LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13, 1860.

MR. EDITOR: As I was too busily engaged last week in negotiating for the purchase of the Black Republicans, it was out of my power to write you a letter on matters and things transpiring here. You have seen it at, though, on a previous week, we could not secure the votes of all the anti-Democratic Northerners, professing to be opposed to "Helperism," for a South American like Mr. Smith, of North Carolina, we forced them to take a New Jersey American for Speaker, and a Maryland American for Sergeant-at-arms, mighty soon afterwards. Considering how much we Americans had been abused by the New York Tribune and other Black Republican journals, about our opposition to so much foreign interference in our elections, you will have to concede that we won a great triumph in this instance over Helperism, if not over Democracy. Very many of the Helperites have shown symptoms of great chagrin about their being compelled to sell out to "a handful of Know-nothings," as they had been in the habit of terming us, and the cause of this is said to be the opposition they now anticipate from large numbers of German "Free-Staters," in the West, who have thus far acted with them. The election of John W. Forney as clerk of the House, was indispensable, on account of the resolutions taken in his favor by some four or five "anti-Lecompton Democrats," without whose votes no "Free-State" speaker could be elected. This thing being done to serve the favor of that "corporal's guard," the Republicans had no difficulty afterwards in effecting the election of Mr. Marston, of New Hampshire, for door-keeper, and Mr. Lucas, of Illinois, for Postmaster. But in their two caucusses of Wednesday last, the Republicans had great trouble in selecting their public printer. At the first caucus held that day, Mr. Mitchell, (of the St. Louis Evening News) an American, pledged to Mr. Bates, of Missouri, for President, was nominated by a plurality of votes, but in the subsequent caucus of Wednesday night, Mr. Defrees, of Indiana, was nominated by a majority of one. At the present time much dissatisfaction prevails in their ranks, and a little breeze occurred in the House about it on Friday, between Stanton, of Ohio, and Colfax, of Indiana. The New York Tribune, of Saturday, seems to be displeased about the defeat of Mr. Mitchell, and from this I think the Tribune (in spite of its violent and offensive abolitionism) is for throwing Seward overboard and nominating Bates, of Missouri. Among the most ultra Helperites, John Minor Botts, of Virginia, is the favorite, in case they find themselves compelled to set Seward back (or put him forward) to 1864.

The number of Republican applicants for places under the Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, Doorkeeper, and Postmaster of the House, exceed any thing ever before witnessed in the history of Washington. Though many have been provided for in the clean sweep made, or to be made, an has many more are hanging back in the hope of being made clerks of committees, the train of cars that left here on Saturday afternoon, carried away fully one hundred thousand pounds of disappointed human flesh. Thirteen cars were filled to overflowing with folks bound North and West. Heretofore, I thought the Republicans were seeking power only to legislate for the benefit (it should be injury) of the negro. I never before dreamed that one of them wanted office, or would accept office. But they have proven to be the most ravenous pack of wolves that ever indulged in a hunt about Washington. It is office and plunder they want, and nothing else. They really care no more about slave negroes than they did about free negroes, when excluding them from several of the new States.

Immediately after electing all their officers excepting the Printer, the House went to work and passed the Post Office Deficiency bill, but omitted to provide for the abolition of the franking privilege and to require the printing of the Post Office blanks to be let out to the lowest responsible bidder, to make it acceptable to the Senate. As the franking privilege so burdens the mails as to increase the cost of transporting them nearly a hundred fold in the sparsely settled regions of our country, and the printing of the Post Office blanks has heretofore cost more than twice as much as the work was really worth, the Democratic Senate had the good judgment to so amend the bill sent to them from the House, as to require these much needed reforms to be carried out. As the only Americans to be found in the Senate (Kennedy and Crittenden) united with the Democratic members in sticking on the Post Office amendments to the Post Office Deficiency bill, it is my duty to give a support to said amendments, and to express my surprise to you at finding the Republican committee of the House, to whom "the bill, as amended by the Senate," had been referred, reporting it back with a recommendation that the amendments of the Senate be rejected. If your memory has not failed you, you will bear me witness that the Post Office Appropriation bill was defeated one year ago by the Republicans and other factious members of the House, because the Senate had affixed to it these same much needed amendments; and if the Post Office Deficiency bill shall now be defeated for a similar reason, terrible ought to be the consequences to the Republican party. In my judgment it will not feel to British beasts and men lost their reason."

"No set of men have cried out more loudly against the Democracy for alleged extravagance in the administration of the Government, than these same Republicans, and some members of that American party, to whose principles I am charged with being committed. And yet, when the Democratic Senate takes the lead (through Toombs, Davis, Brown and Douglas) in making war upon the extravagance of the franking privilege and the printing of the Post Office blanks, I find all the Republicans of the Senate but two, and all the Republicans of the House, doing their utmost to perpetuate such extravagance. In this economy of the Democratic members of the Senate, you have my hearty concurrence, and even the God-forsaken New York Tribune says it is "a wholesome measure," and trusts "it will be promptly passed by the House and become a law." If under such circumstances, the Republicans of the House do not support and "put through" the Senatorial amendments, join with me in writing them down as the most arrant set of hypocritical politicians that ever punished in this or any other country.

I must be allowed to say now what I omitted to say in the proper place, that though we bought the Republicans in the election for speaker and sergeant-at-arms, we found ourselves pretty well sold back when speaker Pennington announced his standing committees of the House. The Helperites, or semi-Helperites, are at the head of nearly all the important committees, and though this may please John Minor Botts (of Virginia) who is every night secretly conclaving with John Sherman and other Helperite Republicans, it is certainly not very agreeable to me. TIMON.

Speaker Pennington's Committees.

Speaker Pennington and his councillors have at length performed their great work, and the American people are now informed into whose hands are intrusted the most important legislative functions during the Thirty-sixth Congress of the United States. Never, we believe, since the foundation of the Government, has any Speaker of the House performed the delicate task of naming committees in a manner so open to public condemnation, or with such utter disregard of all the principles which ought to have guided his action.

In the face of the well-known fact that a decided majority of the House was of opinion that no endorser of the Helper pamphlet was "fit to be Speaker;" that Mr. Sherman was only withdrawn when it was manifest that he could never be elected; and that he (Pennington) was only elected because he was supposed to recognize the compacts of the Constitution, and advocate obedience to the law, he has been wicked enough, if he acted for himself, and weak enough, if he was controlled by others, to place the most obnoxious of the Helper endorsers at the head of all the most important committees, in contempt of the reiterated opinion of the House, and the well known public sentiment of every section of the Union. At the head of the Committee of Ways and Means—the most important in the House—is placed John Sherman, a Helperite, who for eight weeks tried in vain to occupy the Speaker's chair. He has never disclaimed the vile sentiments of Helper's book, his endorsement of which defeated his election; and yet Mr. Pennington elevates him to the highest position to which he has the power to appoint him.

Next we find Mr. Elihu B. Washburne, of Illinois, a Helperite, placed in the chair of the Committee on Commerce. Mr. Mason W. Tappan, a Helperite, occupies the first place of the Committee on Claims; Schuyler Colfax, a Helperite, that of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads; Cadwallader C. Washburne, of Wisconsin, a Helperite, that of the Committee on Private Land Claims; Mr. Benjamin Stanton, a Helperite, that of the Committee on Military Affairs; Freeman H. Morse, of Maine, a Helperite, that of the Committee on Naval Affairs; Galusha A. Grow, a Helperite, that of the Committee on Territories; John F. Potter, a Helperite, that of the Committee on Revolutionary Pensions; and Francis E. Spinner, a Helperite, that of the Committee on Accounts. All these men whom Mr. Pennington has placed in positions of power and influence in the transaction of the legislative business enforced the entire nation, have endorsed the infamous Helper pamphlet, recommending treason, murder, servile insurrection, and robbery; and not one of them has ever denied or excused the act, or repudiated the doctrine of the book.

In places of minor importance on all the principal committees numbers of Helperites—convicted but impenitent traitors—are to be found. But this is not all. At the head of the Judiciary Committee, in a house where some of the ablest and most distinguished lawyers in the country have seats, is placed John Hickman; and at the head of another committee, on which such a man as Hindman, of Arkansas, has a subordinate place, John B. Haskin figures.

Another remarkable feature of the Pennington-Sherman committees is the gratitude displayed towards the South Americans for services rendered, and the favors conferred in advance for future aid, in the nomination of five out of the twenty-three to chairmanships of committees. Thus we find John A. Gilmer, of North Carolina, chairman of the committee on Elections; George Briggs, of New York, of the Committee on Revolutionary Claims; Emerson Etheridge, of the Committee on Indian Affairs; Robert Mallory, of the Committee on Roads and Canals; and Robert Hatton, of Tennessee, of the Committee on Naval Expenditures. We have observed with indignation, not unmixed with contempt, the manner in which South Americans have coquetted and toyed with the black-republicans; and how American votes have been found on every important occasion in sufficient numbers to enable the black-republicans to effect their purposes.

We do not complain that honest democrats have been offered no favors by the Pennington-Shermanites. We think that their proudest badge of distinction is that they have been passed over by such a party. Nor do we specially wonder at the flagrant manner in which the Pennington-Shermanites have sacrificed the public interest to subserve party purposes or gratify personal spite. We need only cite one instance. Benjamin Stanton is chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, while that brave and distinguished officer, Colonel George W. Hughes, has no place there, although everybody will admit that his experience and information would be eminently useful in the consideration of military matters.

The hope was expressed and entertained that Mr. Pennington would discharge his duties impartially and fairly, and that, while the black-republicans were most favored, he would not outrage public sentiment and the declared opinion of a majority of the House, by placing almost every important trust in the hands of a recorded endorser of Helper's treason, or of a renegade democrat whose only claims to distinction are apostacy and breach of plighted faith. It was supposed that, however lamentably deficient Mr. Pennington may be in all the qualities essential to an efficient discharge of the duties of his office, he would at least have sufficient discrimination to distinguish between propriety and flagrant wrong, and that he would have sufficient firmness to observe the former and eschew the latter, however strongly he might be urged to do otherwise. We regret that he has so grievously disappointed all these charitable expectations, and that he should now be placed in a position where every patriot must reprobate his conduct, while he may pity his weakness.—Constitution.

Martenet & Bond's MAP

Of Montgomery County, Md.

FROM ACTUAL SURVEYS by ISAAC BOND, of Sandy Spring, Montgomery Co., Md. S. J. MARTENET, Publisher, No 6 South St., Baltimore, Md.

In accordance with articles of agreement between the aforesaid parties, the subscriber will proceed with canvassing said county for subscribers, for said Map, at the earliest time consistent with his other interests.

He has met with excellent success thus far, and he trusts to meet every where, not only with a characteristic old Montgomery welcome, but with encouragement in this enterprise that will reflect credit upon the intelligence and liberality of his fellow-citizens; for he will come fully prepared to show the superiority of such a map over all others in point of usefulness, appropriateness as an ornament, and in contributing to the public good.

He would, therefore, respectfully but earnestly ask all to wait till he comes before purchasing or subscribing for any other map that may offer, unless they are determined to have both.

He will be in Georgetown on W. Harrison's, W. H. Farquhar, Geo. W. Dawson, and many others, for the information of those not already acquainted with
