McKeldin Wins '71 Award

Theodore R. McKeldin, former mayor of Baltimore and Governor of Maryland, was named the 1971 recipient of the George L. Radcliffe Humanitarian Award last night for "his generous and meaningful contribution of time and talents devoted to the betterment of his fellow man." OCT 27 1971

Mayor D'Alesandro presented the plaque to Mr. McKeldin.

Mr. Radcliffe, the 94-year-old former United States senator, was the first to receive the award in 1968.

Judge Hammerman Speaks

Judge Robert I. H. Hammerman, chairman of the National Foundation—March of Dimes' Greater Baltimore Chapter, spoke at the award dinner at Martin's West. Eve., Sun

The award was founded by the March of Dimes chapter here three years ago. Recipients are named by a committee composed of prominent political figures, judges and civic leaders.

John Unitas, Colts' quarterback; Charles P. McCormick, former board chairman of the McCormick Company, and Dr. Edward Davens, former state deputy health commissioner, shared the honor in 1969. No award was made last year.
