

The colored man and brother in St. Mary's seems to be awakening to a full sense of his political importance, and to be determined that the tail of the party shall no longer wag the republican dog. James E. Jackson, colored, is announced in the Enterprise as a candidate for the Commissioners' Court, and Richard E. King is spoken of for the House of Delegates.