplinary organization creates for its members is in the contacts that one can make. Everyone knows that its who you know, not only what you know. And consultants frequently know many people.

Even more impressive is the fact that they know the decision makers. When these type of people come together relationships form, opportunities form, and deals start to take shape. That's what's so exciting about this approach."

Comprehensive Member Services

Not only are the characteristics of members diverse, but so are the types of services offered to the members.

Members receive a monthly newsletter, discounts on books and other publications related to consulting, special reports commissioned by the members, seminars, award and recognition programs, electronic mail and bulletin board services, research library and information service, marketing and government procurement assistance and other useful services.

Mr. Vaughn suggests that, "The first order of business for me is to define the service levels in terms of quality, execution and delivery.

It is not enough to offer a broad range of services; those services have to be top notch because our members are very demanding and they have every right to be — they're special. They don't have time to waste. They want service and results on a timely basis."

The group is also unique in that it is one of the few minority trade associations that is run on a full time basis by a professional management company.

"We have to provide a superior service because our members won't accept anything less," concluded Mr. Segure.

For additional information, inquiries should be directed to: Mr. Charles E. Segure, Executive Director National Alliance of Minority Consultants and Professional Advisors, 26 Broadway, Suite 400, New York, New York 10004, 212-837-7885.

Top gun at Colt 45

Bernard Tarver, Regional Director of Marketing on the West Coast for the G. Heileman Brewing Company makers of Colt 45 Malt Liquor and many other fine products was recently promoted to National Brand Manager for Colt 45 Malt Liquor.

While in Southern California, Tarver was truly a drum major for the black community as he utilized his position at G. Heileman to give something back to the community.

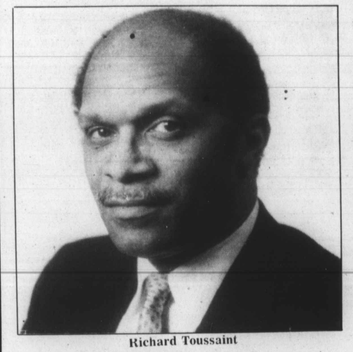
Throughout his busy schedule he still has found time to serve on the Board of Directors for the Challengers Boys and Girls Club, Orange County Chapter of the NAACP, USC Black Alumni Association and is a member of several other community organizations.

Bernard Tarver

Tarver elevated through the ranks. He started as a part-timer Merchandiser while attending the University of Southern California. After graduation he became a National Sales Representative. Tarver, was then promoted to District Manager and held the position of Regional Director of Marketing and Community Affairs for four years.

He is a rare talent, possessing a unique combination of street savvy creativity, technical skills and leadership. Without a doubt, Tarver's dynamic presence will be missed in Southern California, but the programs he initiated will remain, as he now has the power to do more for our community and others throughout the nation!

Black Achievers



Richard Toussaint

Con Edison employees receive Award

Richard Toussaint and Wendell B. Fenner recently received the Black Achievers in Industry Award from the Harlem Branch of the YMCA.

Toussaint is a senior personnel representative in Con Edison's Employee Relations department. He is chairman of the Riverton Tenants Association and a member of the East Harlem Community Board No. 11. Born in New York City, he is a graduate of the High School of Fashion Industries and the City College of New York.

Wendell B. Benner

Fenner, a standards engineer in Con Edison's Gas Engineering department, is a graduate of the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical University.

He was born in Columbia, North Carolina, and attended Tyrrell High School. A resident of Roselle, New Jersey, he is a Little League coach and a volunteer for the Boy Scouts of America.

The Harlem YMCA's Black Achievers project serves as a way to recognize achievement in industry and to provide inspiration for YMCA youth. Its alumni serves as mentors and has established a scholarship program for those going on to college.

Hummel joins Career Communication

Linda Hummel joins Career Communications Group, Inc. as Advertising Director. She will also be the sales representative for Maryland, Virginia, and Washington, D.C.

"We are excited that Linda is joining our company," said Publisher Tyrone Taborn. "Her advertising and marketing expertise, along with her knowledge of the recruitment industry, will be an asset to our organization."

Hummel has thirteen years of recruitment advertising experience. The past four years she has been with McGraw-Hill's Recruitment Advertising Center as the Mid-Atlantic District Sales Manager. She represented Graduating Engineer along with a number publications including Aviation Week and Space Technology, Business Week, ENR and Data Communications.

Prior to joining McGraw-Hill, Hummel worked as an account executive at several advertising agencies in the Washington, D.C. area.

Linda Hummel

Hummel is delighted with her new opportunity. "What is really exciting about Career Communications Group is the enthusiasm and dedication which is generated by promoting opportunities for minorities in science and technology," she said.

"US Black Engineer magazine and Hispanic Engineer magazine, along with the Black Engineer of the Year Awards and the Hispanic Engineer National Achievement Awards conferences, provide important links that offer career opportunities for both the entry-level engineer and the experienced professional.

I am pleased to be a part of this young, dynamic, and growing company."

Career Communications Group, Inc. of Baltimore, Maryland publishes US Black Engineer Magazine and Hispanic Engineer Magazine.

The company provides a wide range of minority recruitment services providing direct access to top engineering talent nationwide, and has the only Computer Resume Search of its kind.
