RAIL ROAD MEETING AT GREENSBOROUGH.—We desire to call attention to the Rail Road meeting to be held at Greensborough on next Saturday, 25th inst., and hope there will be a large attendance from this county, both of stockholders and others.

This meeting was called by one held last month at the same place and is for the purpose of making arrangements to finish that portion of the Md. & Del. R. R. between Smyrna and Greensborough. There has never been a time, since the first Rail Road was built, when the cost of construction was as low as it is now, and we understand that the officers of the company are prepared to show the entire feasibility of completing the road to Greensborough in time for the next crop of peaches.

The experience of the present season has proved conclusively that more money can be made from one fourth of a farm in peaches than from the whole of it in grain, provided the present prices continue; and there is no doubt that this will be the case as a very large proportion of those sold during the present season have been bought for "canning," a business which is yet in its infancy, and is only prevented from increasing to an unlimited extent by the difficulty of getting peaches.

New York is the principal market and the injury sustained by the fruit from the delay in sending by Baltimore is so great that the average prices obtained in Baltimore are but little more than half as great as those at the Depots on the Del. R. Road.

We have inserted on our first page an article from the Diamond State published in Milford, Del., showing the great interest now taken in Rail Roads in that State.

PEABODY CORN.—We received a letter from our old friend, and experimenter in the Peabody Corn, W. H. Tilghman, Esq., at the first of the week, which we designed publishing, but with other papers, have either been lost or mislaid. Its publication, however, is not of so much importance as the report which he promises to give us, when an opportunity shall offer, of the production of one grain of corn. Mr. T.'s suggestions in reference to the farmers noting down the exact mode of cultivation of their different crops and having them published, (which we would willingly do) for the benefit of the agricultural world—if adopted, would, no doubt, prove of vast importance. This year being very unfavorable to the crops would be as good a time to make the beginning as any other—for the man that makes even a tolerable crop this year, should make his mode of culture known to his fellow tillers of the soil. We hope to hear from many after the crops shall be harvested.

POLITICAL.—At a convention at Syracuse, New York, on the 10th inst., the American party refused to join with the Republicans. The entire afternoon session was consumed in making speeches against a union. The speakers generally uniting in the opinion that the Republicans had slighted the action of the Conference Committee.

The following nominations were then made: For Governor—Lorenzo Burrows. For Lieut. Governor—N. S. Benton. For Canal Commissioner—J. R. Thompson. For State Prison Inspector—W. A. Russell.

The Republicans nominated for Governor E. D. Morgan. Robert Campbell was then nominated for Lieutenant-Governor. Canal Commissioner—Hiram Gardner.—State Prison Inspector—Mr. Everett.

HOLIDAYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 9.—The Republican Conferees of this (18th) Congressional district, composed of the counties of Cambria, Huntingdon, Blair, and Somerset, met at Johnstown, last evening. Twenty-nine ballots were had for a Congressional candidate, when Mr. S. S. Blair, having received a majority of votes, was declared the nominee.

DETROIT, Sept. 9.—George B. Cooper was nominated for Congress to-day by the Democaats of the first district.

PEORIA, Illinois, Sept. 9.—The Democratic Convention to-day unanimously nominated J. W. Davidson for Congress, from the Fourth District.

MAINE ELECTION.—The election for State officers and members of Congress took place at Portland on the 14th inst. The returns show a large poll voted. The result in the city of Portland is as follows: Merritt, Republican, 2.300. Smith, Democrat, 1.929. 134 towns gives the Republican nominee 31.078: Democratic 27 108.—The first Congressional district is doubtful, but in the third, Johnson (Dem.) is probably elected. In the fifth and sixth districts the Republicans have undoubtedly elected their candidates.

Local Items.

FIRE.—Another fire occurred on Monday evening last, doing but little damage, however. It broke out in the roof of the dwelling of Miss Henrietta Nicols. By the use of buckets the flames were soon extinguished, our engines, at this time not being worth house room—or, we suppose so at least—as they have been standing in the weather and keeping silent watch over the jail building and their former place of abode ever since the fire of the 22d inst. Let other towns take pattern of the condition of our fire aparatuses and engine house.

P. S.—Last evening just before going to press, another alarm was caused by a fire breaking out in the kitchen roof of Jas. H. Martin, Esq. Its timely discovery only, saved the house from being destroyed.

GAS OR NO GAS.—Our town has presented a very gloomy appearance for two or three nights by the flow of gas being stopped from the disarrangement of some of the pipes. This sudden change, from a brilliant light to one just light enough to make darkness visible—the tallow candle, and etheral lamps—causes our citizens to place a higher estimate upon gas light than before.

DENTON OFFIT.—Our streets have been somewhat stirred from their usual quietness by this "horse tamer" and "pork fatner," during the past week. Occasionally one hears a great roar of laughter, and on looking out can see Offit with some countryman's horse, playing 'soger' up and down the street. Geese and chickens also have to "bow submissively to his will." Bring in your chickens country friends and have them taught to come to the kitchen to have their necks wrung off, saving the trouble of running them down when you want a fry.

A LOSS.—A few days ago Thos. J. Clark, Esq., near town, lost a valuable mare very suddenly with colic. She had a fine Black Hawk colt by her side at the time, and was estimated to be worth $200.

RAIN.—We have been blessed within a week, with two old fashioned rains—real soakers.

THE article on the death of Mr. Joseph E. Muse and Mrs. Mary Grason has been received and will appear next week.

PETERSON FOR OCTOBER.—This beautiful Magazine for October is already at hand. If it is possible, we think it excels the previous number. It is embellished by engravings of no ordinary taste and its fashion plates are in great numbers. What lady can be without this beautiful work.

GRAHAM for October has also been received. Graham is well keeping his promise, for his magazine is calculated to please all ages.

TRIAL OF CATT. TOWNSEND.—Capt. Townsend of brig Echo, lately captured with a cargo of slaves, has been handed over to the authorities of Boston, where he is now undergoing an examination.

THE EASTERN SHORE CONVENTION.

The proposition to hold a Convention of Slaveholders and those friendly to Southern interests, at some convenient point on the Shore, seems to be gaining general favor. It is certainly time for some measure to be taken by which greater protection shall be secured to the property of slaveholders in this exposed portion of Maryland, and we are prepared to sanction and promote any movement looking to this important end. The following letter is taken from the Cambridge Democrat, and is said to be the production of a distinguished citizen of Worcester County. It is addressed to F. W. THOMAS, Esq., (now of Cambridge) whose visit to Easton last Spring will long be remembered by the admirers of literary merit, genial manner and rich colloquial ability, and whose late brilliant advocacy of the rights of our people has extended widely the circle of his friends and admirers:

ST. MARTIN'S, WORCESTER CO., MD., August 20th, 1858.

My Dear Sir: * * * *

The names associated with the meeting at Cambridge give proof that it was ably conducted, and that our best men throughout the State must come forward to the rescue of Maryland, or all is lost. Your own name, our distinguished representative in Congress, Judge Stewart, and my quondam schoolfellow and friend, Daniel M. Henry, Esq., are sufficient pledges to me that Dorchester county is opening her eyes to the vital issue in our State. I find also that in Kent and Queen Anne's counties, large meetings of a similar character have been headed and addressed by our U. S. Senator, Jas. A. Pearce, by our ex-Senator and Judge, Ezekiel F. Chambers, and by Hon. James B. Ricaud.

Let me ask, what new and exciting issue is it that draws these gentlemen and large crowds of excited fellow-citizens so informally together? There is no election on hand, no offices to be filled, no partisan conflict before us to excite the passions and drive men to madness. No, all is quiet within our State in those respects; and yet our peace is disturbed, our prosperity is stolen, our sovereignty as a State invaded and trampled under foot by more cruel enemies than those northern Goths and Vandals who overrun and dismembered the Roman Empire four hundred years before the Christian era.

Why do we not possess that immunity from insult and outrage upon our slave property which South Carolina, Georgia and other sister Southern States enjoy? Is it because State rights and State sovereignty are not guaranteed to us by the federal compact as fully and effectually as to them?—No, for the Federal Government is the creature of the States—the States alone are sovereign. Why then does not Maryland assert her sovereignty?

Year after year for many years past, and each succeeding year more so than the former, have our slaves been stolen from us by northern abolition emissaries. And if one of our citizens go into a free State to reclaim and bring back the slave, he is set upon by mobs, stricken down, thrown into jail, or brutally murdered on the spot. Jas. L. Mitchell, of our State, was demanded by the Governor of Pennsylvania for the crime of getting his negro woman and child from that State. Our Governor refused; what was the result? Two citizens of Pennsylvania, who had assisted Mitchell, were tried for that crime and sent to the Penitentiary! Gorsuch and his son who went up to Carlisle in search of their slaves, were set on, and the old man Gorsuch was literally flayed alive and torn to pieces.—His mangled remains were brought back and now rest, I think, in Harford county. It should be remembered, too, that these bloody trophies immediately followed, and were enacted under the ægis of the fugitive slave law of 1850. The South thought that law would protect them and their slaves in fact, as it professed to do in theory. Alas! they were looking in the wrong direction; they were looking to the creature, not the Creator—to State sovereignty. Like the ancient Sirens, that famous fugitive slave law has only decoyed the slaveholder to his grave; it is a nullity, it is a dead statute; nor can the Federal Government by any possible law it can pass give us that protection and security we need. It would be better for the South this day if the fugitive slave law never had been passed. I thought so in 1850; experience proves it in 1858—State sovereignty is our only security.

Maryland has been compromising and Legislating on this subject every year for the last twenty-eight years. Look at her volumnious statutes running through every session of our Legislature during that whole time.

What good have they done? what good do they do now? We have law upon law, it is true, both as to our free negro and slave population. But they are a kind of milk and water set of laws, ambiguous in their meaning, and complicated in their details. Their title reads very well at the head of the chapter, and perhaps one or two sections may keep company with the title, but then, as if a sudden tremor had seized the Legislature, they put on proviso after proviso till the whole act is shrouded in such mystery and doubt that it fails to have any life or energy left it. The next Legislature meet, and finding the same evils existing, they go through the same farce, and so on from year to year without touching the point at all.

We are the ones in fault; we have the means and the power to protect every man, woman and child within the State in the enjoyment of their property and rights, and yet, we will not exercise them to that extent. When shall we wake up to the necessities of Maryland, and the duties of freemen?

No longer than last year Greely boasted through the "Tribune" that his minions had stolen from Dorchester county twenty-four slaves at one time. There is not a county in the State, and especially on this shore, but has enough of Greely's agents. It is a money making business to them.—They get $150 for every adult male, and $100 for every adult female they can steal from us. In May, 1857, the New England abolition society met in the City Assembly Rooms in New York City to disburse the funds they had then in hand.

Francis Jackson, of Boston, was Treasurer, and reported the sum of $197,912 in hand. The "London Times" says "$158,750 of this amount was sent over from England," and Jackson's report says "$38 162 was raised by home contribution." Now, how was this money applied? The same Treasury report goes on to show that Thomas Garrett, who lives in Wilmington, Del., "showed by his books that he had conveyed to the free States 2,905 slaves."

By his book of record and registry, and by that book he get his proportion of the $196,912.

If I mistake not this man Garrett failed some years back, but he lives in splendor now and he is very wealthy on the bounty he gets for stealing negro slaves. Garrett has his sub-agents who comes amongst us and do the dirty work for him.

But I am running off into details. Allow me to say that unless our free negroes have the alternate of going into slavery or leaving the State, placed before them, I have little hope of doing anything effectually. My opinion is that at least three out of every four would go into slavery voluntarily.

The memorial you spoke of reflects my opinions on the subject. We also want a black police exclusively devoted to free negro and slave laws. I think I see the whole matter fully and plainly and have a definite remedy for the evils complained of. The people are anxious for my remedy in this county, and I trust the State will place such a law on record at the next session.—I have spoke to some friends on the subject of an Eastern Shore Convention, as proposed by your meeting, to take some decisive action now, and to act firmly with our next Legislature. I will meet anywhere on the shore, but would select Cambridge.

I am very truly yours, &c.,

Fire in Baltimore.

DESTRUCTION OF THE CUSTOM HOUSE BY FIRE—Narrow Escape from Death.—At an early hour Wednesday morning an alarm of fire was sounded which proceeded from the burning of the Custom House, on the corner of Gay and Lombard streets. Before the firemen arrived, the whole interior of the place was in flames. The following are some of the particulars: About twenty minutes to four one of the watchmen, named Emanuel Wynderman, discovered that there was a leak in the roof of the building, from which the rain was running into the lower portion of the house. With the view of stopping the leak, he provided himself with a candle and lit it with a piece of paper, which, after having been used, was thrown among some loose papers lying in a small room. After lighting the candle the watchman proceeded to stop the leak, and upon finishing the task descended to the lower part of the house, which he found in flames.

An alarm was immediately sounded by the men on duty, which was responded to by police officer William Pindel, a member of the Columbian Fire Company, who hurried to the scene of conflagration as soon as possible. When Mr. P. reached the fire, he heard cries of distress proceeding from the burning building. Without reflecting he dashed into the smoke and flames and found Wynderman lying insensible on the floor. At this time the volume of smoke was so dense, that in order to prevent suffocation the officer was compelled to stuff a handkerchief into his mouth. The officer, thus protected, grasped the prostrated man, and succeeded in drawing him to the door facing on Lombard street. At this point the officer was so overcome with the smoke and heat, that he fell insensible. He was taken in charge by some of his fellow officers, and with the free use of restoratives was soon enabled to assist in saving property from the burning building. Wynderman was conveyed to his home in the eastern section of the city, where he now lies in a critical condition.

By the gallant exertions of the firemen the flames were confined to the lower portion of the building, which was entirely destroyed. It is impossible to estimate the loss caused by this fire, as some of the papers which were destroyed, cannot be replaced.

Mr. George Rielly, watchman in the house, was severely injured by the falling plastering from the ceiling.

It is estimated that the damage to the building will reach $5,000, and the cost of replacing the books and papers in the various offices, at $20,000 to $30,000.

Information has been communicated to the Treasury Department at Washington, of the disaster, and instruction are expected to enable the Collector to act promptly, with a view to the resumption of the business immediately. As it is, there will be a delay of a few days before proper offices can be obtained for the transaction of the business. The building belongs to the United States Government, and was not insured.—Clipper, of Thursday.

THE BALTIMORE AMERICAN AND JUDGE STUMP.—Judge Stump of the Criminal Court and the Baltimore American have got into a fair war.—We take the following from the Court proceedings of the Clipper:

The grand jury were called and sworn, when the judge called their attention to an article that appeared in the Baltimore American, concerning a trial said to have taken place in this court, in which a party charged with an attack upon a Sabbath School on Federal Hill, was acquitted.—This the Judge contended was a malicious falsehood, and the matter should be presented as a libel. He was willing that every case should be published as taking place in court, but disliked falsehoods. He spoke of having inflicted just punishment in all cases according to his discretion, and did not know of any case wherein he had been remiss. He had made inquiry concerning the matter spoken of, and was assured that no such case ever came for trial. He did not want anything published about the court except that which was true. He had called on the editor of the Clipper and was told that the article had been taken from the American. Looked and saw that it was credited to the American. Called upon the editors of the American, but they have not corrected the article. Was told that the Exchange had published a statement but that it was an anonymous sheet, and therefore he had not attended to it. The editor of the American had acted wrong, and he should not be satisfied until he exculpates himself by showing where he got his information. He therefore requested the grand jury to investigate the matter and see whether it was true or a libel on the court. The court ordered the name of Charles C. Fulton, one of the proprietors of the American, to be stricken from the grand jury list.

The case spoken of was that of Martin Amer. He was tried for abusing Capt. Woods, in the discharge of his duty and trying to incite a riot on West street."

The following certificate, from several police officers, we take from among a number of others which corroborates the same statement, that the article of the American is true, and not a libel:

"We were called upon, on the 5th of July, by the citizens residing in the neighborhood of the corner of Light and West streets, and told that there was a riot going on at the time in West street. When we arrived on the ground, we found from three to four hundred persons collected together, and the prisoner at the bar, Martin Amer, inciting the riotous parties to violence.—Captain Woods approached Amer, and requested him to withdraw and cease from such conduct, when Amer bid defiance to the police, and backing himself on the pavement of his residence, stated that he would defy the police to arrest him. He was consequently arrested by Captain Woods, who handed him over to officer Favier; when he was conveyed to the Station house and there held to bail for his appearance at court.

There was up to the time of his arrest, from twenty to thirty guns fired by the parties congregated about his tavern. A Sabbath School, attached to the Methodist Protestant church, situated on Light street, a few doors from West street, which was returning from a grove on the southern side of the Patapsco, was broken up, the teachers and scholars much frightened by the outrageous conduct of the parties with whom Amer was associated and encouraging to riot. After the evidence was before the Court, the Judge called up the prisoner and addressed him as follows:

"Mr. Amer, I discharge you; go home and behave yourself, and don't give the officers any more trouble—if you do, and are brought here again, the Court will have to punish you—the Court don't intend to let the officers impose on you."

JOHN F. WOOD, Captain of the Police,
JOHN FAVIER, Police Officer,
JOHN A. HAUSE, Police Officer."

THE COMET.—A good deal of anxiety is now felt to see the comet at present visible to the naked eye, at about fifteen minutes past seven, on a clear evening, to the Northwestern horizon, and ranging with the two stars known as the Pointers—the comet being about as far to the left of the Pointers as the North Star is to their right.
