The Cecil Whig

ELKTON, MARCH 1, 1873.

☞ The Editor has been confined to bed by sickness this week and part of last. Correspondents whose letters remain unanswered will accept this as the reason.

☞ The article on "Female Education" will appear next week.

"SKETCHES FROM HISTORY."—The original essay which appeared in The Whig last week, under this caption, got into the printer's hands before an introduction was prepared, and in the hurry of business was finally overlooked, and appeared without credit to the writer or the Order under whose auspices it was produced. We regret this, inasmuch as it was a very able historical essay.

The article was written by Mr. John A. Calhoun, and read before Granite Lodge, No. 44, I. O. G. T., of Port Deposit. The article was very strong in illustrations from history, that drunkenness and licentious living had caused the downfall of Pagan Empires.

BEAUTIFUL SNOW.—The strangely beautiful poem, the authorship of which remains in mystery, is now being published by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, of Philadelphia, beautifully illustrated, with other poems, in fine gilt and morocco covers, on tinted paper. No volume could be more appropriate, for the centre table or parlor rack of fline books; and nothing could be in better taste as a present to a friend.

A better description of the work will be found in our advertising columns.

The Inauguration.

On Tuesday next, the 4th inst., President Grant will be inaugurated for the second term. The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press gives the following account of the preparation for the occasion:

"The arrangements for the inauguration ceremonies are fully matured and will be carried out upon a scale far exceeding any display heretofore attempted in the history of the Republic. There will be about fifty different military and civic organizations in the procession, each preceded by a band of music, which will form a parade only equalled at the time Grant and Sherman's armies were reviewed here at the close of the war in 1865. The inauguration ball building is the largest ever erected, being 300 by 150 feet, and its complete appointments for comfort and convenience are unsurpassed. The West Point and naval cadets will attend the ball in force, as well as a number of the officers and members of the other military organizations.

The President, Vice President, Cabinet Ministers, Senators, Representatives, foreign ministers, and distinguished civilians from all parts of the Union, will be in attendance. On March 5th the President, Secretary of War, and Secretary of the Navy will review the West Point and naval cadets. A portion of Pennsylvania avenue will be assigned for their parade and manœuvres.

As numerous volunteer organizations will be in attendance, it is probable that several of the broad avenues will be occupied by them in their competitive drill.—This will afford an opportunity to compare West Point school with the volunteer system.

Thousands of persons in distant cities have engaged quarters at hotels and boarding-houses for the week, and large sums have been paid for front rooms on Pennsylvania avenue from which to see the procession. Tickets for the ball are selling rapidly.

The building which is now in process of construction for the ball is immense. On the ground its dimensions are about 350 by 150 feet. The main building is arched, the arches springing from the ground and running up probably 80 feet, said to be the largest ever sprung in this country. When the decorations are completed, and the 2,500 gas jets are lighted, the spectacle will be one of wonderful brilliancy. The committee have determined to spare no expense to make the inauguration of 1873 one of the most memorable the country has known The expenses are all defrayed by subscription. The building, completed, will probably cost $40,000. It will accommodate ten thousand people. All its appointments will be all that could be desired. The ball-room floor is 300 feet long by 100 feet wide, without an obstruction in all its length and breadth. There is a raised platform at one end of the room for the President and invited guests. The Annapolis and West Point bands (two of the finest in the country) furnish the music for the occasion. The dining-hall is on one side of the main structure, 300 feet long, with access from the main floor at various points along its whole length. On the other side of the structure is a hall the whole length, with hat and cloak-rooms opening into it, divided into small sections, so as to afford the very best facilities for ticketing all wrappings. At the south front of the building are large dressing-rooms for ladies and gentlemen, a room for invited guests, another for the President, and another for the ladies of his party, smoking-rooms, &c.

ENTERPRISE IN BUSINESS.—We like enterprise, and we know of no class of business men displaying more of it than the newspaper publishers of America. The Publishers of OUR FIRESIDE FRIEND, Chicago, announces this week in our columns, their second Annual Distribution of premiums to subscribers. This excellent Story and Family Weekly is now in its third volume. Its success has been great. It is firmly established as one of the leading weeklies of the Union, with the largest circulation of any paper in the West. Its success may in no slight degree be attributed to its method of distributing premiums which is permanent with this paper, being held annually. Its distributions last year gave general satisfaction. Their list of premiums is fine and secures to every subscriber for 1873 a premium either in cash or some one of the valuable articles mentioned in the list. We cheerfully recommend the paper. Their plan of distributing premiums is a notable part of their well conducted enterprise and our readers need have no doubts as to their being fairly dealt with. The paper is a financial success.—Its immense circulation enable its publishers to offer this valuable list of premiums and to fully carry out their plan of distributing them.

Specimen copies of the paper and premium list giving full particulars may be had by addressing the Publishers, Chicago, Ill.

—The great Centennial Celebration movement is rapidly gathering force, and has already reached a stage when success is certainly assured. An immense public meeting was held in Philadelphia on Saturday evening, in the course of which it was announced that the subscriptions made and returned to the committee amount to $1,779,000. This large sum was nearly all collected in Philadelphia. The subscriptions in the State at large have not yet been reported. The speeches made at the meeting were full of confidence and cheer. In Congress, on Friday, General Hawley, of Connecticut, announced that Pennsylvania would contribute at least four millions towards this grand national enterprise, and that its complete success was now certain. Other States were actively at work, and would heartily co-operate in furnishing the necessary means. This statement seemed to take the House, and especially the New Yorkers, by surprise, for many supposed the project would not succeed. The current is now setting so strongly in its favor that it is almost certain that the State will make a liberal appropriation.

FIRE AT PRINCESS ANNE, MD.—On Monday afternoon, a fire broke out in the elegant residence of Col. Wm. G. T. Polk, in Princess Anne, Md., and notwithstanding the prompt exertions of the villagers, the flames soon enveloped the whole building. The adjoining dwellings were only saved by a copious application of wet blankets. Col. Polk's residence was entirely destroyed, together with a portion of the contents. The loss will probably amount to about $7000, with a partial insurance in two local insurance companies. Great difficulty was experienced by those engaged in extinguishing the flames, on account of having no apparatus to work with. An engine would have subdued the fire, before any serious damage had been sustained.

WASHINGTON.

Four more reports were made on the Credit Mobilier evidence in Congress on Tuesday, in connection with the impeachment phase of the subject. General Butler, from the committee on the judiciary, submitted a report upon the resolution of the House directing an inquiry as to the impeachment of any officer of the United States government. The majority of the committee, in their report, first consider what officers are liable to impeachment, and arrive at the conclusion that in this case there are but two who could be brought under articles of impeachment by the House, viz: The Vice-President, and Mr. Brooks, late a government director of the Union Pacific road The latter having long since ceased to be a director of the road, and his case being before another committee of the House, the inquiry into his case is prosecuted no further. The case of the Vice-President is then taken up, the testimony reviewed, and the law and precedents elaborately considered. The object of the constitutional impeachment is considered and the conclusion reached that it is remebial, and intended to secure the removal of an improper officer rather than as a punishment. The committee then argue at length to show that the House has no power to expel persons for offenses committed before their election, and the acts alleged against Mr. Colfax having occurred before his election, to his present position, and while a member of a former Congress, they find nothing in the case of the Vice-President to warrant impeachment, and report the resolution back with the request that the committee be discharged from the further consideration of the resolution, and that it do lie upon the table. The report is signed by Messrs. Bingham, Butler, Eldridge, Peters, Shoemaker, and Voorhees. In the minority reports Mr. Potter dissented from the report of the committee in reference to what is said of impeachment, but concurred in the recommendation that the committee be discharged, in consequence of the short time remaining of the session. Mr. Goodrich dissented from the opinion than an officer could not be impeached or a member expelled for offenses committed prior to his term of office. Mr. Wilson declined to express an opinion in regard to the expulsion of members, and the whole matter was laid over till Wednesday.

The Pomeroy investigation was closed on Tuesday evening, and the Committee are preparing their report. Mr. Pomeroy made a statement under oath, and was cross-examined on his statement by members of the Committee. His defense was in accordance with one of the published rumors that came from Kansas, that the $7,000 which York displayed in the joint convention was placed in his hands to carry to one Page, who lived in the same town, in accordance with a previous arrangement between Pomeroy, Page and York, and that it was a subscription towards a National bank which Page, with Pomeroy's aid, wanted to put into operation. Mr. Page's own testimony was confirmatory of his statement in respect to the understanding between him and Pomeroy, that the money should be handed him through York. So far as the conflict of testimony between York and Pomeroy is not substantiated on one side or the other, or rather against Mr. Pomeroy, the statement of the latter will be believed by Senators generally in determining their action, for Pomeroy has been known to them and regarded as a truthful man, and York, admitting the truth of his statement in its one essential point, is held to be infamous and untrustworthy.

In the United States Senate, on Wednesday, Mr. Schurz presented the credentials of L. V. Bogy, Senator-elect from Missouri. At the evening session the Army Appropriation bill was passed. Among the items is one appropriating a million of dollars to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War in providing suitable headstones for the graves of the deceased soldiers buried in the National Cemeteries. In the House of Representative the debate on the report of the Credit Mobilier Committee occupied the whole day. Mr. Butler tried to get rid of the troublesome business by offering a resolution which provided that all the parties implicated should be turned over to the Criminal Court of the District of Columbia, but Mr. Poland, Chairman of the Committee, would not yield the floor, and Mr. Butler subsided.—Mr. Poland proceed with his speech, and reviewed at some length the testimony on which the report had been based. He was particularly severe upon Mr. Brooks. The substantial point at issue is whether Congress can punish for misdemeanors or other wrongful acts committed at a previous session, Mr. Poland maintaining the affirmative. Mr. Ames handed his speech in reply to Mr. McPherson, Clerk of the House, who read it. We regret that we have not room to print the whole of this able argument. It is a defence of himself and his connection with the Pacific railroad and the Credit Mobilier, and had a marked effect upon the House. He declared that he would have been better off had he never had anything to do with the road. As to bribery, when he sold the stock it was a drug on the market, the financiers of the country refusing to touch it. Some of his friends, both in and out of Congress, took some of the stock upon his assurance to them that it would pay at least ten per cent. There was no action taken upon the affairs of the road for three years after he sold the stock, and none then that a member could be bribed to vote upon. Congress had always given the road all that it asked, and the country approved of its action, hence there was no occasion to bribe anybody.

In the House of Representatives, on Wednesday, the debate on the report of the Credit Mobilier Investigating Committee was continued. Mr. Ritchie offered as a substitute for the resolution recommending the expulsion of Oakes Ames and James Brooks, a resolution censuring the above named gentlemen, also Henry L. Dawes, Glenni W. Scofield, James A. Bingham, Wm. D. Kelley and James A. Garfield, but Mr. Bingham objected, and the resolution was not entertained. Mr. Beck led off in a ferocious speech against the Credit Mobilier party, but wound up by denying the right of Congress to take any jurisdiction of offenses committed before the election of the present Congress. Mr. Voorhees made an eloquent speech defending Mr. James Brooks. It will be seen that the two ablest of the Democrat members of the House oppose any action in the matter. Mr. Stevenson made a speech in favor of the report. Mr. Whitthorne argued that all the Credit Mobilier members should have been included in the resolution of expulsion. Mr. Niblack made a speech in favor of the report. Mr. Bingham defended Mr. Brooks, and denied the jurisdiction of Congress in the premises. Mr. Banks made an able speech in favor of the report. At the evening session Mr. Butler made a characteristic speech, in which he slashed the over-virtuous men who are clamoring for a purification of the House, right and left. Some of his points were like sharp swords. Mr. Shellabarger spoke in favor of the report, and Messrs. Young and Eldridge opposed it on the ground that the House had no jurisdiction.

In the House of Representatives, on Thursday, the debate on the Credit Mobilier report was concluded, and the whole subject finally disposed of. Mr. Poland, Chairman of the Investigating Committee, closed the debate, arguing that Congress had power to expell a member for acts committed during the session of a former Congress. Mr. Sargent offered a substitute for the resolution reported by the committee recommending the expulsion of Oakes Ames and James Brooks, to the effect that the House condemn the conduct of these gentlemen. A motion to lay the whole subject on the table was rejected by a vote of 52 yeas to 161 nays. Mr. Sargant's substitute was adopted by a vote of 115 yeas to 110 nays. The resolution condemning Mr. Ames' conduct was adopted by a vote of 181 to 36, most of the leading Democrats voting in the negative. The resolution censuring Mr. Brooks was adopted by a vote of 174 yeas to 32 nays. A motion to lay the preamble to Mr. Sargent's resolution on the table was lost by a vote of 78 yeas to 131 nays, after which a vote was taken on the preamble and it was rejected—yeas 98, nays 113. Mr. Speer, of Pennsylvania, then offered a long preamble and resolution reciting the evidence taken before the Poland Committee in reference to Hon. W. D. Kelly, and declaring that he deserved the unqualified censure of the House. M. Kelley then took the floor and made a brief speech protesting against this effort to thus strike him down without an opportunity to be heard by witnesses or by counsel. Gen Butler denounced this attempt to censure Judge Kelley when he had not had a proper opportunity of defense. Finally the whole subject was laid upon the table by a vote of yeas 117, nays 75. Mr. Stevenson offered a resolution censuring the conduct of Mr. Samuel Hooper, of Massachusetts, for his connection with the Credit Mobilier, but the House, by a vote of yeas 75 to nays 108, refused to consider the resolution. Then, on motion of Mr. Sargent, the committee of which Mr. Poland was chairman was discharged from further consideration of the subject.

THE SPRING ELECTIONS.—New Hampshire holds the first spring election this year, and the candidates for Governor are Ezekial A. Straw, Republican, and James A. Weston, Democrat. The election is held March 11th, but the canvass is very languid. The next election will be in Rhode Island, April 2nd, and the third in Connecticut, April 7th. In the latter State Henry P. Haven, Republican, and Charles R. Ingersoll, Democrat, have been nominated for Governor. Both in New Hampshire and Connecticut members of Congress are to be chosen at these elections, the former having three and the latter four members. At the Presidential election the majorities for Grant were, in New Hampshire, 5,774; Rhode Island, 8,536, and Connecticut, 4,758. At the gubernatorial elections in the these States in the spring of last year, the Republicans carried New Hampshire by 2,167, Rhode Island by 1,065, and Connecticut by 2,001.

A Disease with a Thousand Symptoms.

Dyspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ailments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forlorn and despondent victims of the disease often fancy themselves the prey, in turn, of every known malady. This is due, in part, to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and the brain, and in part also to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive function necessarily disorders the liver, the bowels and the nervous system, and affects, to some extent, the quality of the blood. A medicine that, like Hostetter's Bitters, not only tones the stomach, but at the same time controls the liver, produces a regular habit of body, braces the nerves, purifies the fluids and "ministers to a mind diseased," is therefore the true and only specific for chronic indigestion. Such is the operation of this famous vegetable restorative. It not only cures dyspepsia, but also all concomitants and consequences. Moreover, it is invaluable as a preventive of indigestion. No one who chooses to take half a wineglassful of this agreeable appetizer and stomachic habitually thrice times a day will ever be troubled with oppression after eating, nausea, sour eructations, or any other indications of a want of vigor in the digestive and assimilating organs. The debility and languor superinduced by hot weather are immediately and permanently relieved by the Bitters, and persons who are constitutionally inclined to look upon life "as through a glass, darkly," will be apt to take a brighter and more hopeful view of the situation under the genial influence of this wholesome medicinal stimulant.

Congress has appropriated $10,000 towards defraying the expense of experiments in stocking the rivers and lakes of the United States with shad.

Alexander H. Stephens, late Vice President of the Southern Confederacy, has been elected to Congress from the Eighth District of Alabama.
