times . . . His praise shall continually be in my mouth. Make a joyful noise unto the Lord all ye lands . . . come before His presence with singing and thanksgiving.

Well . . . why should I give thanks . . . The Bible says that this is the Will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. It is God's will that we be a people of praise and thanksgiving. Did you know that God inhabits the praises of His people. If you want to experience the power, yet the sweetness of the presence of the Almighty just begin to rejoice in the God of your salvation . . Oh magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt His name together . . . Thank you, Jesus . . .

what we're trying to get back."

Many of the convention's classes emphasized black history and cultural awareness.

"The Lord has a reason for giving us a history and a background," said Ms. Fielding, "And unless (we) understand that, we are destined to make the mistakes that people made years ago... The only difference is time.

"New methods are neccessary to identify with today's changing and challenging times," said Fielding, citing the convention's one-on-one approach to Christian education a time when black church leaders and members are facing many social, educational, political, economic and even religious problems.

Fielding said the classes conducted through the congress of christian education were especially designed to address those issues facing the black community, particularly black Progressive Baptists.

But action is the cornerstone of change.

Marjorie H. Lawson, convention coordinator, said theory is no good without action. "You can obtain the theory but the theory is no good if you don't practice it," Ms. Lawson commented. "So we get it here and we take it back to our respective churches and communities and we go to work."

"If we can change one mind, perhaps we can save one soul," added Fielding.

Christians need to "fine tune" their relationship with God, said Harold C. Hunter, Jr., a member of King Emmanuel Baptist Church in Washington,D.C. "I see a lack of collective praying within Christians...today," said Hunter, a 25-year-old political scientist.

Helen M. Bryant, a delegate of Tabernacle Baptist Church in Chicago, said she sees a lack of Christian education as a stumbling block to a full relationship with God.

"He told us before you go to battle, put on the whole armour-the breastplate of righteousness . . ., the helmet of salvation and be sure you know the scripture," Bryant said.

black spirit was saved and transformed."

Citing the convention's emphasis upon black history and culture, Bennett pointed out how cultural awareness is vital to the future of the black community.

"The new frontier for us is the old frontier," said Bennett, who has worked with Johnson Publishing Company, publishers of "Jet" and "Ebony," for 35 years.

"We have lost something wandering in a dry and thirsty land," he added. "To make matters worse reaction at the highest level of our country has made racism respectable again...,Black leadership is under attack everywhere!"

Bennett urged black America, one of the wealthiest groups of people worldwide, to unite and organize resources — to return to the unity of the '60s.

"We've got to go back to that future — to the future that was the '60s."

According to Bennett, the black community is experiencing a "paradox of the weak giant."

"We African-Americans are a very, very peculiar people, for we are the second or the third largest African community—the second or the third largest African nation...in the whole wide world," he said. "Despite our poverty, which is real, we are also...the second richest African nation in the world. And one of the wealthiest nations in the world with an annual income of $220 billion a year—an annual income—larger than the annual incomes of white countries like Australia and Canada and Sweden."

Bennett, a native of Clarksdale, Miss., said the black community is potentially one of the richest and most powerful on earth. Yet, in spite of that potential power, "we are the most exposed, the most vulnerable and one of the most powerless communities in the world.

"The billions of dollars that flow into black Richmond and black Chicago and black Harlem, today, are systematically...used to enrich other people."

He said the "weak giant" is poor yet making people outside of the black community rich. It is weak but making people outside the community strong—weak because resources are scattered and unorganized.

"The paradox of our task is to simply awaken the giant," Bennett said, citing how it's time for blacks and black organizations to unite and support one another.

Blacks now must reinstitutionalize that old-time spirit, he emphasized.

"We've got to struggle to save our own souls...and the souls of our people... There was a time—and it wasn't all that long ago—when all black people spoke to all black people on the streets.

"I walk through airports. I walk in hotels, and black people don't speak to one another. They walk around...with their heads up in the air" he pointed out.

Bennett urged all blacks to strengthen, endure and progress in spite of adversity—the essence of African-American survival Bennett, a graduate of Morehouse College, is the recipient of the Martin Luther King, Jr. Memorial Award.

COLUMBIA CAPERS

By Pinnie Ross

A burial mass was held for LeRoy Thompson, Sr. at St. James Episcopal Church on Monday, August 7, 1989. Father Rodney Rice, M. Div., officiated.

LeRoy Thompson, Sr., the youngest of nine children was born to N. J. A. and Lena Debnet Thompson on Dec. 17, 1927. Our dear friend, "PUFF" as he was affectionately known, departed this life suddenly at Sinai Hospital on Aug. 2, 1989 following a brief illness.

St. James Church was packed by family, friends and colleagues to celebrate his life and contributions. There were people from all professions with whom he had worked over the past thirty-nine years in the Howard County and Baltimore City Public Schools.

A memorable resolution was read by Ms. Frances West standing in for Mr. Oscar T. Jobe, Principal at Lake Clifton High School where "Puff" headed the Industrial Arts Department.

The highlight of the tributes to "Puff" came from his only son, Leroy, Jr. of Springfield, VA where he is the President and Chief Executive Officer of Top Management Associates, Inc. This brave Champion spoke of his father's life, his love for sports and how he had impacted his life.

He related an instance where his father was the referee in a football game in a racially tense community and how his father had penalized a team on several continuous occasions for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Responding to his son's questions as to why he may have jeopardized their life in that charged situation, he responded, "You've got to do what you've got to do."

LeRoy, Jr. then spoke directly to his dear mother, Mentora, stating, "We're going to make it, aren't we?"

His final statement was to his father, "I'll check you out later." Meaning, I'll see you in the great beyond. It was impressive. It was emotional. It was done in such a spiritualistic manner that I could not shed tears.

That speaker, LeRoy Thompson, Jr., was not the young man who grew up withour older children sharing birthday parties as preteens. He was the brilliant young man who had graduated with honors from Harvard University; later earning a Master of Business Administration Degree and operating his own business.

We had met the Thompsons in the early '50's while Puff taught here in Howard County at Harriett Tubman High School. Later Puff and my husband operated a summer home improvement and building business together. Then we knew Puff to be a true friend and a gentleman; a friend who would reach out to help in the time of need. We knew him to love his family, "Ment" and "Rocky;" his brothers and sisters. And we will all remember his infectious laughter.

Friends and relatives came from California, Ohio, New Jersey, New York, Virginia and parts far and near to celebrate Puff's life.

Puff was educated in the Bluefield, West Virginia Schools, attended Bluefield State College and graduated from North Carolina A & T University after serving in the armed forces. He did graduate work at the University of Maryland and Loyola College.

LeRoy had been a member of St. James Church for 39 years. He had served as an officer of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post 6188 and was a memberr of the Athletic Officials Association.

His previous memories will be cherished by his loving wife, Mentora Edwards Thompson, a retired Baltimore Schools Administrator; son, LeRoy, Jr.; daughter-in-law, Rita Thompson, Esq.; two grandchildren, LeRoy, III and Aisha, both 10 years of age; two sisters and two brothers and their spouses,

Attorney and Mrs. Levertus Swinton of Kansas City, MO and Rev. and Mrs. Rhett James of Dallas, TX, Mr. and Mrs. J. Saunders Thompson of Los Angeles, CA and Mrs. Samuel Thompson of Philadelphia, PA;

A devoted mother-in-law, Mrs. Ethel Edwards; two brothers-in-law and spouses, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Matheson of Cleveland, OH and Mr. and Ms. Randolph T. Edwards of Baltimore and many nieces, nephews and friends.
