~~The Governor's Trip~~

TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN—Sir: Recently there appeared a news item in the press announcing that Governor McKeldin is going to travel to Heidelberg, Germany, to deliver a speech before the branch of the University of Maryland, which is located there.

Traveling across the ocean to Heidelberg involves considerable expense for the delivery of a speech. That raises a question. Do the taxpayers have to pay the expenses, or does the Governor pay for it himself?

If the taxpayers have to foot the bill, why can't the Governor simply send his message via air mail? After all, with increased income taxes and sales taxes and the recession we are experiencing, many a Marylander is going to have a tough time to get to Ocean City, Md., on a vacation.
