

Witness—No sir.

Mr. Hagner—(reading)—“I saw him to the best of my knowledge and belief take votes more than once from the same person.”

Witness—I did not see Hinsley take votes more than once from the same person, and I did not take them myself.

Mr. Hagner—(reading)—“It was with the greatest difficulty that a voter of the Reform ticket could reach the polls; no foreigner was allowed to vote, unless some of the rowdies vouched for him.”

Witness—When a foreigner came up and showed his papers, we always took his vote. There was not the least difficulty in voting.

Mr. Hagner—What was Mr. Martin's condition that day?
A. He was very much excited.

Mr. Freaner—Was he drunk or sober? That's what he means to ask you.

A. I am not able to say whether he was drunk or not; he had been very anxious to be appointed a judge.

Mr. Gaither—When Mr. Hinsley arrived had there been any tickets taken?

A. He was sworn in before the clock struck nine, and no tickets were taken.

By Mr. Hagner—Q. State whether, so far as you know the election was conducted fairly?

A. I think it was; when a man came up that I thought was not entitled to his vote, I swore him. The only fuss I saw was about half-past nine. The firing commenced, I heard, upon the upper side.

By Mr. Freaner—Q. Do you know Erasmus Levy?

A. I do.

Q. Did you see him there that day?

A. I saw him there keeping order, and he told Mr. Wallis that he should not be hurt. He is a quiet young man. I don't suppose he ever drank a drop of liquor in his life.

Mr. Freaner—(Reading from Mr. Wallis' testimony)—“They were marched up to the polls in charge of the man I have referred to, in Indian file, where they voted as rapidly as Mr. Hinsley, the chief judge, could take their tickets,” &c.

A. No, sir, I don't think there was any man voted twice in the ward, and I don't think there was an illegal vote.

Q. Do you undertake to say that there was no man voted twice in that ward?

A. I don't think there was, if they were voted, I did not see them.
