Unconditional Union Meeting.

THE Unconditional Union Men of Talbot County are requested to meet in County Convention at the Court House, in Easton, on Tuesday, the 11th of Sep'tr, at 2 o'clock, P. M. Punctual attendance is requested, as matters of importance will be submitted to the meeting. aug 25

THE EFFECT OF THE PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION.—In speaking of the Convention recently held in Philadelphia, the North American, though not endorsing the Convention, thinks that it accomplished something that will be of vast benefit to the country and great relief to the people. It is a well known fact that before the Convention assembled the Democracy fully expected to have things their own way, and were sadly disappointed, but knowing that to dissent would make their condition far worse, mum became the order of the day. We here give an extract from the New Hampshire Union to show what was urged upon their delegates, and what was expected for them to do:

"The Democracy don't propose to either disband or tie up under the leadership of Bill Seward. They have outlived the Lincoln reign of war, plunder, arson pillage, murder, rape, tyranny, abomination and desolation strewn over the land, and now they propose to dictate the politics of future administrations. The Democratic delegates to Philadelphia understand this and will act accordingly, or they will be thrown overbaord as cumbersome rubbish for the Radical ghouls to devour. The Democracy can't be transferred nor disbanded. We have thousands of true men who will send forth the rallying cry to the great democratic army. 'Stand by our guns. Hold up your banners and march on to victory and the redemption of your country.'"

The following are the remarks of the North American:

"It is said to have laid the foundations of a new party. We know not how that may be; but it has destroyed the identity of the Democratic party. That organization sent most of the delegates to the Convention, and went into the work with spirit and enthusiasm. But when the Convention met, the Democrats found themselves powerless, and instead of swallowing the Convention they were lost in it. * * At the South the name will be no longer used, that of the National Union party being better adapted to serve the purposes of the Southern leaders.—Indeed the latter have been telling the Northern Democrats all along since the conclusion of the war that they regarded it as inadvisable to rally under the democratic standard, which has become so odious at the North on account of the misconduct of the party during the war, and this new device of establishing a conservative party under a different name exactly falls in with their views.

It is a certainty, then, that this Convention has abolished the democratic party, so far as organization will take its place, and it we may judge by the tone of the late Convention, the change will be beneficial to the country.

The Democratic party, especially at the South was a sectional, free trade, pro slavery, aristocratic concern in every fibre of its frame, and no occasion of doing wrong seemed to be lost upon it. Probably no party that ever existed had such a fatal facility for mischief as this one, and now that it is passing away to the limbo of forgetfulness, and a different organization is taking its place, the country will rejoice at the relief.

☞ THE Journal of Thursday made its apperance puffing and snorting equal to a "steam tug" when having in tow a large size ship, all caused from something that did not concern it. Week before last we humorously replied to a little squib in the Cambridge Herald in reference to a lost pitcher, when the Journal, by hewing down and chopping off, and by the great amount of talent with which that office is filled (!) converted it into a post office matter, of about a column in its usual forcible, truthful and elegand style. On Thursday its readers had the dose repeated, with a few variations, (minus the post office record). We should not have made any reply, to the article on Thursday, were it not for one or two bare-faced falsehoods which it contains. As to our political principles, we give the editor of the Journal all due credit as being a man able to judge, never having changed himself and being a man that does his own thinking and writing! As to the call of the county meetings for the Union party, we do not profess to have anything to do with. That is in the hands of the Central Committee and the party. Wherever they are handed in we give them space. We would ask the editor of the Journal whether he calls meetings for his party on his own accord? As to the charge of others conducting our paper we care nothing about. It is immaterial to us what the Journal may think on that score, and the editor may measure our corn by his half-bushel in that case as much as he chooses, but the charge which he re-hashes every few weeks that we ever sympathized with the rebel cause, and the charge he made on Thursday that we would not do printing for the party without pre-payment, or that we demanded pay before or after the work was done, is a base fabrication. About the whole of the secret is, there are one or two who figure in the columns of the Journal, who are fully impressed, set as hard as any dogger, and everything that is heard which [illegible] done. We hope in future [illegible] us for referring to the article in the Journal, at so great a length. The remainder of the article we shall make no reply to, for it is his old sterreotype re-produced.

THE TABLEAUX.—The Tableaux commencing on Wednesday evening next, we have no doubt will be very interesting and that the attendance will be large.—It will be held in the spacious Court Room and no pains is being spared to make the audience comfortable and to present scenes in the best possible manner. In making the arrangements for this exhibition, and the arrangement of the stage surroundings in so handsome a manner, no little credit is due to Dr. J N. Baird. He has given his whole attention to it for some time past and the style in which he has gotten it up, reflects great credit upon his taste and skill. The proceeds of this exhibition will be devoted to charitable purposes.

☞ THE County levy list which we are publishing at the present time, crowds out nearly all reading matter, but in it the public cannot fail to be interested. Those the county are indebted to can at a glance see its indebtedness and ascertain the expenses of conducting the affairs of the county in whole or districts. Two more insertions are due this list and then we shall give our usual amount of reading matter.

THE CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.—We learn that the Unconditional Union Congressional Convention for this District, held in Cambridge on Wednesday last, failed to make a nomination, but from what cause we have not been able to learn. A delegate from each county was selected as a committe to make the nomination at some future period.

☞ THE only loyal journal in New Orleans has been forced to suspend publication. The New Orleans Tribune office, since the riots there, has been protected by the military, but the guard being withdrawn, its editors have closed their establishment.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATIONS.—On Wednesday last, the Congressional Convention in the second district nominated Hon. John L. Thomas. The third nominated J. J. Stewart, Assessors of Internal Revenue. The fourth, W. J. Albert.

ACCEPTED.—Col. Wm. J. Leonard, nominated by the conservative Union party of Maryland, candidate for Comptroller of Treasury of the State of Maryland, has accepted the nomination.

THE COMET.—The St. Michaels "Comet" has again made its appearance, but in an enlarged form, and quite spicy in its productions. We hope our young friends much success.

For the Easton Gazette.

MR. EDITOR:—I was recently in the office of one of the Registers of the county, and find that they are not merely registering those that were not registered last fall, either as loyal or disloyal, which I think is the limit of their authority and duty, but are taken up cases (I believe all that apply) that were tried and settled last fall, thereby re-opening and trying them over again. Can you tell me by what authority they pursue such a course? Can a Justice of the Peace take up and re-open a case that has been tried and decided by his predecessor in office, and try it over again? Who would suppose that Judge Goldsborough, of a higher tribunal, could re-open and try over a case settled under Judge Eliand? Sir I have never known or heard of such proceedings by officers of the law. But what is the law under which they are appointed and which defines their powers and duties in Article III of the Registry Law? It is written "that for the purpose of correcting said list of qualified voters after the first general election held under this act, by the addition of the names of persons having come of age, acquired a legal residency, been naturalized or otherwise, and by striking from such register of voters, the names of persons removed from the county or State, by death or other causes of disqualification &c." This is the only duty and business of all the Registers that succeed those of '65. Now sir, is there any authority here for taking up and trying over cases that have been tried and decided by their predecessors? But in the 15th section we read that said officer of Registration shall not put on the list of voters the name of any person who was entered on the original book of registration as disqualified under the third, fourth or fifth sections of Article first of the Constitution, without full legal proof that such disqualification has been removed in the manner provided in said section of said Article of the Constitution." Now sir, I think there is not one question asked as to the removal of the disqualifying cause. I have heard of too much cases, and no such question was asked, which it appears to me is the only question with which they have any thing to do in such cases, unless they profess to be an appeal court, (which I presume they do not,) reopen the case and reverse the former decision. Now sir, I hold that the judges of election will be compelled by their oath to disregard such action by rejecting the vote of every man whose status has been changed unless they believe it was done according to law.—I claim to be no politician and never was, but feel as deep an interest in the welfare and good government of my country and State as any other man, and believe as a means of good government, the Registry Law is righteous and just, and ought to be properly executed and sustained.

The above thoughts have been revolving in my mind for the last few days, I have tried to commit them to paper; if you think them worthy of publishing do so; if not no harm done. CHAPEL.

TRAGEDY IN SOMERSET COUNTY, MD.—A horrible tragedy occurred in Rockawalking, Somerset county, on Sunday the 12th inst. It appears that after the funeral of a young man named Hatton, the remains were conveyed to the private burial grounds of Josephus Humphreys, and when the relatives and friends had assembled, a very worthy young man named John Humphreys, from Princess Anne, escorted a relative, who had recently married a man by the name of Isaac James Cooper, to the grave. Her husband stopped them, and threatened to shoot him if he proceeded one step further; whereupon a brother of the lady, Purnell Johnson, a very worthy citizen, said: "If you want to shoot any one, shoot me." Cooper instantly drew a revolver and shot him through the heart. Mr. Josiah Ellingsworth, one of the most respectable as well as peaceable citizens of the State, attempted to restrain Cooper from further violence, whereupon he (Cooper) shot him through the back, killing him in about five minutes. One of the by-standers then knocked Cooper down with a chair, and tied him securely, with the assistance of the people present. It seems that Cooper and his wife have been living separate for some time, owing to the bad treatment on his part, and that Mrs. Cooper had applied for a divorce on that account. The affair has created a profound sensation in that part of the State.—Cambridge Herald.

☞ The Louisville Journal, a Conservative Union Johnson paper, in speaking of the late Kentucky Election and its effect says:

"To judge by the events that are taking place here in Kentucky, one might be in doubt whether he is really living in the Union or in the late Confederacy. Men boast every day on the streets that they are 'good Rebels.' The speakers at meetings eulogize the Confederacy, eulogize its Generals, its soldiers, its principles, its policy, and its objects. They denounce the Government, denounce the Union, denounce the efforts to preserve it, denounce Union Generals, Union soldiers, the principles of the Union, the policy of the Union, and the objects of the Union."

SALE OF POINT LOOKOUT.—This well known point, situated at the mouth of the Potomac river, much resorted to previous to the war as a summer resort but which for some time previous to the conflict was used as a prison for Confederate prisoners, has recently been purchased by a company of New York capitalists, who design putting everything in first rate repair by next season, with a view of using it as a watering place. The price paid for the Point has not been made public, although it must have been quite large, as during the time it was occupied by the Government, upwards of half a million dollars is said to have been spent in putting up buildings alone.—Washington Chronicle.

☞ President Johnson has issued a proclamation declaring the rebellion completely and everywhere suppressed and ended, and that the authority of the United States has been successfully and completely established. The Kentucky Governor elected by the reconstructed of that State, has given charge of that State. The writ of habeas corpus is restored, martial law removed and he then declares "that the insurrection is at an end, and that peace, order, tranquility and civil authority now exists in and throughout the whole of the United States."
