REBELLION AND IMPERIALISM.—Upon the day of the reception of the intelligence of the assassination of President Lincoln, or thenext, we recollect to have heard a gentleman of this county, of more than ordinary intelligence and culture, but who, we regret, was in sympathy with those arrayed against the government in the war then just ended, say he hoped Gen. Grant would seize the reins of power, and declare himself dictator or emperor of the United States of America.—This expression was probably but a passionate outburst of feeling, and not the result of previous deliberation. The sentiment then, as now it is, was considered equally atrocious and foolish, but also equally natural and consequential. It was just such a sentiment as one might expect fram a person who had adopted the destructive doctrines that had their practical development in rebellion, and had just seen those doctrines confuted by the inexpugnable logic of events. It was just such a sentiment as a man disappointed in his warmly cherished, and more warmly cherished, perhaps, after being once committed to them, because they were wicked schemes for the overthrow of a constituted government, would be likely to entertain when he saw that government successfully asserting its power and securing its perpetuity. This gentleman, doubtless as true a lover of liberty as ourselves, when he saw the cock-boat of secession, in which he had embarked all his hopes, go to pieces upon the rocks of Rebellion, was willing to see, would indeed have enjoyed a grim satisfaction in seeing the ship of State, laded with the hopes of all mankind, shipwrecked on the beach of Imperialism.

No one reading the Southern papers and those papers that espoused the cause of the South during our late war, but must be struck with the fact that the idea of a change in the form of our government has become familiar and welcome; that with a large number of people there would not only be no objection to an emperor or king, but that any strong man who would seize the reins of power in his country would have their hearty support. Some months ago, when some silly young men, who were actually ashamed to tell their names, established a paper in New York for the advocacy of a strong personal government, the vagary was hailed as a most auspicious omen, and the crude notions that were put forward were received as the deductions of a wisdom matured by sage experience. And within a few weeks in this very county there have been published foolish declarations of a preference for the rule of a Louis Napoleon over that of a radical Republicanism. We do not feel any serious concern about such expressions.—We know that they proceed from chagrin, mortification, disappointment. We are only sorry for those who use them, for they indicate weakness and wickedness—weakness in that they show they know nothing of which they are speaking, and wickedness in that they show they would be glad to see others suffer, to gratify their own vindictiveness,—others whose sole offence is that they have prevented them from doing a great wrong. This Imperialism is but a new phase of the old "aristocratic" policy of Rebellion.

It cannot be at this day, when the civilized nations throughout the world, are approaching nearer and nearer to liberal and free institutions; when they are getting rid, as fast as is possible, of all irresponsible or personal government; when Russia, Prussia, Italy, and that very France with whose tyranny some seem to be so fascinated, are taking steps day by day toward constitutional, representative, democratic rule; it cannot be, that any sensible man would, except in the delerium of passion, advocate the introduction of an autocracy. The simple men who speak so glibly of imperialism, do not know what it means. They have been spoiled by the extreme liberty of our democracy.

The constant outcry made by the opposition papers of the tyranny and oppression of Radical rule, is the veriest twaddle that was ever uttered. It has no meaning really, but the discontent of office seekers and partisans. If this tyranny is so unendurable why do not the unfortunate victims leave it? Or when they have left it, why do they seek to get back to it again? We all know that many southern men soon after the war sought refuge from this imaginary oppression (the truth is, all the wrongs the South ever endured were imaginary and by anticipation—it rebelled to prevent wrongs to come, not wrongs already encountered) in the IMPERIALISM of Brazil, and other countries; but almost to a man they have returned to suffer the tyranny of Radical rule, or they wish to return. We know of but two or three instances, though there may be a few more, of men of prominence who went abroad after the war who have not come home. One has a fat office in the household of the emperor of France, another has made an advantageous family alliance by the marriage of his daughter to a French banker, and the third a foreigner by birth, was probably never a sincere democrat in his convictions. As for the emigrants to the dominions of the excellent and liberal minded emperor Don Pedro, they are begging money to come back to the States, and it would be no astonishing thing if Congress should send a ship to bring these prodigal sons home.

But can we play with fire not be burned, or handle pitch and not be soiled? This constant talking of and lauding 'autocratic government as a remedy for evils, which if real are incident to all States, or if imaginary can be overcome by a simple effort of the will, may produce harm to us, in the end. It will familiarize the common mind with revolution and arbitrary rule, so that hereafter when some strong and resolute party leader attempts the overthrow of the constituted government, and the placing himself at the head of an empire, he will find not only a large following, but the popular mind already accustomed to the thought of such a regime and easily reconciled to monarchical rule. The experience of the past should teach us something. We tampered with nullification, states-rights, secession, right of revolution, until we fell headlong into rebellion: We may tamper with Imperialism until we fall into Absolutism. We ought to be so proud of our democratic, republican system that we should resent as an insult the intimation of a surrender of our high prerogative of self-government, thereby acknowledging our weakness and incapacity. It is time this silly or wicked talk should cease, and that we give once more to reason, and not to passion, the guidance of our habitual thoughts and conduct.

HON. B. G. HARRIS.—Hon. B. G. Harris, the fire-eater of the Western Shore, has issued an address to his fellow citizens, in which he denounces the action of the Democratic State Cedtral Committee and the Legislature—the former for advising and the latter for striking out the word 'white' from the Registration law. Mr. Harris thinks the Democracy is fast running into the Republican chanel, and offers himself as a candidate for Congress in order that he may thoroughly "re-construct" them. Poor Benny has a hard time to keep them straight.

During the days of slavery, Mr. E Bartlett, of Covington Kentucy, owned a slave—Isaac—by name. The master being a temporary resident of Memphis in 1864, went into the rebellion. Isaac remained in body within the Federal lines—in fact never left Covington,—but like many of his white neighbors, his heart and sympathies were with the South. Hence, Isaac was, during the war, called a rebel, and since the war a Democrat. For six years past he has been quite a well-known character on the streets. His face is as black as the ace of spades, and his mouth suggests his great capacity for pork and beans.

Ike reads the papers, and for some time has been awaiting the coming of "de fifteenth amendment." Thursday morning, upon opening the papers, his eyes were gladdened with the sight of President Grant's proclamation, announcing the adoption of the new feature. Ike is generally temperate, but we are pained to say he was not strictly so on Thursday. In fact he was a little "how come you so." Passing down Madison street he met an old white acquaintance, who like himself had been seperated from his principles during the unpleasantness. He accosted Ike with, "How are you, to day?"

Ike—"You ask me how I is I'll tell you, for fifteen years dese old legs been carryin a nigger 'round, but, thank God to-day dey carries a man."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A HUMBUG.

How often we hear this expression from persons reading advertisements of Patent Medicines, and in nine cases out of ten they are right It is over 22 years since I introduced Dr. Tobias' Venetian Liniment to the public. I had no money to advertise it, so I left it for sale with a few druggists and store keeps through a small section of country, many taking it with great reluctance, but I told them to let any one have it, and if it did not do all I stated on my pamphlet no one need pay for it. In some stores two or three bottles were taken on trial by persons present. I was by many thought crazy, and that would be the last they would see of me.—But I knew my medicine was no humbug.—In about two months, I began to receive orders for more Liniment some calling it my valuable Liniment, who had refused to sign a receipt when I left it at their store. I warrant it superior to any other medicine for the cure of Croup, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic Vomiting, Spasms, and Sea-sickness, as an internal remedy. It is perfectly innocent to take internally—see oath accompanying each bottle—and externally for Chronic Rheumatism, Headache, Mumps, Frosted Feet, Bruises, Sprains, Old Sores, Swellings, sore Throat etc.

HELMBOLD'S COLUMN.

TO PHYSICIANS.

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1863.

Allow me to call your attention to my

Preparation of Compound Extract Buchu.

The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.—Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small portion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle,) leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection, it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist, of 16 Years' Experience.

(From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World)

Helmbold's Fluid Extract of Buchu and Improved Rose Wash
