RETIRING GOVERNOR,

Entering Upon the Closing Duties of His Administration.

HIS FAREWELL ADDRESS

To Be Delivered at Inauguration of Mr. Lloyd Lowndes.

He Says that He Has Apparently Been Put in a False Position in Regard to the "Maryland Day" Project—The Option on "Springfield" Expired November 10.

Governor Brown returned yesterday from New York, where he attended the horse show last week.

The Governor is enthusiastic upon the question of horse shows. He said the New York affair was a great success. "The hotels were packed with people," he said, "and the event drew thousands of persons to New York, who spent thousands upon thousands of dollars and much time in shopping. At the same time the horse show was paying its own expenses. It illustrated the value of such an affair to a large city, and it is greatly to be regretted that Baltimore has been unable to establish a similar exhibition of fine horses."

Until the end of November the Governor expects to be busy issuing the commissions of persons who were elected to public offices in Baltimore and the counties of Maryland November 5. He will probably spend the greater part of his time at Annapolis until this work is finished. Preparations will then be made to wind up the affairs of his administration as Governor of Maryland, which will end with the inauguration of Mr. Lloyd Lowndes, at Annapolis, January 8, 1896. Among the duties remaining to be performed is the preparation of Governor Brown's farewell address, which is to be delivered at the inauguration of Mr. Lowndes.

After retiring from office Governor Brown expects to devote his time exclusively to his duties as president of the Traction Company. He also intends to visit Europe next spring.

In regard to his name being connected with the failure to have a Maryland Day celebration at Atlanta the Governor said that apparently he had been put in a false position, as his failure to go to Atlanta was given as one of the principal causes of breaking up the Maryland Day exercises there. He states that he had booked his military staff to make the trip to the exposition as his guests, but that when he had arranged his part of the programme the business men "did not materialize," and so the Governor thinks the blame should not be placed upon him.

The option given by the Governor upon his country place, "Springfield," to the commission to buy a site for the new State insane asylum expired November 10, which was eight days ago. No definite action has since been taken by the commission. The Governor says he will call a meeting of the commission in a few days to decide the matter.

REPUBLICAN OPPORTUNITIES.

BISHOP OF MONTANA

Rt. Rev. Leigh Richmond Brewer on a Visit to Baltimore.

Rt. Rev. Leigh Richmond Brewer, Missionary Bishop of Montana, preached at Christ Protestant Episcopal Church yesterday morning, and at night made a missionary address at Emmanuel Church.

He is a native of Vermont, and was graduated from Hobart College and from the General Theological Seminary. In 1886 he was ordained a deacon and was made a priest the following year. He was rector of Trinity Church, Watertown, N. Y., when elected bishop, and was consecrated in 1890.

Bishop Brewer's territory in Montana includes over 140,000 square miles of mountains and valleys in the heart of the Rockies. When he took charge of the jurisdiction, fifteen years ago, two railroads were just entering the State, and travel was mainly restricted to stage-coaches or horses. Now 3,000 miles of railway lines are within the State. Butte, the greatest mining camp in the world then, contained about 4,000 inhabitants, while it now has 25,000. The Anaconda Company, with headquarters at Butte, sends the principal output of about 3,500 tons of matte a day to the Baltimore Copper Refining and Rolling Company, at Canton.

When he first went to the Western country Bishop Brewer had many frontier experiences. While preaching in a mining camp he was once shot at by a miner, who was crazed with liquor. The man was passing the ball, and, when he learned the nature of the services, drew his revolver to have a shot at the preacher. His friends struck down his arm and Bishop Brewer did not know until afterward that the shot he heard during his services was meant for him.

The Bishop lives at Helena. One of the institutions established under his care is St. Peter's Hospital. St. Peter's School is also conducted at Helena.

MAY ACCEPT THE CALL.

Rev. W. J. E. Cox, of Staunton, Preaches at Seventh Baptist Church.

Rev. W. J. E. Cox, of Staunton, Va., who has been called to the pastorate of Seventh Baptist Church, corner of Paca and Saratoga streets, preached there yesterday to a large congregation.

After the service Mr. Cox was congratulated upon his sermon and many of the congregation expressed the hope that he would accept the call. He said he had not decided upon any action in the matter, but it is probable that he will make known his determination this week.

In the event of his acceptance he will resign his pastorate at Staunton next week and arrange to take charge of Seventh Church about January 1.

Mr. Cox was born in Norfolk, Va., November 25, 1838. His parents removed to Richmond when he was an infant. He was educated there at Richmond College, and in 1862 went to the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., whence he was graduated in 1864. He was ordained in June of the same year in Richmond, and accepted a call from Georgetown, Ky., where he remained five years. Then he went to Maysville, Ky., to accept the pastorate of the Baptist church there. After two years spent in the ministry at Maysville he accepted a call to Staunton Baptist church. Mr. Cox is married and has two children.
