

Q. Who was the physician?

A. I did'nt know. He [Mr. Herring] was a very healthy man; after that, it was quiet all the time.

Q. Is it a very robust man who is apt to be attacked with heart disease?

A. It sometimes occurs.

By Mr. Freaner—Did you hear any guns fired during the day?

A. None. Parties came up to me in the morning and requested me to put up a barricade; it was not up long, before it was requested to be taken down again, which we did not do.

Q. Do you say there was no gun firing?

A. Not that I heard; any man disposed to vote could have voted there.

Q. Why do you say so?

A. Because the Reform party say so themselves; there were several stood at the windows, and they made the remark, that if people did not vote, it was their own fault.

Q. You say there was no obstructions outside of the polls; how could you see except by looking over the barricade?

A. In front of the window; when a rush was made, it was towards the front of the window, but it was one party almost; after Mr. Herring's death, there were very few of the opposite party, (the Reform party) there; there were some, but not as many as in the morning.

By Mr. Goldsborough—What were Mr. Herring's politics?

A. He has been a Whig, Know-Nothing and Reformer.

Q. What ticket do you believe he intended to vote?

A. I believe he intended to vote the Reform ticket?

Q. Had he expressed himself so?

A. I did not hear him say so.

Q. Why do you think he intended to vote the Reform ticket?

A. He came with the Reform party who came there in the morning.

Mr. Freaner (reading a portion of the Rev. S. Mayer's printed testimony, in which he narrated the proceedings at the ballot box whilst depositing his ticket)—Do you recollect that instance?

A. No, sir, nothing of the kind.

By Mr. Gordon—Was there room to pass between the barricade and the window?

A. Yes.

Q. Could he get between the barricade and the window to show his ticket?
