

BRADY AT WORK ON SNOWDEN CASE

An enthusiastic meeting at Sharp Street Memorial Church on Monday night, in the interest of John Snowden, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Brandon, in Annapolis, and a joint meeting of the Baltimore and Annapolis committees on Tuesday were the developments in the fight to secure for the convicted man a new trial. At the meeting Monday night, addresses were delivered by Revs. Ernest Lyon, W. M. Alexander and Captain George W. Brown, and a substantial sum was raised to carry the case to the Court of Appeals.

A committee from Baltimore, composed of Revs. Naylor, Steptean and Alexander and Captain George Brown held a conference with the women of Annapolis, who raised the funds to carry on the first case and were informed that A. T. Brady, chief counsel in the first case, had been secured and in order that the case might be gone into immediately, a public-spirited citizen had loaned $500 with him, the approximate amount needed to carry the case to the higher court.

The Baltimoreans promised to cooperate with the women in every way.
